LOTO-CANADA SLAMMED

$300M for Olympics Called Pie-in-the-Sky

QUEBEC (CP) — Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau Wednesday described as "pie in the sky" estimates of $300 million to $350 million in revenues from Loto-Canada to help pay off the $1-billion Olympic deficit.

He was commenting on release of revenue figures for the first of the 13 Loto-Canada draws, which could result in revenues of not more than $185 million for the Olympics by the time the lottery ends in 1979.

Lottery officials in Ottawa say it is still possible that an average of 7.5 million $10 tickets will be sold in future draws, and describe the first draw as "a phenomenal success" despite the fact that 1.5 million tickets remained unsold.

Proceeds from the Dec. 5 draw to the Olympic installations board, a Quebec agency, totalled $14.22 million.

Former Quebec finance minister Raymond Garneau announced in his spring budget that he expected revenues of $360 million from the federal lottery — an extension of the successful Olympic lottery.

Jean Chretien, federal treasury board president, said at the time that $300 million was a more realistic figure.

If revenues do not increase in future draws, the total revenue from the 13 draws — to be held four times a year — will total $184.85 million, short of both estimates.

"Now you will understand why we asked for guarantees," Parizeau said.

The Provincial lottery, a joint venture of the Ontario and Western Canada lotteries, is the main competition for Loto-Canada. Like Loto-Canada, it offers $1-million prizes but Provincial tickets sell for $5 each.

The first draw was held Oct. 31 and 90 per cent of the 3.3 million tickets were sold. The second draw, on New Year's Eve was sold out with 4.3 million tickets spoken for.

Garneau said Loto-Canada was begun this fall in a crowded market, but one which has yet to be saturated, especially in English Canada.

Garneau conceded that sales of Lotto-Canada tickets have decreased proportionately in Ontario in comparison with sales of the Olympic Lottery.

On the other hand, Quebecers bought 45.75 per cent of Loto-Canada tickets compared with 41.57 of all nine Olympic draws.

REPORTS CENSORED

NICOSIA (AP) — Censorship was imposed as of Wednesday on news dispatches sent out of Lebanon by foreign reporters. Censorship of publications inside Lebanon began Monday.

Outgoing dispatches cleared by the censors Wednesday and today indicated that only reports from the Lebanese Christians and the Syrians would be allowed to be sent abroad. These dispatches contained no information from the Palestinians or the leftist Lebanese Moslems.

The maximum punishment for violation of censorship regulations is five years imprisonment.

Bawlf Says NDP Hurt City

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf agreed Wednesday the city of Victoria has had a rotten deal from the provincial government, but blamed it all on the NDP.

Bawlf, MLA for Victoria, agreed "substantially" with Mayor Mike Young's inaugural address which criticized the provincial government. He didn't agree with the parts of the speech criticizing the Socreds.

"I agree the city suffered a real hardship as a result of the NDP policies," Bawlf said, but the Socreds have not added to the problems, he said.

Young said the NDP had increased the civil service and civil service salaries, making it more expensive for the municipality to keep up. He also said the NDP had built too much office space, leaving private space vacant.

On the other hand, Young said, the Socred hiring freeze was largely responsible for an unemployment rate of 10 per cent and the doubling of ferry fares has crippled the city's tourist industry.

But Bawlf said neither unemployment nor the fading tourist industry could be blamed on the Socreds.

He said the extra people the NDP hired were all out-of-towners, so the hiring freeze couldn't have been responsible for the city's high unemployment rate.

Tourist traffic, Bawlf said, is down all across the country, not just in B.C. or on Vancouver Island.

He said that in the past year the province has doubled its payments of grants in lieu of taxes to the city to about $600,000.

CUBA N-PLANT

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Comecon, the East European trading group, has announced plans to build an atomic-power station in Cuba, Tass news agency said today. It will be the Caribbean island state's first nuclear plant and plans for it were foreshadowed in an agreement signed last April in Moscow.

Hydro Surcharge Added to Bills

The additional increase is a monthly service fee of $3 per two-month billing period. It will be on most consumers' bills in May.

Hydro also announced a whopping 30 per cent hike in rates for manufactured gas for the approximately 5,000 users in Victoria.

The new electricity rates will mean an extra $1.50 to $3.67 per month will be added to the bills of the majority of B.C. Hydro's residential customers.

Fred Oldfield, president of the Victoria branch, Canadian Restaurant Association, said he was unaware of a further rise in gas price, a commodity already considered high by restaurant operators.

Such unavoidable expenses are eroding the anti-inflation guidelines faced by the industry in pricing meals, he noted. In addition, the 30 per cent increase greatly exceeds the federal AIB guidelines, he said.

B.C. Hydro Chairman Robert Bonner, in making the announcement, said the service charge was necessary in order to meet the costs of transmitting energy and billing customers.

He said these costs were a fixed amount regardless of how much electricity a customer used and it was appropriate for the cost to be paid by a fixed service charge.

In addition to the $3 per month service charge on the two-monthly bill, customers will pay 4.6 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 550 kwh, unchanged from the present, and 2 cents per kwh for each additional kwh, up from 1.7 cents.

The minimum bill will be $6.14, unchanged from the present, but fewer people will qualify for the minimum charge because of the new $3 levy.

Bonner said the crown corporation faced a deficit on its electricity and natural gas operations unless it made the increases.

Increases in rates for natural gas customers on the lower mainland had been announced earlier.

Bonner said the company had spent a full year trimming costs and holding the line on staff but still discovered increased revenues were required in order to avoid a deficit.

"If inflation continues at present levels, the cost of electrical energy to customers could increase about 60 per cent in the next five years," he said.

Bonner said the company was working on a plan to assist customers to conserve electricity and other forms of energy and would announce details at a later date.

Residential customers who use up to 275 kwh per month can expect to pay $1.50 more (because of the $3 service charge every two months).

Customers using between 267 kwh and 1,000 kwh per month, who make up the majority, will face increases ranging from 11.9 per cent to 14.7 per cent.

Those using more than 1,000 kwh will face increases of about 15 per cent or more.

In Victoria, customers using petroleum air gas will face a service charge of $7.30 every two months. In addition, they will pay 44.5 cents for the first 100 thermal units plus 30.5 cents for extra thermal units. The previous rates were increased in five steps and without a service charge. The increase is about 30 per cent.

Bonner said the service is costing the company $4.7 million per year and air gas customers are paying only $1.7 million, even with the increases.

'LONG' RIDE SHORT-LIVED

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A 185-foot-long Douglas fir, destined to become a flag pole at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in Toronto, has already run into problems in the first hour of its long train journey from the West Coast.

The log, which is laid along three flatcars, was just out of Vancouver when a brace on one of the cars snapped Wednesday.

Al Menard, a CNR spokesman, said it may take up to a week to build a new brace.

Saudi Arabia Jumps Crude Oil Price by 5%

WASHINGTON (TNS) — Saudi Arabia Wednesday formally raised the price of its crude oil by five per cent, undercutting the oil prices of most of the other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco), a consortium of American oil companies which produces and sells the Saudi Arabian oil, said Wednesday the price of Arabian light crude is now $12.09 a barrel, up from $11.51.

The price increase will add about a penny a gallon to the price of most oil products such as gasoline and heating oil, although the actual impact depends on how much Saudi oil and how much higher-priced OPEC oil finds its way to American consumers.

Meanwhile, the National Iranian Oil Company, faced by plummeting exports in the early days of 1977, has threatened to blacklist 25 firms seeking cheaper prices unless they honor their agreements.

NIOC said oil exports have fallen almost nine per cent following a Jan. 1 price increase of 10.4 per cent.

Direct sales, which account for about one-fifth of the exports, dropped more than 40 per cent from an anticipated figure of 1.2 million barrels a day to 693,000 barrels, the company said.

90% CHANCE TANKER SANK: COAST GUARD

BOSTON (AP) — There is a 90 per cent probability a missing Panamanian tanker that had 38 crewmen and eight millon gallons of oil aboard has sunk, the U.S. Coast Guard said today.

"The search objective today is based on a 10 per cent probability the vessel is still afloat and 90 per cent probablility that any survivors will be on life rafts," Capt. Bernard Hoyland, who is directing the search, said this morning.

The tanker Grand Zenith, loaded with industrial fuel oil, was last heard from Friday when its position was reported as 60 miles south of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

The coast guard said the lengthy search has not turned up any evidence indicating that the vessel is still afloat.

"I was really hoping I'd find a big mess of oil out there with 38 grubby people in it," Hoyland said of Wednesday's search by seven military planes from the United States and Canada and a coast guard cutter.

Firemen to Vote On Pay Tonight

Victoria firemen meet tonight to vote on recommendations from mediator Clark Gilmour for settlement of a dispute with the city over payment of wages.

Union president Ross Cameron said there are three recommendations and all of them have already been rejected by the firefighters at previous stages of the dispute.

Asked what the chances are that the 104 firemen will accept them this time, he said, "I don't think they are too good."

City negotiators met Wednesday with Gilmour and rejected a union interpretation of an amendment to the federal Anit-Inflation Board guidelines.

Cameron said the city also rejected another proposal which he would not disclose because the union members won't know about it until tonight's meeting.

If the firemen reject Gilmour's recommendations, Cameron said the mediator will be asked to withdraw. He will then report to Labor Minister Allan Williams and once this has been done, the firemen will serve 72-hour strike notice.

The dispute centres around the city's refusal to pay the complete amount of an arbitration award on wages because Victoria says it would be contrary to the AIB guidelines.

B.C. Farmers Seek Tariffs

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

British Columbia farmers will seek tariff protection or subsidies this year in order to overcome the competition of cheap U.S. produce, says B.C. Federation of Agiculture president Ralph Barichello.

He said the federation will work with similar agencies in other provinces to ask Ottawa to lay out a program of tariff protection on food.

The federation will also ask the provincial government to consider setting standards for importing fresh produce into B.C.

He said the province could pass legislation stating that, for example, any potatoes imported into B.C. would be the same size and quality of those locally-grown. This would prevent dumping of surplus small potatoes that do not sell well in the U.S.

The federation also will seek to expand the farm income insurance program.

These three measures would give the B.C. farmer the protection he needs, Barichello said.

"The farm land freeze has been successful," he said.

"But there is no point in saving the farm land and losing the farmer. You must save the farmer, too."

In a year-end statement, in which he predicted B.C. farm cash receipts in 1977 would top $400 million, the same as in 1976, Barichello said British Columbians must realize farming is a vital resource industry like forestry and mining but the family farm is in jeopardy.

The B.C. Federation of Agriculture is working with similar groups in other provinces in hopes that Ottawa will lay out some form of tariff protection—with subsidies being a second choice.

On the provincial front, the federation will ask the government to consider setting standards for importing fresh produce into B.C.

CITY BANK HELD UP

A baby-faced bandit this morning held up the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at 493 Superior and made off with an undisclosed amount of money.

Police said the man entered the bank about 10:45, demanded money and fled in a car. No gun was shown but the robber indicated he had one in his pocket.

Police described the man as six foot two, in his early 20s, with blond hair down to the neck and with a baby face.

No Insider Trading Beefs, City Real Estate Head Says

Victoria Real Estate Board president John Thomson said today he has never heard any complaints over insider speculation in the local real estate market.

He was commenting on a charge Wednesday by Oak Bay Ald. Doug Watts that real estate agents sometimes buy a house listed at a bargain price rather than offer it for sale to the general public.

Watts said agents should be prohibited from buying on speculation because such purchases are a disservice to their clients.

Thomson waid he has asked the board to check the minutes of all meetings of its complaints and ethics committee in 1976 to see of there have been any complaints along these lines from the public.

"We are part way through this search and have not located a single complaint. I don't expect we will find one," Thomson said.

"I served on the committee four years ago and there was no complaint on this topic all year long."

Thomson said licensed real estate personnel occasionally buy properties for themselves but this action is already restricted by law.

Under the Real Estate Act, the agent must state openly that he is a licensed realtor and must outline his purpose in buying the property, whether for his own use or for resale, Thomson said.

"You can't be any more open than that. The vendor (seller) is free to accept or reject the offer by the agent."

If a vendor sells to an agent and later feels he should have received a higher price, the vendor can launch a suit to recover the difference, Thomson said.

He said such suits are rare because most vendors are happy with the price received, but there was a recent case in Ontario where an agent was sued to obtain a higher price.

UBC MAN HAS ERSATZ JAVA

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia professor says he has produced an inexpensive synthetic beverage that looks, tastes and smells like coffee.

However, Dr. Philip Townsley says research on the project has stopped because the federal government tuned down a request for financial support.

(In Victoria, wholesale coffee prices continued to climb, hitting $2.38 to $2.95 a pound this week, and tea prices are expected to jump within a few days in the wake of an increase of 8 to 15 per cent for raw tea. See story on page 15.)

Dr. Townsley, an industrial fermentation specialist in the university's food science department, produced the synthetic coffee four years ago but says about $80,000 is needed to complete and perfect the technique.

Basic production method of his brew, which has both the aroma and bitterness of strong black coffee, is to "put a tissue sample from a coffee tree or bean into a synthetic nutrient medium, allowing it to develop into a mass of cells."

Brain Damage Blamed on Shots

LONDON (AP) — Three hundred children in Britain have suffered brain damage, paralysis, blindness or deafness because of immunizations that went wrong, a Labor member of Parliament said today.

Jack Ashley, who is trying to get the government to pay compensation to the victims, said he has asked for a full inquiry into cases where vaccine is suspected of causing brain damage.

He said that happy, healthy babies were "turned into cabbages" within a few days of immunization against diseases like whooping cough, diphtheria and tetanus.

The accusations came in a letter from Ashley to the parliamentary ombudsman, Sir Idwal Pugh, who will decide if an inquiry is needed.

The British Medical Association said it supports Ashley's demand for compensation, but added that the benefits of whooping cough vaccination—which is blamed for nearly two-thirds of the cases—far outweigh any side effects.

Controversy over possible brain damage from whooping cough vaccination began three years ago, after doctors at London's Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children reported 36 apparent cases.

Some medical authorities believe the affected children could have been among a small number predisposed to brain disorders, which were triggered by the vaccination. They also noted that whooping cough itself sometimes causes brain damage.

Sewer Estimates 'Fictitious' Oak Bay Alderman Suggests

Oak Bay Ald. Shirley Dowell Wednesday said original cost estimates for additions to the regional sewer system were completely fictitious and "dangerously misleading" to taxpayers.

She made the claim at the inaugural meeting of the Capital Region Board as she fired a series of questions at regional engineer Norman Howard on what she said was a 60 per cent cost escalation over a two-month period.

Mrs. Dowell said in June, 1976, consulting engineers Ker, Priestman and Associates estimated the cost of the first phase of the new Greater Victoria sewage disposal scheme at $8 million.

This included the McMicking and Clover Point pumping stations and a 6,000-foot extension of the Clover Point outfall.

But by August, the engineering company had revised the figure to $12.4 million, she said.

The Clover Point pumping station portion of the project was set at $2.2 million in June. But when the contract was awarded less than a month later, it was for $3.3 million.

Mrs. Dowell was interrupted by chairman Jim Campbell, who suggested her questions were too "political" for administrative staff to answer.

But Mrs. Dowell asked that the engineer report back to the next meeting on the cost differences.

Campbell later had another opportunity to question Mrs. Dowell's choice of topics at the meeting.

Mrs. Dowell, quoting newspaper reports, began questioning the $200,000 cost of an engineering study on drainage in the area which Howard said contained errors.

Campbell said he hoped newspaper accounts wouldn't be discussed at every meeting or the board "wouldn't get much done."

Regional executive executive director Dennis Young said the report was preliminary and details were not expected.

He said Howard's use of the word "errors" was unfortunate and that the report simply lacked detailed field engineering.

But View Royal director Pat Massy said she still found it incredible that the report was so costly.

No Beefs Reported: Realtors

"The public is already protected by existing laws."

Thomson invited Watts to use all records and facilities of the board in preparing his brief on the subject. Watts has said he will forward a resolution to the Union of B.C. Municipalities once he has obtained more background information on the topic.

Watts said speculative buying by agents tends to take place during periods when house values are rising quickly. He said agents buy up houses and offer them for resale and sometimes make $5,000 or more in a matter of weeks.

If a house is at a bargain price it should be available only to the general public and not to people in the real estate industry, Watts said.

Labor Against Phone Hikes

Victoria Labor Council delegates ignored the advice of a B.C. Telephone Co. employee Wednesday night and voted to fight the company's application to increase rates.

B.C. Tel applied recently to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission to boost the monthly rental charge by about 15 per cent.

Labor council delegates voted to send a telegram to the CRTC objecting to the proposal and also agreed to file a formal intervention when public hearings begin.

Dick Belfit, of the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C. said the reason the telephone company wants the increase is because it needs more money to get into a sophisticated electronic switching system.

He said the company does not want the money to increase its capital but to improve its service, something council delegates always compain about, he said.

However, Belfit found no support and after a number of delegates disagreed with him he said. "I feel like a one-eyed man in the valley of the blind . . . this motion is wrong."

Council vice-president Linda Baker of the B.C. Government Employees Union said B.C. Tel needs the updated equipment because the company goofed in not taking the middle step along the road to the latest in electronic gear.

"I see no reason why we should support the kind of mismanagement that is going on at B.C. Tel," she said.

Other delegates said B.C. Tel should not be allowed to boost its rates by 15 per cent when workers' wages are being held to eight per cent or less.

B.C. Tel said this week it has been told a public hearing on its rate increase application could begin as early as March.

15 Months For Robber

A knife-wielding robber was sentenced Wednesday in county court to 15 months in jail.

Crown counsel J.W. Anderson told Judge E.J.C. Stewart that Slater entered the store Nov. 26, produced a 12-inch break knife, told an employee to open the till, took $12 and left.

Anderson said the man was arrested later by police and $7.44 was recovered. The rest was spent on a case of beer and a newspaper, he added.

Silver Returned

WARSAW (Reuter) — About 2½ tons of silver donated by patriotic Poles for the war effort against Nazi Germany has been returned to Poland after 37 years in France. The silver, in coins, watches, cigarette cases and eating utensils, was donated to buy weapons but Poland fell within a few weeks after the Nazi onslaught in September, 1939.

the weather

Under the influence of a large area of high pressure which is moving slowly southeastward and weakening, a mixture of sun and cloud prevailed over most of B.C. today. On Friday little change is expected except over the north coast, where improving conditions are forecast. At the same time over the Interior a little precipitation is still expected to prevail on Friday.

Farmers Seek Tariffs

For example, the province could say only potatoes of a size and quality of B.C. potatoes could be imported. This would prevent American growers from dumping their small sizes, which they have difficulty selling below the border, across the line into B.C. at cut-rate prices.

The federation continues to be concerned about Canadians buying groceries below the border but does not plan to request any action by government to stop it.

A survey by the federation showed British Columbians were spenling about $200,000 per week on groceries in border towns like Bellingham during 1976. It is expected this trend will taper off as prices increase below the border.

One product causing the federation great concern is broiler chickens, which sell as low as 49 cents per pound in Washington State and normaly are above $1 per pound in B.C.

Competition from the U.S. has forced local producers to sell as cheaply as 79 cents which are "distress sale prices" because of high production costs, the federation says.

On many other proposals, however, the B.C. prices are fairly close to Washington prices and the gap becomes narrower every week.

What the B.C. farmer can never hope to match is the climatic advantage of the California desert where two full crops can be grown during one year.

"This produces two heads of lettuce for the same amount of land where only one can be grown in B.C. There is no way the B.C. farmer could ever hope to compete with that."

This means some type of long-term protection will be required for vegetable farmers and for producers of some fruit crops as well, Barichello said.

Protection on other products might only have to be for a short period of time.

During 1977 the federation will ask the provincial government to extend its farm income insurance programs to include raspberries, potatoes, field vegetables (peas, beans, corn, lettuce), broiler turkeys and strawberries.

This type of program is already in effect for producers of tree fruits, milk, tomatoes, beef, eggs, greenhouse vegetables, sheep and blueberries.

The provincial government has made a "final offer" on a program to cover raspberries and potatoes but the B.C. Federation of Agriculture is asking for a second look at the formula.

The federation is also asking for housekeeping legislation as soon as possible to tidy up the legislation on the farm income insurance program.

The plan was introduced by the New Democratic Party government but under the new government some difficulties in interpretation have arisen that can best be settled through amendments to clarify the program, the federation believes.

Written History Misleading—Archeologist

OTTAWA (CP) — Written history can be misleading because it is often based on eyewitness accounts of people involved, people who want immortality and who may alter facts to suit them, an international conference of archeologists was told Wednesday.

But the archeological evidence that can set the record straight is fast disappearing, warned Paul Sneed of the office of the provincial archeologist of British Columbia. If conservation measures were not taken soon, modern man's food, housing and industrial needs would destroy our remaining archeological sites within a few decades.

Sneed said governments must begin to catalogue archeological sites and to make sure that those it decides to conserve reflect a broad range of lifestyles, and not just those which reflect our modern consumption-oriented society.

Present policy, he said, is to either conserve those sites which do reflect our values — such as the mercantile trading centre of Louisburg in Nova Scotia — or to sacrifice historical accuracy for entertainent value as has been done in Disneyland or Barkerville in British Columbia.

Sneed said other facets of our past need to be preserved, such as those of native people. He said close study of the way Inuit Eskimos and Indians lived — which emphasized values other than consumption — shows an alternative way of living of which the general public should be aware.

For example, he said, the American Pueblo Indian using simple tools was able to live in hostile desert areas that modern technological man with all his machinery finds virtually uninhabitable. The Pueblos were "consumate scroungers" and recyclers and didn't need much to get by.

Sneed said the general public needs to be made aware of the importance of historic sites because vandalism is taking a heavy toll on them.

Sneed said archeologists should supply the news media with information to inform the public of the importance of any local historic sites. They should also work with Indians or local ethnic groups to help uncover the past accomplishments often ignored in history books.

The four-day archeology conference ends Saturday. It is a joint conference involving the Society for Historical Archeology, an international organization of professionals and laymen interested in North American and related historical archeology, and the International Confernce on Underwater Archeology (ICUA).

VOTE IN '77 SEEN REMOTE

OTTAWA (CP) — Latest polls showing a sharp rise in Quebec support for Progressive Conservatives has all but extinguished chances of a 1977 general election.

Spokesmen for major political parties said Wednesday they expect the poll results — showing Conservatives with 47 per cent popular support, 14 percentage points ahead of the governing Liberals — will end speculation that an election will be held this year.

Spokesmen for both Conservatives and the New Democratic Party said they were prepared to fight a 1977 election, but considered prospects of a general vote unlikely.

"They're not crazy," a senior strategist in Opposition Leader Joe Clark's office said, referring to the possibility that Liberals may call an election during the year. Liberal planners agreed.

Both Clark and Prime Minister Trudeau were vacationing in the Caribbean while their staff members analysed the latest polls.

Senior planners in Trudeau's office attributed most of the slip in Liberal support — nearly all in Quebec — to the Nov. 15 election of Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois government.

LLOYD'S BILKED OF $68M

LONDON (AP) — The daily Telegraph says a group of insurance brokers at Lloyd's was cheated of more than $68 million in two years by an insurance agent who has left the country.

The newspaper says some of the money went to Liechtenstein, the tiny principality between Austria and Switzerland that is used as a registration address by many financial and business operators.

The Daily Telegraph says two Continental brokers accepted marine-insurance business from the agent in London, then reinsured with the unnamed Lloyd's brokers. The newspaper does not say how the swindle worked and gives no source for its report.

The Continental brokers have agreed to compensate the Lloyd's brokers for the loss, the newspaper says.

Pickets Can Stay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Picketing British Columbia locations by workers on strike in other provinces is illegal under the Provincial Labor code, the B.C. Labor Relations Board has ruled.

But the board, in a decision involving Domglas Ltd. and the United Glass and Ceramic Workers Union, declined to issue a cease-and-desist order against such activity, as requested by the company.

The board said Domglas had transferred some work normally performed at its strike-bound Alberta plant to its facilities in B.C.

"A union which can establish that an employer in B.C. is requiring his employees to perform struck work has a good argument to demonstrate why this board should not order an end to the illegal picketing," John Baigent, board vice-chairman who wrote the decision, said.

He added: "An employer who imports a strike into B.C. by transferring struck work to its plants in B.C. should expect this board to hesitate before exercising our discretion in its favor.

"The panel is satisfied that in the present case, Domglas, through its western regional office in B.C., has transferred struck work to its B.C. bargaining unit."

However, the board stopped short of refusing to grant a cease-and-desist order and instead said further argument was needed from both sides.

Gas Blasts Blamed On Drought

LONDON (UPI) — Last summer's drought of the century has been blamed for a nationwide wave of gas main explosions that has injured 50 persons and wrecked dozens of homes and property in less than two weeks.

An estimated 500 householders a day have reported suspected gas leaks in north London alone and the government Wednesday ordered an investigation.

The announcement came as firemen dug through the rubble of the latest blast, which killed an 11-month-old girl in Scotland before dawn. Unlike the five previous explosions, this one appeared caused by a defect in a private central heating system not connected to the public supply.

Britain is crisscrossed with underground gas pipelines, which deliver cooking and heating gas from the North Sea to some 19 million homes and other buildings, according to officials.

James Tye, director general of the officially sponsored British Safety Council, fired off an angry cable to the government late Tuesday charging negligent safety measures by the nationalized British Gas Corp.

He said officials had known the record drought of last summer caused shrinking of the clay around pipes "revealing small gas pipe holes, but did nothing to warn the public promises" as they were legally bound.

Israeli Scandal Probe Demanded

TEL AVIV (AP) — Demands for a full investigation of the latest scandal to hit Israel's governing Labor party continued today despite Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's statement that his housing minister who committed suicide was falsely accused of embezzlement.

The potential for damage to the party's chances in the May 17 election was heightened by suggestions that Avraham Ofer shot himself Monday night because Rabin and other members of the cabinet turned their backs on him.

The prime minister in a eulogy at Ofer's funeral Wednesday said the charges that Ofer was linked to the alleged diversion of government land money were libels.

Reading from Ofer's suicide note that "I did not embezzle or steal," Rabin said: "These sincere words in a moment of supreme reckoning challenge those he held responsible for slandering him and spilling his blood.

NATO Watching Norway

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and other NATO allies are watching with considerable interest as a Norwegian parliamentary committee considers that country's future defence posture.

Defence authorities here say there is concern over the future of allied troops — including more than 5,000 Canadians — sent to reinforce the Norwegian armed forces in the event of a new European war.

They add that a statement by Defence Minister Barney Danson last month that he is considering whether the Canadian role in Europe should be altered relected that concern.

The minister caused a stir in Oslo by saying his deliberation would include whether to centralize all of Canada's NATO commitment in West Germany.

The Norwegian committee has been reviewing defence structure for almost two years and is expected to report this year.

Among other things, it is deciding whether Norway should continue its rigid policy of not allowing permanently stationed foreign troops and nuclear weapons on its soil.

Because of that policy Canadian, U.S. and British units are assigned the role of rapidly reinforcing Norwegian forces in the event of a Warsaw pact invasion.

Canada would fly in 5,000 troops and one or two squadrons of CF-5 aircraft. Troops from all three countries exercise in Norway periodically.

Canadian authorities say there is an uncertainty among allies about the whole Northern flank reinforcement strategy.

They say they realize that if Norway allowed foreign troops permanently on its soil the Soviets might decide they need troops on Finnish soil, also on Norway's northern boundary.

A New Mayor

If Tuesday's inaugural address is an accurate indicator, Mayor Mike Young of Victoria has come into his own as the city's chief magistrate. If his first year was spent in relative quiet (after Peter Pollen, even a rogue elephant would sound relatively quiet), then the second half of his term promises to be more lively.

Or else he's found an awfully good speechwriter. For the first council meeting of 1977, Young dropped the tortuous lawyerly phraseology he usually employs and came out guns blazing on the issue of the provincial government's refusal to pay full property taxes in the city.

He called the provincial government "the largest welfare bum" of all for its beggar-thy-neighbor attitude towards the city. On its property and buildings in Victoria, the government pays less than one-third the normal property tax paid by other less privileged property owners. As Young pointed out, that amounts to over $1 million or 10 per cent of the total property taxes assessed in the city. In plain English, it means the average citizen's property taxes are 10 per cent higher than they should be, since the province is getting a free ride on municipal services.

New Democratic Party MLA Charles Barber lately has come in for some harsh criticism for his so-called coldly cynical ploy to embarrass the capital region's cabinet representatives, Sam Bawlf and Hugh Curtis, into making good on an election promise to have the province pay full property taxes in Victoria. So he should embarrass them. Embarrass the pants off both of them, especially Bawlf who made the issue his personal crusade and doubtless won election due partly to it. Barber and Young should quote at them the standard explanation for all the other Social Credit tax increases of the past year: "There's no such thing as a free lunch." Throw in a few 1976 quotations from the government about the "user-pay" concept as well.

With Barber pressing the city's case down at the legislature and Young maintaining his newfound outspokenness in council, perhaps Victorians might finally see justice done on the matter. Don't count on much help from Bawlf though. Suddenly he's discovered how "complicated" the issue is.

Credentials Established

It was a stock reply in the 1960s and early 1970s to those who protested the Vietnam war, or American nuclear tests at Amchitka and so on: "Yeah, well what about Russia?" Variations on the theme included: "If you like the communists so much why don't you go live there?" When the Greenpeace movement protested French atomic tests at Mururoa atoll in the South Pacific, they were harried by those who (sitting back on their behinds) questioned their credibility because they weren't tearing strips off the Chinese or the Indians, who also conducted atmospheric nuclear tests.

Never mind that it is bizarre to criticize a protest group because it does not automatically rush off in all directions to castigate every single international wrongdoer. Or that it seems ridiculous to require as credentials of an anti-Vietnam war group that it also have attacked the Russions for invading Czechoslovakia, Hungary.

Somehow in the minds of conservative and righteous thinkers, attacking the U.S. for bringing death and destruction to Vietnam on a massive scale was the other end of an equation, the sum of which was the international communist conspiracy.

So we find it strange that the diehards who defended the Vietnam war until the bitter end haven't rushed to praise and make welcome the group of 90 former protestors and resisters—Joan Baez and Allen Ginsberg foremost among them—who last month condemned the new communist government of Vietnam for "gross abuses" of civil liberties because it was suppressing free speech and imprisoning civilians for certain religious and ideological beliefs.

About the same time, we published a letter from Jim Douglass of the Pacific Life Community, a group dedicated to oppose the Trident submarine base at Bangor, Wash. by whatever peaceful means at hand. The sort of people who would never be caught consorting with such a dangerous peace group may have missed what he said—the reaction from the quarters of opinion quick to condemn such organizations as merely anti-American have been deafeningly silent.

Let us repeat. Douglasss delivered the Pacific Life Community's carefully reasoned opposition to Trident (it is not a defensive weapon, but an offensive one which is designed to tip the balance of power in the U.S.'s favor) but he linked that with a condemnation of China for exploding a nuclear weapon in the atmosphere last month.

"It was a crime against humanity, done in the name of revolution. Poor and rich alike die from radioactive fallout. Life itself will die if revolutions continue to join established powers in creating doomsday weapons . . ."

Said Edward Koch, a U.S. congressman who was among the 90 signers of the petition protesting Vietnam's treatment of dissidents:

"Even those countries that are not democratic must be held accountable for basic human rights. I was one of those opposed to our involvement in Vietnam, and I was pleased when our involvement ended. But now we have a new involvement, and the United States must bring economic or any other kind of pressure to bear on a new kind of repression over there."

So there, William F. Buckley, the American Legion, Lubor J. Zink, the Canadian Intelligence Service. Please copy. Their credentials as human beings concerned about human suffering anywhere it occurs appear to have been established. A little acknowledgment from their critics of the last decade would no doubt be welcome.

W. A. WILSON

Must Restore Confidence

OTTAWA — The first 1977 priority for this country's governments, provincial as well as federal, separatist as well as federalist, should be to do what they can to rebuild business and consumer confidence.

The responsibility for influencing as much as it can the state of the economy may rest primarily on the federal government, but the increasingly powerful provinces of which this country is composed do not entirely escape it.

The appropriate verbs, of course, are "influence" and "affect." There is not much in the economic history of this decade which would persuade anyone that the word "manage" is a justifiable description of the interplay between governments and economic trends.

So far as the federal government is involved, the essential thing is to arrive at a better balance of concern between the twin problems of declining but still serious inflation and a high level of unused capacity in the economy, usually thought to be 15 to 20 per cent, with the severe and rising unemployment that makes inevitable.

Rising Demand

The present state of the economy simply does not present the government with the simple, either or sort of choice upon which it has been insisting for well over a year. Efforts to improve consumer demand simply are not incompatible with the government's vitally necessary goal of continuing to curb inflation.

That would be the case only if there were some prospect in the foreseeable future of unused industrial capacity beginning to disappear at such a rapid rate that new investment could not overtake rising demand.

No prospect is further from economic reality in today's Canada. It certainly cannot be foreseen in 1977 and it is extremely doubtful that such a situation could be created in 1978 even if this government were likely to take stronger expansionary measures than seem at all probable.

The economic faults of the Trudeau government, almost from the beginning, have been a lack of balance, a tendency towards economic extremism.

This was true in the rigidity of the tight money policies of the late 1960s, of the freewheeling spending during the unstable boom that occurred early in this decade and of the one-sided policies that have been in effect for many long months now.

On the provincial side, there is a need to end uncertainties as far as possible and to provide a climate that will encourage economic confidence. Given the basic objectives of the Parti Quebecois government in Quebec, a high level of uncertainty is inevitable but the members of that government quite clearly are doing their utmost to keep it within minimum bounds. They appear to have had some success so far as borrowing abroad is concerned. It is too soon to be certain but it is not likely that they have had much success so far as direct investment, Canadian or foreign, is involved. Direct investors would require a longer look than this at the new Quebec government before committing themselves.

The policies of the Saskatchewan government are another matter. Threats to nationalize the oil industry, if its firms are successful in their court appeals against earlier provincial action, are not calculated to do much for business confidence coming on top of potash nationalization. Premier Blakeney is generally regarded as a brilliant man but he is also recognized as a very doctrinaire one. Whether socialism in one province is theoretically possible, threats to fall back on that approach can only be extremely unsettling.

Unless this is to become a socialist country, one of the essentials at government levels is a far more realistic and open view of the role that profits play in an economy such as ours. Since the so-called windfall profits that came during the rising phase of this inflation, and the attack on them that followed, there has been remarkably little public support for the idea that this sort of economy only runs well when it produces profits.

Most of the so-called windfall profits were in fact illusory because they were inventory profits created by inflation. Two things happen to such profits. They are, in the first place, exposed to taxation which seriously reduces their size. They then must be re-invested, at some point in the business cycle, in new inventory at the higher price.

There was a strong case for imposing higher royalties on the oil industry because the action taken by OPEC in quadrupling selling prices meant that the industry in this country could sell domestic production at a much higher level without a corresponding increase in costs. But because the inflation was so severe, other inventory profits were large and came under severe attack even though many of the businesses making them were in an entirely different position than the oil industry.

Now it is commonly recognized that, if business and industry are to create the jobs necessary to reabsorb the unemployed and employ future new entrants to the labor force, substantial new investment will be necessary. That investment, however, is not likely to take place in these conditions. It will remain unlikely that there is a realistic prospect that existing unused capacity will be taken up. But it will go on being unlikely as long as the political-economic condition of the country is uncertain and one of the recognitions necessary is that profitability of operations is not wicked but essential.

World Spotlight

The country's politicians should look at the new situation in which Canada has become a net exporter of direct investment, even while it is a huge importer of borrowed funds. The explanation of the outflow of investment funds is essentially simple: Money is being invested in other places, primarily the United States because the prospect of profitable operations seems better there.

This is partly a function of production costs but it is also a reflection of the atmosphere prevalent in the country.

One other act of recognition by politicians of all parties is vital. Since the election of a separatist government in Quebec raised major questions about the preservation of the federation, the world has been watching Canada. The ripples of actions taken in Regina or Quebec City do not stop at the provincial borders. They touch all of us.

Snow Job

Although the winter has been mild, I feel that the people of B.C. are in for another snow job. The routine is very familiar. Remember Sommers, Gaglardi, etc.? The old book is being opened again. Inside information on natural gas, investments, etc. This time we even have a man living in Washington state in on it. Even some of the old gang are back in the driver's seat. Sommers took the rap for them then, who will do it this time? It is only starting now, folks. Just be very careful to watch developments in future. See if I'm right.—P. Griffin, 955 Dingley Dell.

CMHA Xmas

The staff of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association would like to express appreciation for the tremendous response to our Christmas gift campaign.

We would like to let everyone who sent gifts and cash donations know just how these contributions were used.

A cheque was sent to Riverview Hospital to ensure that Victorians who are there for extended care would be remembered. Over 100 gifts were received by a group at Victoria mental health centre, a pre-Christmas dinner, complete with all the trimmings, Santa, gifts and music by the Silver Singers was enjoyed by 150 people who attend Laurel House activity centre. Gifts were distributed among those who attend Cornerstone at Cordova Bay. Hillside boarding home guests received extra Christmas treats, a group from EMI was taken by bus to see the Christmas lights. After a Christmas Eve buffet, members of Laurel House went on a bus tour. Gifts were also given to many people in private boarding homes.

This gives an idea of what the generousity of caring people in our community did to help others have a happier Christmas.

To those we have been able to contact by mail, we say thanks again, and to the many who remain anonymous we sincerely thank you. Many hearts were warmed by your remembering.

Thanks also to the volunteer Christmas gift chairman, ladies auxiliary, volunteer shoppers, wrappers, drivers and everyone involved who co-operated so well in this venture.

World in Arms

On Nov. 15, MP Andrew Brewin made an important speech in the House of Commons. He spoke of the cost of the arms race and asked for restraint on unnecessary defence installations, adding: "The former minister of national defence spoke triumphantly in this House about a year ago, saying that his department was not to be subject to a ceiling on expenditures, but would be allowed an increase of 12 per cent per annum for five years." Mr. Brewin believes that a major war now would quickly become a nuclear war.

He spoke of Barbara Ward's recent book The Home of Man. Estimates of total world-wide expenditure on arms vary from $300 billion to $350 billion a year. In her book Barbara Ward also gives estimates of the cost of providing basic necessities for all humanity. These estimates were made by the World Bank some time ago. She states that food, water, urban housing, urban transport, population and health programs could be met by about $12.5 billion per year.

Back in 1953 Dwight D. Eisenhower said: "Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies, in a final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, from those who are cold and not clothed. This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children." — Frances Wilcox, 820 Cook Street.

Vietnam

The article in the Times of Dec. 30, titled Resisters Wage Attack on Vietnam, stated that 90 leading U.S. war resisters had signed a petition condemning the Vietnam government for "grevious and systematic violations of human rights . . . by filling prisons with civilians accused of nothing more than possession of certain religious and ideological beliefs . . . and by the suppression of cultural and political expression and the stifling of all non-violent dissent."

How easily these people forget! Not one person, including the thousands of people who left Vietnam after the war, witnessed the bloodbath the Americans led us to believe would happen. It is accepted that this bloodbath did not take place. The Vietnamese were (and are) not bent on revenge, they simply want to run their own country. For very practical political and economic reasons the Vietnamese had to do something about the de-stabilizing forces in the South Vietnamese society. To leave many of the corrupt generals, politicians and top-level civil servants on the loose would be inviting a continued war. The whole of the Vietnamese economy is now being changed from one dependent on U.S. dollars to one based on as much self-sufficiency as is feasibly possible. Top-level military, political and civil service personnel were sent to re-education camps to prepare them for re-integration into a new Vietnamese society and to allow them to learn practical means of adding positively to this society. They could just have easily been shot.

Your article noted that the number of detainees are 300,000. I would question this figure. I have kept up as much as is possible on information about Vietnam. The 300,000 figure was the figure commonly used when the education camps were first opened. Since that time many have returned to an active life within society.

The war resisters also noted the suppression of cultural and political expression. Undoubtedly the people in the south have had to cut back on their former means of cultural expression. There are no more opium dens or massage parlors. The Saigonese who used to sit in the cafe's and watch the war go by now have to work for more than themselves. In almost all of the reports I have read it is noted that the colorful clothes and pant suits, etc. worn by southern women are still the fashion of the day.

These war resisters also stated that prisons are filled with people accused of certain religious beliefs. It has been a fact since 1954 that there has been no religious discrimination in North Vietnam, and from the accounts I have read there seems to be no religious discrimination in the south either.

A source close to the Archbishop of Saigon told Daniel Southland of the Christian Science Monitor: "The church is not going to assume a negative, sulky attitude. A new mentality must be aquired. In the past, too much emphasis was placed on anticommunism, and the Catholics enjoyed too many privileges. We must now place ourselves squarely on the side of the poor and the underpriveleged." Obviously some Catholics rejected a breakdown of their comfortable position, which was the reason that a few Catholics in Saigon ran a printing press, a counterfeit machine, and an underground radio from the confines of one of the churches. Perhaps their arrest is religious persecution? — Phil Esmonde, 3773 Waring Place.

Wiz Still With Us

A letter written by Catherine Rasmussen to the Times Dec. 29, criticizing the cartoon comic strip Wizard of Id has resulted in the discontinuation of this strip.

I wish to respond on behalf of those who enjoy this comic strip and want its return. The title of this strip suggests the deep psychological aspect of everyone and pertains to Freud's id, ego, and superego. Catherine Rasmussen feels this strip is demoralizing and dehumanizing. I suggest a comic strip should appear titled the Wizard of Superego. Perhaps this might satisfy her desire for morally fortifying material. The id does not disappear simply because it is Christmas.

Editors Note: The Wizard and Rod were delayed in the Christmas mail. They are still with us.

Bugsy Malone

Your movie reviewer, Nora Hutchison, is completely out to lunch in her review of the film Bugsy Malone. While the film can be legitimately criticized on technical grounds, it does succeed as a satire, the film's theme is carefully developed, and for Hutchison to have missed it she must have had a worse than normal case of the post-Christmas blues. Further evidence of this is her review's failure to mention the film's best sequence, the scene in the soup kitchen. If this scene does not contain some of the best satire of 1976, I would be greatly surprised.

Finally, to describe this film as "PERVERSE," "lewd," "pornographic," and "creepy" is a travesty. It is not a great work of art, but compared with the rest of today's movie fare, it fits none of the above adjectives. I hope that for a New Year's resolution, Hutchison has vowed to judge each film on its merits rather than forming impressions before buying her popcorn.—Tom Swanky, 305-1002 McKenzie Avenue.

Alaska Oil Comes Soon

THE SUN
An Editorial

Vanlene, Erawan, Irish Stardust. Familiar names from the past. Names of ships that passed in the night and left oily messes behind them in British Columbia's coastal waters.

How well do we remember them? Do we remember the dead birds, the blackened shorelines of West Vancouver and Alert Bay, the fouled beaches and boat hulls, the filthy hands, the pungent smell? Most of all, do we remember how lucky we were?

We were lucky because the Vanlene and the Erawan and the Irish Stardust were freighters. They were not tankers. Not like the Argo Merchant, whose cargo of 7.6 million gallons of oil is still hovering off the Georges Bank fishing grounds, waiting to do its mischief, or the Sansinena, which blew up in Los Angeles the other day, or the Imperial St. Clair which went onto a rock in Georgian Bay and spilled 35,000 gallons, or the Olympic Games (an apt name for a disaster ship, if ever there was one), which has done its dirty work in the Delaware River.

If our memories of oil troubles of our own are dim, it is not surprising. It is almost four years since there was a serious spill in B.C. waters (it was our worst: 1/76th of the Argo Merchant's cargo). Without oil disasters fresh in our minds, without a conscience to prick us, it has been easy to relax our vigilance, to drowse. So while we feel the greatest sympathy for the people on Nantucket Island, and Martha's Vineyard, in Newcastle, Del., Parry Sound, Ont., and Marcus Hook, Pa., we are thankful for being roused. Only a few months from now, oil will be flowing through the Alaska pipeline and tankers will start carrying it down our own coastline. One hundred thousand gallons a day will be shipped to the Arco refinery at Cherry Point. Where the rest of it will go remains undetermined; but it is safe to say that American tankers carrying Alaskan oil will be with us for a long time.

And unless we are careful, there will be, as well, the kind of Liberian tankers that weave their way across the oceans with wonky compasses, like the Argo Merchant.

With the public reawakened, there may never be a better time for us to obtain the safeguards we need against the hazards of these shipments. With a new administration to take over in Washington, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson should be restating Canada's opposition to supertanker traffic in the inner waters of Georgia Strait and Puget Sound and seeking assurances that there will be proper control — at least as good as at Seattle-Tacoma airport — not only of supertankers but other vessels that might run into them, and high construction and equipment standards for oil transport that is unavoidable.

It would also be a good time, we think, for Premier Bennett to have a little chat with the new Washington State governor, Dixy Lee Ray.

Dr. Ray's position on oil movements in Puget Sound remains somewhat unclear, at least on this side of the border. She insisted during her election campaign that supertanker traffic in the area "is not an immediate problem not or in the foreseeable future. I don't see the panic. Only reporters ask about tankers . . ."

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it must be assumed that Dr. Ray does not dislike oil tankers. Since she is a marine biologist, it should also be safe to assume that she does not like oil spills either.

Premier Bennett might like to point out that sometimes the two go together. That the problem may not be as far off as she thinks. That there are safer places for an oil port than Cherry Point. At least, he could demonstrate that not only reporters ask about tankers.

Praying Ashore Won't Save Us

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Last April, Dr. John Vandermeulen, a marine scientist, estimated that 90,000 gallons of Bunker C oil remained on the shore of Chedabucto Bay from the Arrow disaster of 1970. About 2.5 million gallons of oil spilled from the tanker after it hit a rock, and Dr. Vandermeulen calculated that 450,000 gallons of it was carried into lagoons and estuaries around the bay, contaminating about 190 miles of shoreline. About 2 million gallons apparently drifted out to sea and, of the portion that washed ashore, he said, at least 20 per cent was still there in sediments or at the high tide line. It may take centuries for it to be removed by natural action of the sea.

The long-range horror of a tanker spill is unpleasant to comtemplate but it is a reality that people living and working in the Nantucket area are obliged to face as changeable winds move the latest massive tanker spill this way and that, off the coast of Massachusetts. If official estimates are accurate, about 7.6 million gallons of quick industrial fuel now pose their sticky menace to wildlife, to those who earn their incomes from fishing, and to those who take simple enjoyment in a clean beach.

Environmental Protection Administrator Russell Train admitted that the breakup of the Argo Merchant, and the river of oil that poured from her hull, gave him a feeling of helplessness that "makes me feel sick." It is a familiar sentiment in these situations and it calls back the anguish of statements by British authorities in March, 1967, when they fought against the spread of about 36 million gallons of oil from the Torrey Canyon, which ran aground off the tip of Cornwall.

World Awash

When that ship broke in two and the mess washed on to the Cornish beaches, Navy Minister Maurice Foley remarked bleakly: "Given the extra oil now floating off Cornwall, all the extra men and equipment in the world would not help. This is a problem no country in the world has had to face before."

One way or another, we are facing it. The world, at times, seems to be awash in spilled oil. In addition to the huge slick off Nantucket, a slimy mess of light, Arabian crude oil is making its destructive way down the Delaware River from the point at which the tanker Olympic Games hit a sandbar while trying to dock at a refinery. Some of the 133,000 gallons of oil is swirling around marshland areas inhabited by wildlife.

We believe that more could be done collectively by the nations of the world to reduce the risks of disaster. At times it almost seems that disaster is invited by the sloppy attitude taken to the question of responsibility among those who own or operate the tankers. The Argo Merchant, the Olympic Games and the Arrow all happened to be of Liberian registration, and it becomes difficult to dismiss the thought that something more than simple coincidence is at work.

Cheapest Fleet

As of the end of last month, 2,600 vessels — most of them huge oil tankers — were sailing under the flag of the West African republic of Liberia. This is the world's largest merchant fleet, assembled under one flag for the most elementary of reasons: it's cheaper that way. Is it cheaper because Liberian registration denotes an easy tolerance of rusty bottoms, and functions rather like the automobile unsatisfied judgment fund?

The seaworthiness of the Argo Merchant and the state of its equipment is something that may be established in the course of the inquiry into the disaster. Meanwhile, we have the early testimony of the captain to the effect that it had a malfunctioning gyroscopic compass when it ran aground, and that the radio direction finder did not accurately pinpoint the Nantucket light ship.

There must surely be a way to ensure that international standards of competence and the reliability of navigational equipment are met — something more positive than standing by the shore, counting dead seagulls, and praying for a favorable wind to shift an oil slick.

Strike Bitterness Still Felt in Kitimat

By MALCOLM GRAY

(Globe and Mail reporter Gray wrote this article before Alcan last week filed a $1.3 million lawsuit against the union in connection with last June's wildcat walkout)

KITIMAT — Officially this town is at peace. But the moving vans and rented trailers that have become a common sight on the neat streets of this planned community tell another story.

That strike was over money, an attempt to get the Aluminum Co. of Canada to reopen the contract long before it expired. The bitterness left after a riot squad of 160 RCMP members removed the barricades to the Alcan plant also grows from money — the money earned by the 400 union members who chose to cross the picket line and keep the smelter operating.

Crossing the line brought them at least $320 a day for each 24-hour shift inside the plant. It also earned them the title of "scabs" from the men who stayed out.

Abusive phone calls to the families of workers who stayed inside began while the strike was on and soon there were acts of violence after the walkout was broken. The harassment and intimidation is sporadic but it is still severe enough to persuade 100 workers and their families to pack up and get out of town.

Pickets and RCMP on road outside smelter community in June

Officially, the union, the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied workers, does not condone acts against the workers who crossed the line. "They're still union members and if they have a grievance against the company, for example, we will still fight for them," a union business agent says.

But within the union there is a sizable element that refuses to accept anything less than the driving out of all the "scabs." Officially, scab lists with the name of the employees who crossed the picket line do not exist. Unofficially they do, pages of typed names and addresses, some with lines through them showing another pullout from Kitimat.

Actions against those who worked can happen anytime. A few weeks ago, an Alcan worker who crossed the line asked another man to handle his part-time job driving mail from Kitimat to Prince Rupert, 130 miles away.

The trip was never made. The substitute driver found that someone had sabotaged the wheels of the truck to cause an accident on the rough road to Prince Rupert. The next day, the fill-in driver received a phone call apologizing for the tampering, which might have injured him instead of the owner of the truck.

The most dramatic and dangerous incident occurred shortly after the strike ended when a Molotov cocktail was thrown through the living room window of a worker who had stayed inside the smelter. The buring gasoline from the broken beer bottle set fire to furniture and window drapes. An RCMP staff sergeant suggested all five members of the family might have died if a 12-year-old girl hadn't smelled smoke and awakened.

Manuel Medeiros, 19, like his father, Jacinto, worked through the strike. He is reluctant to talk about the fire in the family's neat yellow and white house. Sure, there was $2,500 worth of damage done to the living room, but everything is fine now, no problem, he said.

The Medeiros are Portuguese. The are part of a 4,000-member community, the largest in the town of 13,500 and one where grudges from the strike are still being kept alive.

"People within the Portuguese community don't forget who worked and who didn't," said Tony Medeiros. He is a union executive member and shakes his head emphatically when asked if he is related to the family that was firebombed.

The police are hoping that the car-burning, tire-slashing and assault that put one man in the hospital soon after the strike are past.

That's the dramatic side of the confrontation within the union. On the job, the process is more low-keyed, but wearing just the same, convincing many Alcan employees there are better jobs elsewhere, without harassment.

"Scabs" are shut out of the normal conversation on the job, can't expect co-operation while working and are forced to sit alone on lunch breaks. And off the job, the label still sticks. Relaxing with a drink and a discussion of labor's Oct. 14 day of protest, a official stops in mid-sentence to check who's dancing in the middle of the lounge. "That guy's a scab," he says. "This is the first time he's dared to come in here. He works in the garage at Alcan and they don't make things easy for them there."

Kitimat is a small town filled with memories that it will be a long time forgetting.

From Cheek to Chic

russell baker

In Manhattan during a recent blizzard I saw a man with a suntan. He was in a chic restaurant and several chic women were looking at him with admiration. He looked merely eccentric to me. Wearing a suntan in New York in dead of winter is like wearing a seersucker jacket and Bermuda shorts to the Winter Carnival, but these chic women clearly found his eccentricity agreeable.

Being quick off the mark where fashion is concerned, I immediately sniffed the front wave of a new style. I cannot say I liked it. As a traditionalist, I have never felt comfortable wearing anything but my solid grey cheeks, just faintly brightened with a touch of incipient razor rash, once the winter season sets in. Nevertheless, I can move with the field when the pacesetters decree a change, and those chic women were obviously taken with suntan.

Fortunately, I had an excellent suntan acquired last summer at considerable expense, but since it had not been worn since August it would surely have to be cleaned and pressed. Well, of course, it was not in the upstairs room where it should have been, among the tennis rackets, folded swimming trunks and sunburn unguents. Things are never where they should be at my house. People are always putting the radio in with the ice-cube trays and Verdi's Requiem under the rug. There was the usual humdrum dialogue.

"Did you hide my suntan someplace?"

"I haven't seen your suntan since August."

To summarize a tedious scene, the suntan was finally located hanging on the back of the bathroom door, where I had taken it off after showering one day several months ago. I slipped it on and swaggered downstairs to enjoy the sparkle in beautiful feminine eyes and the envy of insolent youth.

The response was disappointing.

"Do you think it's too daring?"

"What?"

"My suntan. Is it too much for winter wear in New York?"

Feminine eyes and insolent youth expressed furtive alarm. "You're wearing what?"

"My suntan."

"It's faded something awful, old-timer."

They were right, of course. I had been lying to myself. This particular suntan, acquired at breathtaking expense, would never pass muster without chocolate lighting. Moreover, with the height of the winter season approaching, there was no time to go back to Maine and get another.

My haberdasher — Cromley & Swotts — was sympathetic. "Indeed," Cromley agreed, "a suntan would be very chic to wear this month. Our travel department will be delighted to have one custom-tailored for you in Jamaica, but — ."

The burden of it was that with my delicate skin it would take at least six weeks. I told them I'd take something off the rack. They regretted that their last off-the-rack suntan in my size had just been sold. Perhaps I would settle for an elephant gun to use on safari in Africa where it was very chic to be a grey hunter.

I was headed for the establishment of a used-suntan dealer in the Bronx when I saw Hanrahan on Madison Avenue. He was being escorted by several extremely chic and extremely admiring women, yet he was no tanner than the next man. He was, however, a mass of newly broken bones.

"A suntan," he laughed, when he had shooed his admirers away and seated himself in a tangle of crutches and plaster at a bar. "Nobody who is anybody would dream of wearing a suntan around New York in December." The other patrons of the bar were gazing at him with fawning respect.

"You must have had a terrible skiing accident," I said.

"That's what everybody thinks," he said. "That's why I hobble around on these crutches with this plaster on me. They're the latest casts from Switzerland. When people see them, they go green with envy."

In fact, I was green with envy under my grey cheeks. Here was a man of the hautest of haut-mondes. A fabulous winter vacationer on the slopes of Mount Sybaris. Doubtless, on his skis, he had outraced the vicious moose down the north slope. And afterward, roaring nights racing through the snow in a droshky drawn by a three-peasant team, champagne by steaming swimming pools, dancing girls roasting by an open fire.

Those ski-shattered bones were well worth it. They were the badge of a privileged caste. Who would sun-tanned be when he might wear the proud orthopedics of Switzerland before the mewing masses? "Actually," said Hanrahan, "I fell down the subway steps and broke my wrist, but when people started looking at me with that awed gaze, I got the message and went the whole hog at a plaster shop. For winter in New York, the cast's the thing."

I'd try more carelessness on subway steps, but with my record it would probably be a skull fracture.

Prejudice Called Inefficient

VANCOUVER (CP) — Employers should treat human rights legislation exactly as they treat health and safety regulations, says a provincial human rights officer, as a logical part of efficient operation.

Kathleen Ruff, B.C. human rights director, told a recent industrial relations meeting that business has economic reasons for obeying the Human Rights Code as well as moral and legal ones.

A discriminating manager will let "a lot of irrational, irrelevant things get in the way on the job," she said, and evaluate employees on the basis of prejudice, not their ability to do the work.

Elimination of discrimination means "getting the most from employees on the job," she said, "and that is what human rights is all about."

The Human Rights Code is useful too, she added, "to bring into question those things that prevent a company from being effective in economic and human relations terms."

Hanne Jensen, a human rights officer with the board, told the meeting of a salesman who was fired after his employer discovered he had a criminal record and there was a bench warrant out for his arrest for failure to pay parking tickets.

When the case came before the board, the employer was persuaded that his former employee's record, stemming from old convictions in another country, had nothing to do with the salesman's ability.

Although the salesman was offered his job back, he chose to take work elsewhere.

Even bonding, a legal procedure used to check the honesty of employees handling money, is a matter of "trustworthiness," said Ms. Jensen. A criminal record does not prevent bonding.

Most cases of human rights disputes can be settled, said board official Reggie Newkirk. He said the B.C. board settled all but 75 of 700 complaints received in 1975.

Gas Reserves Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Proven reserves of natural gas in the Mackenzie River delta are up by about one-third to 5.1 trillion cubic feet, Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. says in a filing to the National Energy Board.

The company, one of two seeking permission to build a pipeline from the North, said proven reserves have increased by 1.3-trillion cubic feet from the 3.8 trillion estimated a year ago.

A report prepared for Arctic Gas by J. C. Sproule Associates Ltd. of Calgary also says the reserves could be as much as 6.7 trillion cubic feet, up from 6.2 trillion last year.

It says that 40 to 60 trillion cubic feet of reserves could ultimately be found in the delta and in the shallow offshore waters of the Beaufort Sea. Seven wells are currently being drilled in the area during the winter exploration season.

A second study filed by Arctic Gas says that production from Western Canada will not be sufficient to meet domestic and export demands beyond 1981.

It says the estimate is based on a vigorous exploration program for gas in the West.

"A very large part of our future supply is projected to come from future discoveries and any slowdown in exploration could cause earlier and larger deficiencies in supplies than those forecast," it says.

Pound's Future Unclear

TOKYO (Reuter) — Major industrial countries are divided over the best solution to the problem of balances of British pounds held by foreigners, Japan's central bank governor said today.

Bank of Japan Governor Teiichiro Morinaga said discussions on the balances totalling about $6 billion—about $10.2 billion—had shown differing views that were hard to reconcile.

Since the International Monetary Fund this week agreed to lend Britain $3.9 billion to help finance its balance of payments deficit, the amount of sterling held by foreigners has emerged as the currency's chief potential problem. The fear is that foreigners holding sterling could suddenly dump large amounts of the currency on the foreign exchange market, sending its value plummeting.

Morinaga told a news conference Japan is ready to consider a plan to help Britain deal with the threat, but he said he did not think agreement would be reached this month.

Central bank governers are to discuss proposals for providing international backing for the sterling balances at their monthly meeting next Tuesday at the Bank for International Settlements in Basle, Switzerland.

The Japanese official's remarks appeared to dash hopes of a substantive agreement this month on ways to forestall or neutralize the effect of widespread sales of sterling by foreign holders.

International experts worked out a prospective support scheme for the sterling balances at a meeting called by the settlements bank in Paris last month. This would be a guarantee totalling $2 billion to be put up mainly by the United States, West Germany and Japan.

On the strength of this guarantee, money would be raised as needed on international capital markets in the name of the Basle bank to provide financing for Britain to cover heavy sterling withdrawals.

Britain in turn would agree to an orderly run-down of the balances, using the payments surpluses it expects to start building up in the last part of this year from North Sea oil.

In London, British sources said there was still a general international concensus on the need for a solution to the sterling balances problem although there were differences over method.

These sources said changes of administration in both the U.S. and Japan had held up detailed discussion, and much technical work remained to be done.

Private balances on deposit in London have increased over the past year and are considered stable.

But government-held balances have proved highly volatile, having fallen from about £4 billion—about $6.8 billion — at the beginning of 1976 to just over £2.75 billion — about $4.81 billion — at the end of September. Most of the withdrawals were by oil exporting countries.

Researcher Sees Market Growth

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most encouraging stock market outlooks, one that if correct would mean a Dow Jones industrial average of 1700 within five years, has been issued by the conservative Wright Investors Service.

Saying "the basic economic forces which have depressed both the American economy and security prices have now decisively reversed their long-term trends," John Wright suggests that "realistic optimism" is justified.

Wright, whose organization supplies the basic research for hundreds of millions of dollars in trust and pension funds, made the evaluation in his annual message to the New York Society of Security Analysts.

In it he said that a high of 1150 points or better might be realized before the end of 1977, and that following a relatively minor bear-market reaction in 1978, the general upward thrust will be resumed.

During this time, he said, a well-diversified portfolio of high-quality equities which is held throughout minor cyclical ups and downs will "unquestionably outperform the market average and any so-called index funds."

Wright, who bases his forecasts on fundamental economic and market research, is highly regarded by other investment advisers, many of whom base their own estimates in part in his organization's studies.

Zinc Status In Jeopardy

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will lose its world status in zinc production within 15 or 20 years unless new discoveries are made, says a report by the provincial natural resources ministry.

The report says zinc producers will be hard pressed to meet growing world demand by the year 2000, even at the minimum anticipated annual consumption rate.

On the basis of current information, the report says four of the current six producing zinc mines in Ontario probably will be shut down by 1985. To maintain Ontario's current world status requires formidable exploration efforts, it concludes.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Bank of B.C.

The Bank of British Columbia board of directors has declared a semi-annual dividend of 40 cents a share.

The dividend is payable March 1 to shareholders of record Jan. 31. Shareholders who have subscribed for new shares that are partly paid for will receive a dividend proportional to the amount paid on the new shares.

Neonex

Neonex International Ltd. reports it has sold the assets and business of its northern paint division to a group of Winnipeg businessmen, effective Jan. 4.

The division was sold for cash and short term notes.

Neonex said in a news release the sale reflects its continuing policy to concentrate its investments in a narrower range of activities.

Zinc Increase Withdrawn

TORONTO (CP) — Noranda Mines Ltd. announced on Monday a cut of one cent a pound for lead and 1.5 cents for zinc due to the devalued Canadian dollar.

The company had increased prices by a similar amount Dec. 14 when the Canadian dollar was above par with the U.S. dollar. Because of the latest currency devaluation, the company said it was "withdrawing" its Dec. 14 increases.

Lead will sell for 25.5 cents a pound, while prime western and high-grade zinc will cost 36.25 cents.

Victoria Man Guilty Of Extortion Charge

A 35-year-old Victoria man was found guilty of extortion by a Victoria county court jury Wednesday.

The jury deliberated an hour and 15 minutes before returning its verdict in the two-day trial of Daniel Robert O'Brien, 1145 Mason.

He will be sentenced Friday by Judge Montague Drake.

Malcolm Berge, who was 15 at the time, told court he was taken to O'Brien's house Aug. 8 and said O'Brien told him "I'll scatter your brains across the street," unless the youth paid him $150 needed to pay his lawyer because he had been caught with illegal firearms.

Crown counsel Don Farquhar told the jury there was "only one real issue that should concern you"—whether Berge's evidence was to be believed.

He suggested Berge's evidence was supported by another witness, who said O'Brien wrote and delivered a note July 26 saying, "Malcolm get hold of us before we get hold of you," and signed "Dan," and a tape-recorded phone call from Berge to O'Brien Aug. 10.

The phone call began with both persons identifying themselves and Berge saying he couldn't raise the money and asking what he should do.

"Well, uh, when do you think you're going to be able to help me out man? 'Cause I just had to clean out my bank account, you know, hm, to see my lawyer today," replied O'Brien Aug. 10 made at the city police station.

"Yah, I don't know, like I'm pretty sure I won't be able to raise — well, how much should I have to raise?" said Berge.

"Well I just put out a hundred and a half to my lawyer today," replied O'Brien.

"Hm," replied O'Brien.

"How much do I owe you for the pot, like?" said Berge.

"Uh, you know best. We should have a chat because telephones aren't good things," replied O'Brien.

Berge told court he understood from Dan White, the man who drove him to O'Brien's house, that seven pounds of marijuana Berge and two friends stole from a house next door to O'Brien belonged to O'Brien.

The phone call concluded with both persons arranging to meet at a drive-in restaurant alongside Beacon Hill Park. Police went there, but O'Brien did not show up and he was arrested that night.

Defence counsel Mike Hutchison told the jury it could accept some of Berge's evidence and not all of it, and said that nowhere in the phone call was there a suggestion of a threat or failure to live up to earlier obligations or deadlines.

Judge Drake, in his address to the jury, said Berge's testimony was "crucial" to the case.

The remark, "I'll scatter your grains across the street," constituted a threat, if the jury believed Berge. The note could possibly be regarded as menacing, but it didn't mention any money, he said.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A former defenceman with the Victoria Cougars junior hockey team drafted last year by Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League was fined a total of $250 Wednesday in Victoria provincial court.

Donald Ricky Durstan, 20, who returned to the Western Canada Hockey League this season as an overage junior with Medicine Hat Tigers, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and stealing gasoline.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told Judge William Ostler that Durstan was found with a small quantity of marijuana Dec. 22 at 1345 Pandora and was caught at the same address the next night siphoning gasoline.

Durstan was fined $100 on the possession charge and $150 on the siphoning charge and was given until March 31 to pay.

A 28-year-old Sooke man who pleaded guilty to impaired driving — his third offence — was sentenced to three months in jail by Ostler.

David Gordon Whelply of Henstridge Road drove off the West Coast Road in Sooke on Dec. 3, Mulligan told the court. A subsequent breath test produced a reading of .26, far above the .08 needed for conviction.

An Esquimalt man appeared in court while three juveniles appeared in Victoria family court in connection with a series of break-ins Jan. 2 in Greater Victoria.

Timothy Bruce Bent, 19, of 729 Porter, was remanded without plea on nine counts of breaking and entering with intent to commit an indictable offence.

Legal aid lawyer Cheryl Dunn represented Bent and requested the remand until next Wednesday for election and possible plea.

Istvan Marton, 40, who had four prior convictions on related offences, was sentenced to 45 days in jail for stealing wire mesh from Capital Iron, 1832 Store Street.

Marton, also known as Steve Ted Marton, of 2008 Fernwood, was charged with theft under $200 Dec. 20.

A husband and wife charged with possession of stolen narcotics and controlled drugs were remanded to Friday for election.

Brock Ballendine, 27, and Sandra Gail Ballendine, 24, of 1276 Rudlin were charged in a Dec. 23 incident in Saanich. Both were released on their own undertaking to appear Friday.

Alfred Adam Milne, 22, of 3206 Albina was charged in the same incident and appeared before Ostler Tuesday. He was remanded until Friday when a show-cause hearing for bail will be held as well as possible election of trial method.

JENNER TOP ATHLETE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bruce Jenner, who captivated the crowd at the 1976 Olympics with his gold medal performance in the grueling decathlon competition, was named Male Athlete of the Year by The Associated Press today.

Jenner, 27, a graduate of Graceland (Iowa) College, scored a world record total of 8,618 points in the two-day, 10-event competition at the Montreal Olympics.

He received 237 votes from a nation-wide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, easily beating Tony Dorsett, the University of Pittsburgh's recordbreaking running back who finished with 105. Cincinnati Reds second baseman Joe Morgan, the National League's Most Valuable Player for the second straight year, finished third with 47, and another American Olympic hero, swimmer John Naber, was fourth with 23.

BRUCE JENNER

Others finishing high in the voting were pro football's O. J. Simpson and Walter Payton; baseball's Mark (Bird) Fidrych, Thurman Munson and Johnny Bench; pro basketball player Dave Cowens, tennis star Jimmy Connors and heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali.

Jenner is the 46th winner of the award which was originated in 1931.

He and Nadia Comaneci of Romania, AP Female Athlete of the Year, will be honored in the spring at the Tampa, Fla., Sports Club's annual dinner.

Dinosaurs to Provide Problems for Vikings

First-place Calgary Dinosaurs, packing plenty of size and sharp shooting, move into McKinnon Gymnasium Friday and Saturday night as UVic Vikings resume their Canada West University Athletic Association basketball schedule.

UVic Vikettes also resume schedule play against the third-place Calgary Dinnies in the Canada West women's league and will put an unbeaten streak on the line.

Coach Mike Gallo's girls are 6-0 in league play, 11-0 over-all this season, 26-0 in conference play over two years and 34-3 over-all in two seasons.

Calgary has emerged as the team to beat in the Canada West men's league after defeating Manitoba Bisons, ranked first nationally, and second-ranked Laurentian Voyageurs of Sudbury in pre-season and Christmas tournament play. Calgary's league record is 5-1.

Top scorers for the Dinosaurs are Greg Hess, averaging 17 points a game, and Mike Santiago. Dinos also have exceptional rebounders in six-foot-seven centre Lyle Leslie, Phil Christie and Matt Friezen.

Vikings, fourth with a 3-3 record, are counting on top efforts from guard Robbie Parris, who made the second all-star team in the recent Golden Boy tournament in Winnipeg where Vikings reached the semi-finals, and centre Jim Duddridge, who won a half-time shoot-out contest in the tournament.

Vikettes will be without forward Lorraine Mosher, sidelined indefinitely after suffering a broken nose and concussion in the Mount Douglas Secondary School grad game last month. Everyone else is healthy.

Dinnies, strong contenders this year under coach Marilyn McNeil after a lacklustre performance last season, boast the league-leading rebounder in centre Jackie Shaw.

Women's games Friday and Saturday start at 6:30 p.m. followed by the men's games at 8:30.

First game will take place Saturday at 8:30 p.m. with the second game Sunday at 11 a.m.

Ferguson Trails Leader by Eight

CHANDLER, Ariz. — Cec Ferguson of Victoria is eight strokes behind leader Ray Carrasco of Irvine, Calif., heading into the final 36 holes of the National Golf Association's San Marcos Open tournament.

Ferguson carded par rounds of 72 Tuesday and Wednesday and stands in 21st spot out of a field of 120 with a 144 total.

Carrasco fired a 68 in each of the first two rounds and holds a three-stroke lead over John Buczek of Plainfield, N.J., who is alone in second place at 139.

Bob Cox Jr. of Vancouver is one stroke back of Ferguson in a tie for 29th place. Muncie Booth of Vancouver stands at 149 and Dave Barr of Kelowna, who fired a 69 Wednesday, is at 151.

The winner of the tourney will pocket $5,000 of the total purse of $55,000.

Ferguson is 15th on the NGA winnings list with $5,270.83, about $30 ahead of Barr, who is 16th.

Tasmanian Clubs Divide Decisions

Teams from the Greater Victoria High School Girls' Basketball League split a pair of exhibition games with clubs from the Mercy Valley Basketball Association of Tasmania Wednesday night at Reynolds High School.

Spectrum defeated the Tasmania "B" team 32-27 as Wendy Lubinich scored seven points while Judy Fenton scored 22 points for the Tasmanian "A" team in a 51-45 decision over Reynolds.

Fenton scored 16 of her points in the second half most of them after Rhonda Keller of Reynolds had fouled out. Keller had 16 points to pace the Reynolds attack.

Hawks on Wing Again

The Canadian Press

Just ask Buffalo Sabres what a difference two weeks can make.

The Sabres downed the Black Hawks in Chicago on Dec. 22 by a 4-2 score to run the Hawks' winless string to 12 games. But things were different when they returned to Chicago on Wednesday.

The Black Hawks, on the strength of Ivan Boldirev's two goals, edged the Sabres 2-1 to extend their National Hockey League unbeaten string to five games—four wins and a tie. They have not lost since the Dec. 22 encounter with the Sabres.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Toronto Maple Leafs downed Colorado Rockies 6-4, Philadelphia Flyers and New York Rangers tied 4-4, Minnesota North Stars dumped Los Angeles Kings 5-2, Atlanta Flames beat Vancouver Canucks 4-1 and Boston Bruins edged Cleveland Barons 3-2.

The Hawks took a 1-0 first-period lead when Boldirev took a pass from J. P. Bordeleau and flippeda shot from close range past Buffalo netminder Gerry Desjardins.

After a scoreless second period, Boldirev redirected Bob Murray's drive from the point past Desjardins with 4:40 gone in the final period for his 11th goal of the season.

Less than five minutes later, Rene Robert beat Hawks goaltender Tony Esposito for his 12th goal of the season, but Chicago hung on for the victory and moved to within five points of St. Louis Blues in the Smythe Division.

At Toronto, the Leafs stormed back with four unanswered goals in the final 10 minutes to overcome a 4-2 deficit. Don Ashby fired the winner at 16:02.

Bob Neely paced the Leaf attack with two goals, while rookie Paul Gardnner enjoyed his first three-goal NHL game in a losing cause for the Rockies who remain tied with Vancouver for third place in the Smythe Division.

Third-period goals 46 seconds apart by Ernie Hicke, his second of the game, and Jim Roberts provided Minnesota with the margin of victory.

Vancouver, playing its fourth road game in five nights, fell apart in the third period and allowed the Flames to score twice.

Richard Mulhern's goal at 14:11 of the first period stood up as the winner for Atlanta. The Flames now trail second-place New York Islanders by five points in the Patrick Division.

Gerry O'Flaherty scored for the Canucks.

At Richfield, Ohio, the Bruins built up a 2-0 lead and then withheld a Barons comeback. Peter McNab's 25th goal of the season was the winner as the Bruins extended Cleveland's losing string to six games.

The win moved the Bruins to within one point of Buffalo in the Adams Division.

Ross Lonsberry's unassisted goal with 4:27 remaining lifted the visiting Flyers into the tie— the third in three meetings between the two clubs this season.

Flame Wins Puck Chase

First in line in struggle for possession of puck during National Hockey League game in Atlanta is Bill Clement (10) of Flames. Giving Clement argument is Vancouver's Jim Wiley. Flames were too hot for Canucks, scoring twice in third period to wrap up 4-1 triumph. It was fourth game in five nights for Canucks. (AP Wirephoto)

Quarter-Century Club Gathering at Duncan

Twenty-five years ago next month an advertisement appeared in the Cowichan Leader asking anyone interested in the building of a curling rink to attend a meeting on Feb. 12.

Thirty-one interested parties showed up at the behest of the advertiser, Larry Marshall, and that night the Cowichan Co-operative Curling Association was born. Floyd Moorman purchased the first share. Frank Middlemiss was the first president.

Construction of a five-sheet curling rink began on July 29 and on Nov. 7 Duncan youngsters were skating on the new ice surface. Curling commenced in December and the first bonspiel took place in March.

This year the Duncan Curling Club, which moved from its original downtown location to Sherman Road 10 years ago, is celebrating the 25th anniversary of the founding of the club with its biggest bonspiel ever.

Play this week for the 64 rinks has been divided between the Duncan Club and the Mill Bay rink and a big bash in the form of a banquet and dance will take place Friday night at the Village Green to honor the occasion. And it may have to go some to match what went before.

Because quite an occasion it was a quarter of a century ago. If the Island wasn't exactly curling conscious then, it was about to be.

There had been a friendly rivalry between Island points to see which city would have the first curling rink. Nanaimo won that honor but the real fight was between Duncan, Victoria and Port Alberni.

Marshall and the late Eric Bulloch, later secretary-manager of the Victoria club, had made a friendly wager that the loser in the bid to have a curling rink first, would wheel the winner down Main Street of his home town; and it was Bulloch who wheeled Marshall in a barrow especially decorated for the event.

Port Alberni was only three days behind Duncan and is celebrating its 25th anniversary in February. Victoria brought up the rear and it too will have a special silver anniversary bonspiel in late March.

In Duncan back then it was a special event. There were about 2,000 people on hand for the festivities. MLA Robert Strachan threw the first rock, the Victoria Girls' Drill Team presented a show and the Sikhs of Mesachie Lake put on a stick-fighting demonstration. There was even dancing, on ice, to the Hometowners.

It's been writ before but bears repeating. Winner of the men's championship in that inaugural season was Ron Harper, whose son Glen was later to twice represent the club in the Consols for the MacDonald Brier.

Ron called the shots for Don Murray, William Wadsworth and W. J. Weyman on his championship foursome. Later he took a rink composed of Marshall, third; Norman Mutton, second; and Wadsworth, lead; to Port Alberni and upstaged the hometowners by winning their first bonspiel.

Seven years later people across the Dominion probably got a surprise when they heard that B.C. would be represented in the Brier by a rink from Duncan, V.I., skipped by one Glen Harper.

Glen only won three games that time around at Fort Willam, but three years later he was back again and everyone got the message. Duncan no longer was a town somewhere between here and there. It would be remembered as having a rink that finished second in the Brier at Brandon with an 8-2 record.

For the record, Harper had Harvey Hodge at third, Fred Duncan at second and Vern Kaspick at lead in 1960. Garry Merrett replaced Duncan on the 1963 foursome.

Later on, Glen also got a second-place finish in the Dominion mixed championships and veteran Gordon Stewart a second in the Canadian Legion national playdowns. Otherwise and always, Duncan rinks have been a threat, be it in the ordinary weekend bonspiels, cashspiels or playdowns.

And it is fitting, too, that the venerable Ron Harper is back again for this event. He is throwing lead rocks for Glen and, although he can't see the broom, more often than not his rocks end up in the house — just as they did 25 years ago.

Soviets Narrowly Top Gritty Oilers

EDMONTON (CP) — The touring Soviet national team escaped with a 3-2 victory over the gritty Edmonton Oilers before a record crowd of 15,571 Wednesday night but the head of the Russian delegation refused to give much credit to the World Hockey Association team.

He said the game was not so much tough as it was dirty. He objected particularly to injuries to forwards Valery Kharlamov and Victor Zhlutkov.

Kharlamov was cut on the mouth and on the side of his head early in the second period on his first shift of the game and Zhlutkov left after an impressive start when he was hit on the head and developed a headache. Kharlamov also was reported having difficulty with some teeth.

Meanwhile, in WHA action the same night, Houston Aeros nipped Calgary Cowboys 4-3 in the Calgary Corral and San Diego Mariners edged New England Whalers, 2-1.

Edmonton coach Bep Guidolin disagreed with the Soviet viewpoint, primarily because Edmonton served eight of 12 penalties, all minors. He said the Soviet players are masters at sneaky play.

The Soviets, who have won five of six games on a tour of WHA centres that continues tonight against Winnipeg Jets, played without including top scorer Vladimir Petrov, Helmut Balderis and defensive standout Gennadi Tsygankov — but they had Alexander Yakushev.

The brilliant left winger scored two goals from the edge of the crease and was a threat all night against Ken Broderick, the Edmonton goaltender who played several seasons of international comptition with the Canadian national team.

Peter Prirodin scored the other Soviet goal, steering a power-play pass from Alexander Bilfaletdinov past Broderick to put the Soviets ahead for good while Cowboy Flett was serving a penalty for playing with a broken stick.

Both Edmonton goals were scored by Wayne Connelly, obtained last week on waivers from Calgary Cowboys, who are one point behind the Oilers in the race for fourth place and the last playoff spot in the WHA's Western Division.

The first goal was set up by Claude St. Sauveur, who came from Calgary at the same time.

Connelly's second goal, a power-play blast set up by Bryan Campbell and Barry Wilkins, ignited a late Oiler rally that threatened to force overtime, but Russian referee Victori Dombrowsky called a penalty against Doug Barrie in the final two minutes and the spurt died instantly.

The Soviets closed out the game by controlling the puck in the Edmonton zone. Broderick made one good stop and had the puck go through the crease behind him but the Soviets appeared content to run out the clock.

The Oilers, who defeated a Czech touring team 6-4 in a major upset last month, treated their fans to a tenacious display. They fired 28 shots at goaltender Alexander Sidelnikov, while Broderick was tested 23 times.

SPINK FAMILY SELLING THE SPORTING NEWS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sale of the Sporting News, a major weekly sports newspaper, will be announced this week.

C. C. Johnson Spink, president of the Sporting News Publishing Co., confirmed that he had been negotiating with a buyer whom he declined to name.

"We have been negotiating with people for a long, long time," Spink said. The newspaper has been published by the Spink family since it was founded in 1886.

The Times-Mirror Co. of Los Angeles is the likely buyer. Times-Mirror owns the Los Angeles Times; Newsday, a Long Island, N.Y., newspaper and the Dallas Times-Herald.

Besides the newspaper, which has a circulation of 350,000 the Spink firms publish a variety of sports record books.

Buffalo Cheers Inspire Warriors

By The Associated Press

The inspiration of home town cheers worked in reverse Wednesday night as Golden State Warriors overcame a 19-point deficit late in the third quarter and went on to a 118-109 National Basketball Association victory over Buffalo Braves.

Golden State's Rick Barry said his team was inspired to do better after the Buffalo fans gave the Braves a standing ovation when they took an 85-66 lead with 5:24 left in the third quarter.

Spurred by the roar of the crowd, the Warriors went back to the drawing board and came up with a new game plan.

"Basically, we played team defence the way it was supposed to be played," Barry said. "On offence, we worked on controlling the ball."

The big man down the stretch for Golden State was seven-foot reserve centre Robert Parish. The rookie came off the bench to score 18 points and grab 10 rebounds in the second half.

In other games, Washington Bullets beat New York Nets 107-92, Philadelphia '76ers whipped Los Angeles Lakers 117-94, Detroit Pistons stopped Phoenix Suns 118-115, Indiana Pacers defeated Chicago Bulls 109-94, Houston Rockets nipped New York Knicks 108-107, San Antonio Spurs beat Denver Nuggets 137-133 and Seattle Supersonics nipped Boston Celtics 94-93.

The Warriors were behind 71-54 when Parish entered the game with 10:16 left in the third quarter. After the Braves opened their 19-point lead, the Warriors outscored them 16-2 behind Parish and Phil Smith to move within striking distance.

The Warriors took the lead for good 92-91 on Phil Smith's basket with 9:09 to play. Smith led the Warriors with 24 points, 20 in the second half.

Tommy Burleson, unhappy after missing a five-footer with 14 seconds to play, stole the ball from Boston's Jo Jo White and scored with two seconds to play to give Seattle a close victory over Boston.

Phil Chenier scored 28 points, leading Washington over the Nets. By scoring their fourth consecutive victory, the Bullets reached the .500 level for the first time since Nov. 20.

Julius Erving and George McGinnis combined for 46 points, leading Philadelphia over Los Angeles. Erving had 26 points and McGinnis contributed 20. The game's high scorer was Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles with 28 points.

Baskets by Howard Porter and Chris Ford, plus two free throws by M. L. Carr in the final 86 seconds lifted Detroit over Phoenix.

Houston guard Mike Newlin scored 26 points and led a fourth-quarter rally. The victory lifted the Rockets into a tie for the Central Division lead with idle Cleveland Cavaliers.

Wheat Kings Romp; Chiefs Down Tigers

Brandon Wheat Kings extended their division lead while Kamloops Chiefs scuttled Medicine Hat Tigers' hopes for a club record in two of five Western Canada Hockey League games Wednesday night.

Brandon doubled Flin Flon Bombers 8-4, Kamloops stopped Medicine Hat 5-3, Portland Winter Hawks edged New Westminster Bruins 3-2, Winnipeg Monarchs beat Saskatoon Blades 5-2, and Lethbridge Broncos and Calgary Centennials skated to a 5-5 draw.

The tie inched Lethbridge to within one point of first-place Medicine Hat in the Central Division. Calgary has 35 points and Winnipeg has 34.

Brandon was holding a 4-2 lead when the line of Bill Derlago, Ray Allison and Brian Propp scored the three quick goals. Allison got two within nine seconds and Propp added the third 12 seconds later.

Scoring for the Bombers, who trailed 3-1 and 7-2 at the period breaks, were Jordy Douglas, with two, Kim Davis and Rey Hudson.

In Kamloops, the Tigers were riding an 11-game winning streak, tying the previous club record, but fell behind late in the first period and never recovered.

Rick Simpson gave the Tigers an early lead before the Chiefs roared back with three goals in less than four minutes. Kamloops led 3-1 at the end of the first period and 5-2 at the end of the second.

Jamie Gallimore and Ryan Walter each scored two goals to lead the Chiefs while Reg Kerr added the other and had two assists. Simpson, Cal Halasz and Merlin Malinowski scored for Medicine Hat.

The Winter Hawks were looking for a shutout but wound up scrambling for a home-ice victory over New Westminster.

Two goals by Tony Currie and one by Barry Brown staked the Winter Hawks to a 3-0 lead after two periods but the Bruins stormed back with two goals in the final 20 minutes.

Don Hobbins closed the deficit to one with less than five minutes to play when his 15-foot backhand drive deflected off a defender's skate into the net.

The Bruins, outshot 45-33, applied constant pressure in the closing minutes. Peterson was lifted with 30 seconds to play in favor of a sixth attacker but the Bruins failed to get a shot.

Success at Last

MONTREAL (CP) — Sergei Tuckmachev scored two goals as a touring junior team from the Soviet Union defeated the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League All-stars 5-2 Wednesday night for their first victory in eight games in Canada.

Sergei Grigoriev, Anatoly Tarasov and Aleksei Kozhevnikov added single goals for the Russians, who lost all six games they played in the recent major junior tournament in Alberta.

Jean Savard scored for Quebec in the first period and Michel Bossy had the only goal of the final 20 minutes.

Barry May Retire

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Barry says he'll most likely retire after this National Basketball League season providing he can make a deal as a sportscaster that will give him the money he wants.

"I can still play 40-42 minutes a game and meet the standards I have set for myself," said the 32-year-old Golden State Warriors forward. "If I couldn't, or if I felt I wasn't giving an honest effort, then I wouldn't be taking their money."

But the nine-time pro basketball all-star says his future is in broadcasting, not basketball. Barry has worked as a commentator on CBS telecasts of playoff games and is a sportscaster in the off-season.

"I've been talking with the people from CBS about what my future role with them might be. Will I retire?. I honestly don't know right now."

Spartak Beaten

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Mike Wanchuk of Kalamazoo scored four times as the International Hockey League Wings handed the touring Moscow Sparktak club its first defeat with a 7-6 exhibition decision Wednesday night.

Baseball Rules Violated

CHICAGO (AP) — A baseball historian testified Wednesday in Charles O. Finley's lawsuit against commissioner Bowie Kuhn that rules violations were involved in nearly every deal voided by the sport's first commissioner.

Fred Lieb, 88, wound up his second day of testimony in the suit filed by the Oakland A's owner after Kuhn voided his attempted sale of three of his top players for $3.5 million.

Witnesses for Finley have said no rules were violated in the abortive sales last June 15 of pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfieder Joe Rudi to Boston Red Sox for $1 million each and pitcher Vida Blue to New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

Kuhn has said he blocked the deals because they were not in the best interests of baseball. U.S. District Court Judge Frank McGarr has said the key issue was whether Kuhn had the power to void actions which were not in the best interests of baseball.

Lieb, a witness in the defence case which began Tuesday, was asked why Kenesaw Mountain Landis was hired in 1921 as baseball's first commissioner. That was two years after Chicago White Sox threw the 1919 World Series.

"Baseball needed a one-man commissioner," said Lieb. "Times had been chaotic in 1920. We knew something was wrong with the White Sox in the 1919 World Series."

Lawyers for Finley say the commissioner's job was set up after the White Sox threw the series and that his powers were limited to dealing with dishonesty and rules violations.

"Landis was brought in to get the crooks out of baseball," said Lieb. "He considered himself to be the absolute boss of baseball . . . a czar . . . a life and death power over everybody from club owner to batboy."

Lieb has spent 67 years as a baseball writer and has written several books.

In his cross-examination, Finley's chief lawyer, Neil Papiano, quoted from several of Lieb's books.

"I must compliment your counsel," Lieb said, "for having such fine knowledge of my books."

After Lieb was dismissed, McGarr told him, "perhaps, Mr. Lieb, you'd like to stay and see more of this trial . . . for your next book."

The trial, which began Dec. 16, is expected to continue for about a week. Kuhn was expected to testify towards the end of the trial.

Joe Cronin, former American League president, also testified Wednesday.

He said the commissioner should have broad authority because teams are highly competitive and interested only in themselves.

Cronin said his first reaction to Finley's proposed deals was "to think of the Oakland baseball fans and I wondered what Uncle Charlie was going to do to put a team on the field."

A deposition from Chicago Cubs' owner Phil Wrigley was read Wednesday.

He said he thought Finley "had a perfect right to do it and that it was none of our business, but I didn't think it was helping baseball any."

Wrigley also said he thought Kuhn deprived the Oakland team "of a chance to sell ballplayers it no longer wanted for a very large figure. As far as I was concerned, they belonged to Mr. Finley. What Finley wanted to do with them was his business."

However, Wrigley added, he thought Kuhn acted within his authority to protect the best interests of baseball.

Distaff Curlers Start Playoff Chase Friday

Curling playdowns leading to the national championship will begin for the ladies this weekend with action on two fronts.

The South Island playoffs of the Vancouver Island District 8, B.C. Ladies' Curling Association, will take place at the Racquet Club of Victoria, Friday through Sunday. The North Island competition will be held at Qualicum.

The south zone has 18 rinks entered and the north 16.

This year, the division of the district was changed to conform with the men's and mixed playdowns to avoid confusion as well as to balance the membership.

The Island playoffs will take the form of a double-loss competitions with four teams to advance from each zone to the Island final at Duncan, Jan. 14-16.

Victoria Curling Club heads the South Island entry list with six rinks skipped by Phyllis Bird, Flora Martin, Shirley Burley, Ruby Niemeyer, Judy Christensen and Clare Duncan.

Four rinks are entered from Playland. They are skipped by Ollie Reid, Tere Batters, Jan Sarkissian and Helen Griffin. June Boyd, Hilda Dobereiner and Blanche McCallum will represent Oak Bay; Helen Garraway and Fernande Hawkes are entered from the Racquet Club; Cheryl Halkyard and Isobelle Heller from Mill Bay, and Carmel Marshall from Esquimalt.

First draw at the Racquet Club will be held Friday night at 7 p.m. The final will take place Sunday at 10 a.m. and the B final at 2 p.m.

At Qualicum the first draw will take place at 9:30 a.m. Saturday with the A final Sunday at 12 noon and the B final at 3 p.m.

The junior women's playdowns will also be held at Duncan, Jan. 14-16. Eight teams will play a double-loss draw with the district winner qualifying for the provincial championship at Terrace, Feb. 15-20.

The Island senior women's playdowns will be held at the Alberni Valley Curling Club, Jan. 24-26 with 11 rinks entered. A double-loss draw will decide one representative for the provincial final at Trail, Feb. 15-18. Hilda Dobereiner of Oak Bay is the defending district champion.

Vikings Not Intimidated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Minnesota Vikings always have their problems when National Football League championships are at stake.

In previous Super Bowls against Kansas City Chiefs, Miami Dolphins and Pittsburgh Steelers, the Vikings have scored three touchdowns — one a game.

First it was the Chiefs' so-called Multiple Defence.

Then it was the Dolphins' No-Name Defence.

Then it was the Steelers' Steel Curtain Defence.

The Raiders have been accused of stepping beyond the bounds of legality, most particularly safety George Atkinson, who gave Pittsburgh's Lynn Swann a concussion and New England's Russ Francis a broken nose.

The Vikings seem split on just how close Oakland gets below-the-belt tactics. In fact, even the Raiders themselves don't seem to be able to make up their minds.

"We have the reputation for playing dirty, but I don't think it's deserving," said Atkinson. "Sure, we're an agrressive ball club, but you don't get to the Super Bowl, you don't go 15-1, by being a dirty ball club."

But teammate George Buehler, Oakland's starting right offensive guard, wonders just where aggression leaves off and mayhem takes over.

"The intensity of professional football verges on violence," he said. "You have to remind people, it's a game, not World War III. It's a game of strength and skill.

"There are things members of our own team have done that I don't approve of. I've done it. I think there are a lot of teams that do it.

"I don't know why we get singled out. Maybe we just do it more than others."

Atkinson insists he plays within the rules, but he also seems to lean a bit toward that anything-to-get-the-job-done view.

"I play aggressive football. In this game you're either passive or aggressive. Defensive players have to be aggressive."

Wally Hilgenberg, the Vikings' starting linebacker, seemed to exemplify Minnesota's so-what attitude when the question of Oaklnnd's cleanliness arose.

"I realize the Raiders are coming into this game with the reputation of throwing cheap shots," he said. "But that doesn't concern me. A lot of this talk is built up. We are not going to be intimidated by it.

"And if they really are cheap-shot artists, they're just going to end up hurting themselves.'

Minnesota coach Bud Grant brushes aside references to Oaklands agressive play. He is not one to fan the fires of enthusiasm.

"Atkinson made a mistake and he paid for his mistake," Grant said of the forearm to the back of Swann's helmet that kayoed the Pittsburgh receiver in the season's opening game.

Grant said he doesn't condone violence by the Vikings.

"If a guy gets thrown out of a game, the league's going to fine him and I'm going to fine him, too."

"Boy, if you could see my date for Saturday, you'd go straight out and buy a new car."

Foreman Seeks New Contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Running-back Chuck Foreman of Minnesota Vikings said Wednesday he won't play for the Vikings after Sunday's Super Bowl against Oakland Raiders unless his present contract is renegotiated.

"It's probably the wrong time to make this public, but I'm not happy with my contract and I won't play with it again," said Foreman, under contract to the Vikings through the 1979 season—his option year.

Foreman didn't specify numbers, but said he wanted a contract in "multiples" of his present pact, estimated at $85,000 a year. "I have proven myself," said Foreman. "I think I am the best and I want to be paid like it."

Foreman reported to the Vikings National Football League training camp one week late last summer after trying unsuccessfully to have the contract renegotiated.

"Nothing has changed," he said. "I came in (then) thinking it would get the ball rolling, but it hasn't. I'm not very happy with it. But the team comes ahead of me."

Foreman is one of several Vikings who lost thousands of dollars invested with former player agent John Wooten. He admitted this added to the pressure of having his contract renegotiated.

JAPAN HOMER KING SIGNS FOR $207,000

TOKYO (AP) — Sadaharu Oh, Japan's home run king, has signed his 1977 contract with the 1976 Central League champions Yomiuri Giants for a reported $207,000.

The figure would be a $30,000 raise for Japanese baseball's highest paid player. He also will receive $4,000 for coaching duties.

Last season, Oh became the second man to pass Babe Ruth's career home run figure of 714. He now has 716 and is chasing the 755 total of Hank Aaron, who passed Ruth's mark on April 8, 1974.

The 36-year-old Oh, a Chinese-Japanese, said recently he thought he could catch Aaron this year. Last year, the left-handed hitting first baseman smashed 40 home runs and drove in 123 runs, topping the Central League in both departments.

Duncan Bowlers Notch Highest Tenpin Tallies

GARNET MAH
. . . rolled 667 series

Duncan supplied the cream of the crop in both tenpin divisions during the first 11 weeks of the 14th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

The 12th week of competition started last Saturday following a two-week recess for the Christmas holidays. Winners will be announced next week.

Open to all regular league bowlers on the southern end of Vancouver Island, the contest runs for a total of 26 weeks in four categories — men's and women's fivepins, and men's and women's tenpins.

Bowlers competing on lanes in the Greater Victoria, Saltspring Island, Duncan, Lake Cowichan, Youbou and Chemainus areas are eligible to enter and the contestant rolling the highest three-game scratch series in each division is declared Bowler-of-the-Week. Each weekly winner receives a crest, has his or her picture appear in the Times and becomes eligible for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs.

Garnet Mah rolled a 667 series during the eighth week at Duncan Lanes to top male tenpinners in the 1976 portion of the contest.

In a group close behind are Gary Colby, who rolled 660 in the third week; Gary Day, who notched a 658 tally in the 10th week, and Glen Wallis, who opened the contest with a 658 series.

All three series were rolled at Mayfair Lanes.

Only two women tenpinners topped the 600 plateau.

Blues Take Lead In Tight Chase

It was a night for ties Wednesday in the South Island Big Six Hockey League.

Chemainus Blues edged into first place by playing to a 5-5 deadlock with host Lake Cowichan Lakers while Maple Leafs moved into a tie for second place with Victoria Athletics, one point behind Blues, by playing to a 6-6 draw with Juan de Fuca Merchants at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Doug Hanna scored his second goal of the game with 43 seconds left to play to give Lakers the tie. Single tallies were contributed by Rod Hunter, Marv Maier and Joe Gerich while Darryl Parrott (2), Doug Lafleur, Larry Myers and Joe Piper replied for Blues, who led 3-2 going into the final period.

Darryl Ell set the pace for Merchants with three goals and singles were contributed by Barry McLachlan, Frank Clark and Bryce Charlong. Bill Gidden (2), Bob Martin, Murray Kennett, Brent Davis and Les Bergman connected for Leafs.

Stevens Almost Make It, But . . .

Stevens Interiors came close to ending their winless streak in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League Wednesday night but, as is always the case, close wasn't good enough.

The decorators dropped a 61-59 decision to Trilec Installations, their 13th loss of the season, when Steve Pescod scored the winning basket with only one second left to play.

Pescod finished with 13 points for the winners. Bruce English led Trilec scorers with 23. Pete Simmonds scored 22 points for Stevens and Jim Cunningham added 14.

Hockey Clinic Set Saturday

The B.C. Amateur Hockey Association in conjunction with the Juan de Fuca Minor Hockey Association will hold a CAHA Level II coaching clinic at the King John Inn on Saturday between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Instructors will be Wayne Hunter, former coach of the Dutch national team and University of British Columbia Braves; Cam Kerr, a Level V coach and PCAHA co-ordinator; and Dave Andrews, BCAHA development co-ordinator.

England Easy Winner

CALCUTTA (AP) — England cruised to a 10-wicket victory over India on the fifth and final day of the second cricket test today, 22 minutes before lunch.

Chasing England's first-inning lead of 166, with England making 321 to India's poor first-inning total of 155, India was badly placed at 145 for seven wickets in its second knock at stumps Wednesday, requiring 21 more runs with three wickets in hand to make England bat again.

India accomplished that goal, thanks largely to the rearguard stand of Brijesh Patel who went in with the score at 97 for seven wickets. He made 56 in 219 minutes.

How to Cash in on the Boom in Rare Plates

NORTHBROOK, Ill.— The director of a worldwide art exchange in this Chicago suburb has announced a new, easy way to start collecting rare porcelain plates with high resale potential.

According to Roderick MacArthur, director of the Bradford Exchange, one exceptional plate priced at $25 in 1965 now brings $1,750, and another selling at $9.75 in 1969 now sells for $440.

Mr. MacArthur says, "Since many plates do not increase in value, amateurs often make serious mistakes." He offers a free report on what to look for, when to buy, what to pay and much more. It even includes special offers on eagerly-sought collector plates at modest cost.

To get your free report with no obligation, just send your name, address, and zip code to the Bradford Exchange, 2301 Bradford Place, Northbrook, Illinois 60062. A postcard will do. To be sure of receiving your free copy, please mail your request before January 15, 1977.

Wrigglesworth Leads Lakers

CHEMAINUS — Fuller Lake Flyers fired five straight goals in the third period Wednesday en route to an 11-4 victory over Lake Cowichan Bairds Trucking in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Fuller Lake Arena.

Bruce Morrow blocked 50 shots on the Lake Cowichan goal and Ken Stanton came up with 25 saves for Flyers.

CALGARY (CP) — University of Calgary Dinosaurs roared back from a first-half deficit to clinch their own basketball classic tournament Tuesday, defeating Laurentian University Voyageurs 85-81.

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds took third place with a 70-68 victory over Lakehead University.

AUSSIES GO ONE UP

MELBOURNE (Reuter) — Australia took just half an hour today to wrap up the second cricket test against Pakistan and go one up in the three-match series, taking the tourists' last three second-innings wickets for the addition of only 23 runs in the morning.

The Pakistanis, following the disastrous after-tea session Wednesday which left them at 128 for seven, were all out for 151 and lost the match by 348 runs.

Australian paceman Dennis Lille took 10 wickets in all, six for 82 runs in Pakistan's first innings and four for 53 in the second.

Cold Fronts Cause Havoc

TULSA, Okla. — A professor studying the effects of weather on human behavior says an approaching cold front causes people to be more likely to be involved in accidents.

Some of his other findings:

— Civil service test scores are higher in the spring and autumn and lower in the summer months.

— There are more crimes against people in the late summer months than at any other time of the year.

—Piecework by industrial workers reaches a peak in the autumn and spring.

LAHAINA, Maui — Veteran journalist Lowell Thomas, 84, and Marianne Munn, 49, were married in a 10-minute ceremony at the Holy Innocents Episcopal Church Wednesday.

LOS ANGELES — Comedian Freddie Prinz, co-star of the Chico and the Man television series, pleaded innocent to a misdemeanor charge of driving under the influence of drugs, court records showed Wednesday.

The popular comedian was arrested last Nov. 5 by a California highway patrol officer who noticed Prinz driving erratically on the San Diego Freeway. The officer found a two-ounce prescription bottle in Prinz' coat pocket, but it turned out the bottle contained only nose drops.

LOS ANGELES — Onslow Stevens, who often played the bad guy in motion pictures, was found dead Wednesday in a suburban Van Nuys nursing home.

Police are investigating the death of the 70-year-old actor, whose wife told them Stevens recently had fallen after being pushed by another patient.

Stevens began his film career in 1932 with Universal Studios and was best known for his roles in Peg O' My Heart, Tribute to a Bad Man, Kelly and Me, Walk a Crooked Mile, Night Has a Thousand Eyes and Lion in the Streets.

WASHINGTON — Prison life will become easier for G. Gordon Liddy, who has served nearly four years for plotting and supervising the Watergate break-in.

He was taken Wednesday from the Danbury, Conn., medium-security prison to the minimum-security facility at Allenwood, Pa.

Liddy, who will be eligible for parole in May, 1981, was convicted four years ago of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping. He received the longest sentence of anyone convicted in Watergate or Watergate-related cases — six years, plus an additional 18 months for refusing to testify under immunity to a grand jury.

PLAINS, Ga. — Billy Carter is pleading "no contest" to charges by the Georgia revenue department that beer was illegally sold at his service station on a Sunday.

Revenue officials cited Carter for the infraction, which they said occurred Dec. 12 when a part-time employee of the station sold an undercover agent an eight-pack.

POLICEMAN WINS $1M IN LOTTERY

TORONTO — A Stratford, Ont., couple has won $1 million in the Provincial lottery, the Ontartio Lottery Corp. said today.

Bud and Helene Graper, both 45, won with ticket 3187056 in the draw held Friday in Vancouver.

Graper, a 15-year veteran of the Stratford police department, said he and his wife plan to invest the bulk of their winnings.

"We have a car and a house and so on, so I don't think we'll have any big purchases," he said.

"We may take a small trip." The Grapers have two children, Douglas, 16, and Stephen, 13.

$500,000 Boodle Blown at Races

SAN FRANCISCO — A Brink's guard who vanished with $500,000 from his armored car last year spent nearly all the loot on women, night clubs, horse race bets and lavish gifts, according to columnist Herb Caen.

The San Francisco Chronicle writer today said he received a 17-page letter several days ago from Richard G. Rees, 26, who disappeared after the Feb. 12, 1976, heist.

The FBI authenticated the letter, postmarked Kansas City, Mo., from fingerprints, according to Caen. Rees told the columnist to turn the letter over to FBI agents.

Rees squandered the $500,000 on "Texas women, Fort Worth night clubs, $2,000-a-pop horse race bets, cars, trucks, motorcycles, and lavish gifts," Caen said.

Rees is now almost broke and "staying no more than two days in any town," Caen said. "A hit man hired by one of my ex-women and the FBI are both closing in on me, and I hope the FBI gets me first," the letter said.

Rees vanished after he allegedly stuffed $500,000 into a champagne box while his armored car was parked in San Mateo, Calif. He told the driver that he was delivering some champagne to a friend and would be "right back."

His last message was scrawled in the dust on his abandoned car: "Look at me. I'm rich."

It Was a Snow Job Carter Missed

By MIKE CAUSEY

WASHINGTON — Too bad President-elect Jimmy Carter wasn't in Washington Wednesday. It would have been an education for him. He would have learned about the REAL U.S. government here, something that isn't in any of the briefing books and transition papers that have been developed for him.

What happened, what the next president missed, was that it snowed in Washington.

With that snowfall, as always happens, Washington, D.C., switched from being the world capital, a city of buildings that talk ("the White House says," "the Pentagon believes," "the State Department warned,") and became a company town filled with real, flesh-and-blood people. People who have to get to work BEFORE there can be a government.

With the relatively light snow, the nation's capital became an obstacle course for 350,000 government clerks, scientists, code-breakers and policy-makers who all slide into work together. Or high officials who skinned their knuckles putting on snow tires. Of government VIPs, who, despite their rank, ran out of gas because they got stuck in traffic.

This was the real government that isn't shown in organizational tables, flow charts, zero-based budgeting or re-organization plans.

—A multi-star military man missed his usual early morning staff briefing because he had to put snow tires on his wife's car. An import model no less.

—The chairman of a major commission, who can make thousands tremble, got stuck in traffic along with hundreds of lesser-rank citizens, including some of his own workers worried about being later than the boss.

—A Senate committee staffer who used some trash from his car to give wheels traction in the snow, only to learn that the "trash" included a draft bill his boss wanted early that morning. The congressman, by the way, was late, too. The bill will be introduced later.

U.S.-Canadian Problems Face Carter Immediately

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost as soon as he takes office, President-elect Carter will face some key decisions likely to influence the United States' uneasy relationship with Canada for years to come.

The issues that will face Carter immediately range from joint air-defence needs to the disputed ownership of islands in the Arctic and off the eastern seaboard, diplomatic sources say.

Other problems have been smouldering for years and quick settlement by the new administration might provide a basis for wider agreements between the two neighbors.

U.S. defence arrangements are more extensive with Canada than with any other country and the Carter administration will have to make some early decisions on their continuation.

The two governments work together within the North American Air Defence Command (NORAD), which exercises operational control over U.S. and Canadian air-defence forces and provides early-warning information in case of air and missile attack. Extensive NORAD radar networks operate in Canada.

Officials of the two countries are due to discuss current air defence needs and costs late this month. Then a policy decision will have to be made in Washington and Ottawa about meeting these needs and sharing their costs.

Another immediate contact between Canada and the new administration is a Jan. 17 meeting in Los Angeles where negotiators will meet to put into place 200-mile fishing zones. The aim is to co-ordinate the zones in ways designed to head off possible conflicts.

The Canadian zone was set up formally Jan. 1. The U.S. zone comes into being March 1. Each is designed to protect depleted fish stocks.

But certain overlapping difficulties have arisen and, pending a settlement of certain conflicting boundary claims, U.S. trawlers have been freed from the obligation of having to be licensed to fish in the Canadian zone.

In parallel with these talks, the two governments will be trying to resolve other maritime and territorial boundary disputes. They have rival claims to major fishing grounds on Georges Bank and the Strait of Juan de Fuca between Washington state and Vancouver Island.

Additionally, the ownership of several small isles off their east coasts is in dispute. So, too, is Canada's claim to sovereignty over certain Arctic islands and the waters surrounding them where oil and gas deposits are believed to exist.

Then, during February, the Carter administration must make another key decision to avoid the possibility of a one-sided Canadian action over St. Lawrence seaway tolls.

Canada wants these tolls raised substantially and has been pressing to negotiate changes in existing agreements to remove the all-Canadian Welland canal from joint seaway toll-fixing arrangements.

Cancer Strikes Geographically

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. National Cancer Institute says more men than women and more non-whites than whites die of cancer, but striking geographic similarities in overall cancer death rates indicate a relationship between environmental factors and the disease.

The institute Wednesday released a report on U.S. cancer death rates among blacks, American Indians, Chinese and Japanese as a follow-up to a landmark 1975 study of geographic patterns of cancer among whites.

Groups such as Puerto Ricans, Mexican-Americans and Filipinos were not separately included in the new report. The first two groups generally are classed with whites and the latter with non-whites, an institute spokeswoman said.

The similarity in geographic patterns of cancer for whites and non-whites was "particularly striking" for cancers of the breast, colon, rectum and esophagus, which showed generally high rates in the north and low rates in the south, the institute said.

"Similar geographic patterns for both males and females for a particular cancer suggest that common environmental factors may contribute to causation," it said.

It said the study "further supports a relationship between environmental factors and cancer risks."

The new cancer atlas, containing color-coded death maps tracing 492,669 deaths from 1950 to 1969, found the death rate for all forms of cancer combined is slightly higher for non-whites and for males.

ALASKAN OIL STALLED

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Oil from Alaska's Arctic North Slope will start surging through the Aleyska pipeline late this summer but there still is no decision as to its distribution within the fuel-pinched United States mainland.

The stalemate was underlined Wednesday at a U.S. environmental impact hearing when a Texas official chided California for resistance to a plan to unload tankers from Valdez, Alaska, at the port of Long Beach.

California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has opposed the project as certain to increase air pollution in the smog-ridden Los Angeles basin.

FBI Gets Informer Guidelines

WASHINGTON (WP) — Attorney General Edward H. Levi has given the FBI strict new guidelines designed to reduce the bureau's use of informers and to ensure that they do not violate the law or individual rights.

The guidelines mark the latest step in Levi's drive to bring the FBI firmly under justice department control.

Congressional and press investigations have revealed that in the past the FBI used its nation-wide network of informers — the largest of any U.S. law-enforcement agency — in a frequently arbitrary and illegal manner.

FIRM TO MAKE PURE BABY FOOD

By JACK EGAN
Washington Post

NEW YORK — In a move sure to shake up the baby food business, the Baker-Beech-Nut Corp. Wednesday announced that it will no longer add salt, artificial flavors, artificial colors or flavor enhancers to its line of baby boods, and will also eliminate added sugar from all but the products that require sweetening to balance natural acids.

Such a step has long been urged by nutritionists who claim that the additives in baby foods serve only to satisfy the taste buds of adults who do the feeding, but provide no nutritional benefit to the child and can, in the case of sugar, lead to problems such as an early sweet tooth and excessive sugar consumption later on.

A number of prominent consumer advocates hailed the step. And while they tried to divorce themselves from endorsing Beech-Nut's "Naturally Good" products specifically, they nonetheless lent themselves to what appears to be a major publicity and marketing campaign.

Extradition: Canada Balks

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada has balked at accepting automatic extradition for drug offences and nations covered under the recently-strengthened 1961 United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs.

The main reason for the reticence, according to the departments of justice and of external affairs, is the announced Canadian plan to soften penalties for some cannabis crimes under legislation moving cannabis drugs marijuana, hashish and THC chemicals from the Narcotic Control Act to the less-strigent Food and Drugs Act.

Under the UN narcotic drugs convention, cannabis would continue to be lumped in with heroin and other narcotic drugs.

Therefore, cannabis crimes under the UN convention would be considered serious enough to warrant extradition from Canada to another signatory country to the UN convention, even though in Canada the same canabis crime might not be considered serious enough to warrent extradition under Canadian law.

Officials of the justice and external affairs departments say that Canada normally doesn't consider drug offences covered under the Food and Drugs Act where cannabis would be moved to be extraidtable offences, in particular those involving only simple possession or those involving summary conviction.

The officials said that Canada wants to maintain its principle of "double criminality" in deciding whether a person can be extradited to another country — that is, the offence has to be serious enough in Canada to warrant extradition, as well as being an extraditable offence in the other country.

Canada is in the process of up-grading its extradition treaties on a bilateral basis with a number of countries, with particular interest to strengthen coverage of drug offences which are not now covered in extraditicn treaties with France and Spain, for example.

But the government decided that to accept the automatic drug offence extradiction provisions of the protocol to strengthen the UN Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs would interfere with Canada's bilateral extradition treaty policies.

New Charge On Samson

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Samson, the former RCMP intelligence officer serving seven years for placing a bomb at the home of a supermarket executive, pleaded not guilty Wednesday to charges of fraud totalling $109,000.

Judge Jean-Paul Dansereau of sessions court set a preliminary hearing for Jan. 12 into the charges that Samson, 31, obtained the money by fraud from a branch of the Bank Canadian National in two separate incidents in July and August, 1975.

Samson has been unsuccessful in attempts to obtain bail pending an appeal against his jury convinction last March of placing a bomb outside the suburban home of Melvyn Dobrin, president of Steinberg's Ltd. in July, 1974.

Hijacking Joke Nets Six Months

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Frobisher Bay, N.W.T., man was sentenced to six months in jail Wednesday for joking about hijacking an Air Canada flight from Montreal to Winnipeg.

Mosha Kelly, 29, pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief when he appeared in provincial judge's court.

Kelly was on a direct flight from Montreal to Winnipeg Tuesday when the incident occurred east of Winnipeg.

Court was told he became abusive to other passengers when the bar was closed. The passengers complained to a stewardess, and she was told by Kelly that he had a gun and could hijack the aircraft.

Judge Graeme Garson said the action could have had fatal consequences, and for that reason he was giving the man the harshest possible sentence.

EVACUATION 'HYSTERIA'

TORONTO (CP) —Roger Obata, president of the Japanese-Canadian Centennial Society, says the mass evacuation and imprisonment of his people on Canada's West Coast during the Second World War was a political act in response to well-cultivated hysteria.

He told a news conference that Japanese-Canadians are celebrating their centenniial in Canada to remind themselves that they have prospered despite "the black cloud of our wartime mistreatment."

Japanese-Canadians survived without becoming bitter and 30 years later "we feel we have proved that we are as Canadian as anyone, with a vengence."

Ontario's French Seek PQ Links

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Representatives of Ontario's 700,000 French-speaking citizens are hoping to meet Premier Rene Levesque soon to find out how his government plans to deal with Francophone minorities outside Quebec.

Remi Beauregard, secretary-general of French-Canadian Association of Ontario, says a letter will be sent next week requesting a meeting with the new Quebec premier and some of his ministers.

"We have nothing precise to ask of Mr. Levesque at this time," Beauregard said in an interview yesterday," and we just want to see what links the Parti Quebecois government will have with groups like ours."

It was recognized that the new PQ government had its hands full at this time, so the letter would simply ask for a meeting "sometime in 1977."

The association hoped to remind Levesque that French-speaking minorities outside of Quebec looked to that province for support in the cultural and linquistic fields.

Beauregard said he was uncertain as to the attitude of the pro-independence PQ government and noted that successive Quebec governments had "neglected" French-language minorities outside Quebec since the days of Daniel Johnson administration in the 1960s.

He repeated his association's contention that Ontario's Francophone minority could be seen as an asset to Quebec in that it provided a large market for Quebec's cultural output.

He said Quebec was neglecting a good potential market for such things as films, records and books.

By exploiting such market possibilities, he said, Quebec could help itself while, at the same time, providing cultural support to Ontario's French-speaking minority.

Shortly after the Nov. 15 election of the Parti Quebecois, Beauregard was quoted as saying he hoped to establish contact with the new government to see what it meant for Franco-Ontarians.

There had been no opportunity to do this yet, he said yesterday, and the letter to Levesque would be the first formal step.

To this point, he said, the reaction of Franco-Ontarians to the PQ victory had been mixed — "it depends on whom you talk to."

However, it might be said that it provoked "some feelings of pride" among the younger generation. It set an example of action in defence of the development of the French culture in Canada.

However, Beauregard stressed that minority groups like the Franco-Ontarians had to "put our hopes in ourselves" for cultural survival and development.

It was not a wise course to pin one's hopes exclusively on any government, including that of Quebec — "government's change too quickly."

More Data Sought on Kitimat Pipe

OTTAWA (FP) — Kitimat Pipe Line Ltd. of Calgary has been asked for additional information on its proposed crude oil pipeline across western Canada to the United States — in particular, more on its benefit to Canada — before the National Energy Board will proceed with a public hearing.

Included is a request to provide details on the Canadian equity ownership of the six participating companies in the Kitimat project to initially carry 300,000 barrels a day of Alaskan oil from Kitimat, to refineries in the U.S. Mid-West now dependent on dwindling supplies of Canadian crude oil exports.

The NEB also wants to know which Canadian refineries could stand to benefit from the pipeline by getting new access to offshore crude oil supplies and the "basis on which each of the particular refineries would [illegible] a potential benefit."

In the first [illegible] expected series of "deficiency" letters to the Kitimat group, the NEB says it wants a justification of the pipe size selected for the project — 30 inches in diamater for most of the route, with 36-inch pipe to be used in certain mountinous terrain in B.C. to minimize later disturbance in the event of pipeline expansion.

The NEB says it wants details of the finalized route in the areas of Jasper National Park (where the federal department of Indian and Northern Affairs has indicated it might block passage of the new pipeline, even over an existing right-of-way for another pipeline) and Edmonton; details on the possible use of 50 miles of the Trans Mountain Pipe Line of Vancouver system near Hinton, Alta., west of Edmonton; names of all Indian reserves, forest reserves and provincial or federal parks to be affected by the pipeline, and details on any pending proposals to use existing rights-of-way of the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, Pacific Northern Gas Ltd., and Trans Mountain.

Tough Tiffin, Tea Fans Price of Brew to Climb

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The price of coffee is soaring and there will soon be an increase in tea prices.

David Twentyman, tea-buyer for Nabob Foods in Vancouver, said in an interview Wednesday the price of raw tea has gone up an average of eight to 10 per cent to a high of 15 per cent in some categories.

He said wholesale prices ranging from $1.10 to $2.05 a pound depending on quality will be increased accordingly in the next few days.

Twentyman said the increases result from changes in worldwide supply and demand for the product, particularly in India which is not only the world's major tea producer but also the largest consumer.

He said price increases last year averaged eight to 10 per cent and added they were "miniscule" compared to the spectacular jump in the price of coffee which is now hovering at the $3 a pound mark wholesale.

Twentyman said he regards tea as "still the best bargain hot drink of all" with a cup of tea costing about one cent, five to six times less than a cup of coffee.

"It's been our experience in previous years when there has been an increase in the price of coffee that the demand for tea doesn't increase.

"It appears coffee drinkers just won't make the switch — they'll turn to beer, cocoa, milk, anything but tea."

Meanwhile coffee prices continue to climb. Wholesale prices in Victoria this week have ranged from $2.38 to $2.95 a pound depending on the freshness of the stock. One industry spokesman predicts the price at year end will be around $4 a pound.

Although consumer groups in the United States are attempting to organize coffee boycotts, similar action is not expected in Canada, a spokesman for the Consumers Association of Canada said.

Mrs. Ada Brown, of West Vancouver, told The Times her organization does not favor boycotts "because they are usually not in the best interests of the consumers.

"All they do is disrupt the market place and often the people most harmed are not the ones who have caused the problem in the first place," she said.

Mrs. Brown said she feels prediction of coffee costing $4 or $5 a pound are "rather alarmist."

"All the publicity about the prices going up has attracted more and more speculators into the coffee futures market, driving up the prices even more."

She said she is satisifed the problem is simply one of supply.

"The fact of the matter is Brazil did have a frost, Angola did have a war and Colombia had floods. It's all reduced coffee production. There are fewer coffee beans around and the price is going up. It's a natural economic reaction."

"If consumers are smart they will switch over to tea or something else."

She warned against hoarding saying this will force coffee prices up even more.

In Victoria coffee sales are reported mixed. Health stores report no noticeable change in business either up or down and a spokesman for Murchie's Tea & Coffee said sales are about the same level as always although Monday was a busier than normal day.

BUCHANAN

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

A spokesman for the Pacific area search and rescue operation has struck back at the system's detractors saying the coverage on the West Coast is equal to that in the east.

Herb Buchanan, regional director, Canadian Coast Guard, said Wednesday in an interview from Vancouver the vessel requirements for both coasts are different.

In the west, most of the marine incidents are in sheltered waters and involve pleasure craft while on the east coast most of the problems occur 200 miles offshore incolving large fish boats, tank s or freighters.

"We have just as good coverage as the East Coast as far as I'm concerned," he said. "We have different types of boats because our requirements are different."

He was responding to charges that search and rescue funds are being used to build a sauna and gymnasium in Ottawa and that facilities on the west coast are "a first-class mess."

The charges were levelled Wednesday by Dr. Robert Somerville of Campbell River, a coast guard volunteer agent and perennial critic of search and rescue facilities.

He said $1 million of a $30 to $40 million allotment for search and rescue on both coasts was used to put a sauna and gymnasium in a ministry of transport department building in Ottawa.

Buchanan said there was no truth to the allegation as the funds referred to have been tagged for search and rescue purposes and "not even a pencil" could be bought with the money for use elsewhere.

He also corrected Somerville's assertion that one of the three 95-foot cutters on the west coast is ineffective and the other two need to be replaced.

Somerville said two of the Rider's four engines are not operational resulting in a loss of speed and effectiveness.

Buchanan said two of the Rider's engines were taken out because it was shown that with only two engines plus a change in the pitch of the propeller, there was a 40 per cent saving on fuel.

The move only reduced the speed by a knot and a quarter, he added, and that was only in good weather when the cutter could run at top speed.

He said both the Racer and the Ready have the same number of engines and they will each be losing two as well.

Buchanan said all three cutters are only 12 years old and although they do need some repair occasionally they certainly do not have to be replaced.

However, he added, that about a year ago he asked if the West Coast could have five 65-foot cutters instead of the three 95-foot vessels.

The federal government shot down the plan saying it did not want to spend the money to build the extra cutters.

Somerville also said government austerity programs had eliminated a promised 65-foot cutter for Prince Rupert.

However, Buchanan said it was announced in Vancouver last month that the cutter will be provided for Prince Rupert sometime in the next fiscal year which begins April 1.

Buchanan also answered another of Somerville's concerns, that there is a desperate need for more rescue personnel to man the Labrador helicopters at Comox on weekends.

Buchanan said the recent injection of search and rescue funds includes provision for operating the helicopters 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Although admitting he didn't know all the details of the new program he said it also included upgrading the helicopters making them better for night flying.

Buchanan also said there will be another hovercraft for the west coast soon and the one working out of Delta will operate on a 24-hour basis rather than 16 hours as it has in the past.

Somerville has also said the East Coast was being favored in that it was getting two new helicopters immediately while the west wouldn't get one for more than two years.

Buchanan said five former army helicopters are being brought out of mothballs and refitted for resuce work. That process, he said will take about two and a half years.

Civic Staff Asks Binding Arbitration

City Hall inside workers are proposing binding arbitration as a means of resolving any impasse that develops during upcoming negotiations with the city.

The members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 388, agreed on the proposal at a meeting Wednesday.

Rick Doyle, acting president of the local, said today the employees don't believe in strikes and lockouts as a method of settling disputes.

"We feel they are obsolete," he said. "There has to be another way to resolve disputes."

Doyle said the membership hopes the city will accept the binding arbitration concept when negotiations for a new contract begin later this month.

He said it became clear during the strike-lockout two years ago that the inside workers don't have much clout and a strike by the employees is not too effective.

The members also voted to accept the resignation of local president Dennis Burke and to stick with their decision to opt out of the CUPE joint area bargaining concept.

Burke resigned last month in protest over the members' decision to bargain directly with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association.

Doyle said there was a motion for Local 388 to reconsider its decision on joint bargaining but it was defeated after a brief discussion.

He said he thinks negotiations with the GVLRA will begin sometime after Jan. 12, the date set for the start of talks between the municipal employers and seven other locals on the CUPE Joint Negotiating Committee.

Meanwhile, CUPE local 1978 of the Capital Region District, has voted to join the joint negotiating committee.

Local president Daryl Anderson said the members made the decision at a meeting Tuesday night when they also expressed disappointment at Local 388's decision to go it alone.

"It is fairly obvious that they have failed to grasp the issues at hand," Anderson said.

Campbell Re-elected By Region

Jim Campbell of Saturna Island was re-elected by acclamation Wednesday to his fifth consecutive term as chairman of the Capital Region Board.

Campbell thanked the board for "continuing me in this very agreeable and interesting office."

Victoria alderman Murray Glazier was elected without opposition as alternate chairman. He succeeds former Victoria alderman and regional director Alf Hood.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young was re-elected by acclamation chairman of the regional hospital board — a position he has held since 1972.

Directors on the hospital board are the same as those on the regional board. Meetings are held on the same day in the same place.

He was first elected in 1971 and became chairman in 1973, a position he has not since relinquished.

Both Campbell's director term and chairmanship expire at the end of 1977. He said he has not yet decided whether he will seek re-election.

Two Jailed On Drug Charges

Two Victoria men were sentenced by Judge Montague Drake in county court today to two years less a day in jail on two counts of possession of pethidine for the purpose of trafficking.

William Paul Murray, 29, who spent three months in custody awaiting disposition of this case, will serve his sentence concurrently with another drug sentence of two years less a day which began in January, 1976.

Donald William Thomson, 43, has spent 15 months in custody awaiting disposition of his case.

Jail sentences on both counts were made concurrent by Judge Drake who said he was taking into account time served awaiting this case.

Crown counsel Gordon MacDonald said both men have lengthy criminal records involving theft and drug offences and have been "deeply involved in the use of narcotics and in this case, possession for the purpose of distribution."

Board Awards $119,500 To Couple

An arbitration board has awarded a View Royal man and his wife $119,500 for their expropriated property at Trans-Canada Highway between Helmcken and Chancellor.

The amount is $24,500 higher than offered for the land by the provincial highways department, which must pay the cost of the arbitration.

Arbiters David Lisson, Eric Charman and Ronald Campion accepted the higher valuation of the property as prepared by Victoria realtor Philip G. Jackson, and based upon the developmental value of the land.

The site is occupied by a pre-mix and pre-cast concrete business, W. and N. Trace Ltd., 108 Helmcken, and the owners were Walter C. and Ada M. Trace at the time of the expropriation by the highways department.

The appraisals of two other professionals, A. T. Ray Jones and David Coell, on behalf of the department was rejected by the board.

But in their decision, after a week's hearing, the arbiters said their award would have been $221,904 if they had not accepted the department's argument regarding illegal use of the property for industrial purposes.

This would have included compensation for setting up a new manufacturing plant at another location and the value of the existing plant.

In choosing the developmental approach, the board said the location of the property and general market activity was considered.

Trace had been 29 years in the location in his 40 years in the construction supply business in Victoria.

The property was eminently suited to his use, Trace argued, both for its layout and its central location in the market area he supplied, enabling him to provide custom batches of pre-mix concrete $8 a yard cheaper than his competitors.

Among his customers was the provincial government.

AirWest Seeks Extra Flights

Victoria's legal committee today recommended qualified city support for an AirWest Airlines Ltd. bid to increase its Victoria-Vancouver service — provided it doesn't apply to harbor-to-harbor operations.

Company spokesmen who attended the meeting said they are prepared to give that assurance.

AirWest president Norman Gold said the firm wants an amendment to its licence to allow it to operate a summer schedule on a year-round basis.

The company is seeking city support for its application to the Air Transport Committee in Ottawa. A similar application from AirWest was turned down a year ago by the ATC.

Because float planes cannot operate in safety after dark, the present winter schedule is curtailed in the late afternoon, he said.

AirWest proposes to extend the schedule by using wheeled Twin Otters on the run from Victoria airport to Vancouver airpirt during darkness hours.

Gold said the "downtown concept" will allow passengers to board a 19 passenger bus for the airport at the downtown Victoria terminal, purchase a ticket and proceed to downtown Vancouver by the same means.

"It would be a complete commuter downtown service 12 hours a day, 52 weeks a year," he said.

Another advantage would be that Victoria travellers bound for destinations in the B.C. interior would be able to depart much earlier than at present, because AirWest would provide a 5:45 or 6 a.m. service.

In such respects, he said, there is a "slight deficiency" in the service offered by Air Canada and Pacific Western Airlines.

Mayor Mike Young said council would have no objection to the company supplementing the service on an airport-to-airport basis, but would oppose any bid to step up harbor flights.

For several years the city has voiced concern about the safety of float plane traffic in the busy inner harbor.

Ald. Ron McKenzie, referring to the recent ditching of a Twin Otter near Victoria, asked the AirWest representatives if they are "happy" with the safety situation.

Groth said AirWest had carried 90,000 passengers last year between Victoria and Vancouver harbor and had more than five million passenger miles without a fatality.

SCHIBLI FACES FIGHT

There were five nominations for the post at a meeting Wednesday night, including vice-president Linda Baker, of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

The other nominees are Schibli, of the Carpenters' union, Jim Walker, of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Jack Groves, of the International Woodworkers of America and Larry Tickner, of the carpenters' union.

Schibli was returned last year by acclamation to a second one-year term as president.

Other nominations can be made at the next council meeting, Jan. 19, when elections will be held.

Larry Ryan, a Victoria alderman appointed this week to head the city's labor relations and public works committee, was unopposed as the nominee for secretary-treasurer, a post he has held for nine years.

New Computer Installed

First tangible sign of B.C. Systems Corp. — a new Crown company formed to handle computer work — appeared just before Christmas at University of Victoria.

Technicians and programmers are spending the mid-session break installing and testing a new IBM 370-158 computer that temporarily replaces the previous university computer and adds capacity that will be used by the provincial government.

The systems corporation, which still awaits enabling legislation at the spring sitting of the legislature, assumes all computer operations of the government previously under the wing of the department of transport and communications.

In an unusual arrangement with the university, the systems corporation will share the larger computer at a ratio of about 60-40, and be responsible for approximately the same proportion of its rental cost. The move fills a void that would otherwise have occurred while the university awaits delivery of a new IBM 370-148.

Dave Stothard, manager of UVic computer services, said the new machine is large enough to do all work associated with university teaching and research, with enough capacity left to do some commercial work and satisfy requirements of government departments.

The arrangement will be reviewed in August.

Stothard said sharing a single computer installation allows the systems corporation to start operation without the need of a new building and facilities until a broader view of requirements is obtained.

The university has had a number of different generations of computer since the early 1960s, the most recent an IBM 145.

Remove Decorations by Tonight

elizabeth forbes

There are two schools of thought about the length of time Yuletide decorations should be left in place. And I have friends who argue for one or the other with equal determination.

Some say those decorations should be taken down and packed away just as soon as the new year is in.

Others insist that if you are to have good luck in a new year, then the decorations must be left up for a reasonable length of time after Christmas. Remembering, however, they must be down by Twelfth Night.

Young adults faced with this last suggestion will frequently grin and tell you it's nonsense.

Nonsense it may be, but I'll wager there's been a grand clean-up in many homes, yesterday and today.

The last of the holiday greens have come down, pine and fir needles have been swept up, tinsel, baubles, and strings of lights put away.

Rooms have been aired and floors dusted.

Why? Because this is Twelfth Night; And I would suggest that no one with a speck of superstition (perhaps I should call it sentiment or imagination) in their make-up, will have Yuletide decorations of any sort in their home after the stroke of 12 tonight.

In many homes, as an added good omen for the days ahead, everything will be clean and shining. No dust left over from the old year.

Where possible the ritual will also have included burning of the tree, the cedar boughs and the dried-up holly, to bring more luck into the home.

Count back over the days and you will see that January six brings the twelfth night ater Christmas. Twelfth-tide it is sometimes called.

To most people however, it is the Eve of Epiphany.

In many churches it heralds the beginning of a time that commemorates the visit of the Magi to Bethlehem to see and worship the child Jesus.

In others it marks the appearance of the star to the Magi or the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles.

The word Epiphany itself means "an appearance."

How, or why, it became a part of a traditional ceremony in our homes, no one has been able to tell me.

Some say merely that it goes back a long way into our past. Others point to the significance in having our homes clean and trim to meet the good that will come in the days up ahead.

Sentimentalists simply say it's "for luck." Young adults murmur "superstition . . . superstition," while, at the same time, adhering to the tradition.

No matter what, now the time is here, I imagine that most of us have conformed to custom and cleaned house for 1977.

Postscript—In my thinking cleaning house does not mean only the physical effort of taking down Yuletide decorations and sweeping and dusting.

In more serious vein it means coming to grips with ourselves, cleaning out all the negative attitudes and pessimistic thinking we have acquired over a period of 12 months and replacing them with vision and faith.

Vision allows us to clearly see the dream, the plan. Faith laughs at what we tend to think is the impossible and gets the job done.

Therefore if we have vision and faith we will be better able to understand and to help with the proplems of others.

This old Chinese proverb tells what I am trying to say much more clearly and poetically:

"If there is righteousness in the heart,
There will be beauty in the character;
If there is beauty in the character,
There will be harmony in the home;
If there is harmony in the home,
There will be order in the nation;
If there is order in the nation,
There will be peace in the world."

Even though an adolescent may not feel sick and is not sick, if any tuberculosis germs are in his body, he might get sick.

This is the gist of the message in the 8-page illustrated folder Get Ready. It urges young people to undergo a tuberculin skin test by a doctor or nurse and explains how this simple and painless procedure is done.

Most adolescents don't carry TB germs. However, if the test reveals the presence of any such germs, the doctor will probably take X-rays or prescribe a medicine.

A small 16-page illustrated booklet This is Mr. TB Germ explains in a few words, with the help of simple sketches, how a TB germ may get into your lungs after a sick person near you has sneezed or coughed it up.

For either publication contact your local Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association. The address is in your telephone book.

Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Home-Made Stew Great in Winter

Not only is it a hearty, nutritious meal, but stew is also economical, making the most of leftovers, inexpensive fresh vegetables (which the kids will eat without any persuasion), and thrifty cuts of meat, poultry or fish.

If you happen to be a vegetarian, you can still enjoy a stew. Simply flavour with bouillon, toss in plenty of vegetables, then add beans, and dried legumes for supplementary proteins.

The most popular stews, though, are made with meat, and fall into two broad categories: brown stews, which are thickened by the addition of flour, and white English stews which are thickened only by the addition of potatoes.

It seems everyone has a special recipe for stew, but it's fun to try new recipes from time to time, or simply devise imaginative variations.

For example, if you always make stew with beef, experiment with other meats such as pork, lamb or veal — or even a mixture of poultry and meats. Add a little wine or cooking sherry, different seasonings, different vegetables, or a dash of Worcestershire sauce.

Veal Saute with Red and Green Peppers

Flour
Salt and freshly ground pepper
¼ cup olive oil
½ cup, chopped green onions
2 green peppers, cut in thin strips
1 Red pepper, cut in thin strips
1 tsp., thyme
1 cup white wine or vermouth (or 1 cup water with lemon juice and chicken bouillon cube)
12 small white onions or 4 small brown onions quartered
1 cup fresh mushrooms
1 Tbsp., fresh chopped parsley

Dredge veal pieces in flour, salt and pepper and brown in hot olive oil. Add green onions, green and red peppers, saute. Add ½ cup of wine or stock, thyme and onions. Cover and simmer for 45 minutes, adding more liquid if necessary. Add another ½ cup of wine or stock and simmer another 10 mihutes. If not sufficiently thick, add a flour and butterball (kneaded together) and simmer again.

FISH STEW

2 medium onions, chopped
2 stalks celery, chopped
1 green pepper chopped
1 whole leek, well washed and white portion chopped
2 tbsp. butter
½ tsp., thyme
½ tsp., fresh chopped dill
Water
2 medium potatoes, chopped
1 can baby clams
1 lb. fresh fish fillets (Sole-Haddock-Cod)
½ tsp., paprika
1 cup of fresh mushrooms
2 tbsp., fresh parsley, chopped
½ tsp. ground nutmeg
Salt and pepper (to taste)
1 cup milk

In a heavy large stew pot, saute onions, celery, green pepper and leek in 2 tbsp., butter until slightly tender. Add thyme, dill bouquet garni, potatoes and just cover bottom with water. Set to boil and simmer covered until vegetables are tender. Add clams in their juice and heat thoroughly (this is salty, but heretofar, no salt has been added). Add nutmeg and season to taste and remove bouquet garni.

Sprinkle dry fish fillets with paprika — roll up and stay with toothpicks. Place gently on top of stew and cover to simmer for 10 minutes. Add 1 cup of milk and heat thoroughly.

Meanwhile — saute mushrooms in 1 tbsp. butter and sprinkle with freshly chopped parsley.

Ladle stew into large flat soup bowls and gently place a fish roll in each (removing toothpicks.) Top with parsleyed mushrooms. Pass garlic bread.

Split Winnings

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will take time to give me your opinion on a problem that involves two partners in a small business.

Partner A bought a $100 ticket to a charity ball with company funds, a normal procedure. The day of the ball, partner A asked partner B if he would like to use the ticket. Partner B said no. Partner A offered it to others. No takers. At the last minute partner A decided to go himself.

The ticket was the winning number. It won $4,000!

Partner A insists the money is his. Partner B thinks it should be split 50-50. What do you think?—P.R.

DEAR P.R.: If partner A, with the knowledge and consent of partner B, invested company funds in an oil well, and it brought in a million-dollar gusher, wouldn't partner B be entitled to half the proceeds? The same principle applies.

DEAR ABBY: When I go to my doctor for my blood pressure checkup, he always checks my breasts for cancer as well. We both belong to the same country club. I wonder if he thinks he is doing me a favor, or if he is doing himself one.

As far as I know, there is no cancer in my family, and I read somewhere that people with high blood pressure don't usually have cancer.

Do you think I should change doctors?—ANXIOUS

DEAR ANXIOUS: He is doing YOU a favor, not himself. He sounds like a very competent physician, but if the fact that you see him socially inhibits you, you'd be wise to change country clubs!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who agreed to babysit for a neighbor. I know they don't have much money, so I charged only 50 cents an hour. Everything was fine until she went out the door and said, "I left a few dishes in the sink. Would you mind doing them up? We're bringing home company."

Well, I did up the dishes, and I really didn't mind. A few nights later, she said, "You know how to run a washing machine, don't you? Well, just throw in these towels and a few little odds and ends, will you?" Then she ran out the door. (I did three loads of laundry that evening.)

Now, it's become a regular thing. She always leaves the supper dishes in the sink for me to do, and I'm doing most of her laundry. Besides that, I have her three children to get supper for and put to bed. And all for 50 cents a hour. Is this fair? And how can I tell her I think she's taking advantage of me?—SHY

DEAR SHY: Of course it's not fair. And you can tell her that, just as you've told me. You were hired as a sitter, not a housekeeper.

DEAR ABBY: I am so mad at myself, I don't know what else to do, so I'm writing to Dear Abby!

I let an eight-year-old con artist (my son) talk me into buying him a dog! He cried and begged and promised to take care of it, so like a fool I gave in.

For exactly one week the kid "took care" of his dog. He even got up early to take the dog out. Well, the novelty soon wore off, and now guess who's taking care of the dog? The kid does the dog a favor and plays with it (in the house) for maybe 10 minutes.

I guess I want to tell other parents that just because a kid begs for a dog doesn't mean he really wants it.

I wish there was a "rent-a-dog" outfit in business somewhere. I'd have rented this pooch first to find out if I really wanted to buy him.—GROWLING MAD.

DEAR GROWLING: Thanks for the tip. Put your kid in the doghouse and try to find a good home for the pooch.

Aspic Tricky but Worth the Trouble

Although aspic dishes are a trifle tricky to handle, they can definitely be worth the trouble. Properly prepared, they add a certain glitter to an occasion. We recently devised an assortment of seafood dishes — appetizers all — dressed up with aspic coatings. The basi cfoods are crab meat, mussels and clams. The inspiration for the aspic-coated clams on the half shell comes, incidentally, from the new and much-heralded Windows on the World restaurant atop the World Trade Center. The clams are included among the restaurant's appetizers.

For every cup of aspic to be used, in a saucepan combine one cup of well-seasoned stock or broth with one envelope of unflavored geatin, one egg white, beaten until frothy, and one crushed egg shell. Beat with a whisk and place over low heat. Let simmer, without stirring, about 30 seconds.

Ideally, the stock or broth to be used in making an aspic coating should derive from the same or a related source as the food to be coated. For instance, chicken broth should be used to coat a chicken dish, fish stock for a fish dish, clam broth for a clam dish and so on.

On the other hand, fish stock could be used for any fish or seafood dish, and it will produce a clearer aspic than, for example, clam or mussel broth. Chicken aspic is a fairly neutral broth and could be used on most meat dishes and, failing all else, woud be acceptable for fish and seafood dishes.

Remove the aspic from the heat and strain it through a fine sieve, preferably one lined with a clean linen napkin that has been soaked in cold water and wrung out. Let cool to room temperature and use as indicated in "To use an aspic as garnish."

Once the aspic is made, let it cool to room temperature. This process may be hastened by placing the aspic in the refrigerator for a brief period. The foods to be coated with aspic should be chilled in the refrigerator or briefly in the freezer. The aspic when applied must be cool but still liquid.

Spoon or brush a little of the aspic onto the surface to be coated and refrigerate. When that layer sets, apply another coating and so on until the foods are well coated. Should the aspic set at any point, it may be reheated by placing the utensil that holds it in a basin of warm or even hot water just until the aspic becomes liquid again.

Leftover aspic may be held for several days in the refrigerator and liquefied before using it for another purpose.

12 raw littleneck clams
½ to 1 cup aspic made with fish broth, fresh or bottled clam juice or chicken broth (see instructions for "To make a clear aspic")
Salt
Tabasco sauce
Juice of half a lemon
Freshly ground pepper
¼ cup finely chopped scallion.

1. Open the clams or have them opened. Loosen the clams totally and return each clam to the bottom shell. Discard the top shells. Refrigerate.

2. Meanwhile, prepare an aspic, adding salt, Tabasco sauce to taste and the juice of half a lemon to the broth before making the aspic.

3. Sprinkle each clam with pepper and about one teaspoon of finely chopped scallion. Coat the clams with aspic, following the instructions for "to use an aspic as garnish." Chilled leftover aspic may be chopped and added as a further garnish around the stuffed clams.

STUFFED MUSSELS WITH ASPIC

2 pounds (one quart) well-scrubbed mussels
¼ cup thinly sliced onion
4 sprigs fresh parsley
½ cup dry white wine
Freshly ground pepper
1 cup aspic made with mussel liquid (see recipe for "To make a clear aspic")
3 stems fresh tarragon, coarsely chopped, optional. One-third cup freshly chopped tarragon leaves, optional.

1. Place the mussels in a kettle and add the onion, parsley, wine and pepper. Cover. Bring to the boil and steam about five minutes or longer, until the mussels open.

2. Strain, but reserve both the mussels and liquid. When mussels are cool enough to handle, take the meat from the shell. Arrange one mussel in each bottom shell. Discard the top shells. Cover the mussels on the half shell with plastic wrap and refrigerate.

3. Prepare an aspic with the mussel liquid, adding enough water to make a cup of liquid. If a tarragon flavor is desired, add the chopped stems to the saucepan while making the aspic. Strain.

4. Sprinkle each mussel with about half a teaspoon of chopped tarragon leaves. Coat the stuffed mussels with aspic following the instructions for "To use an aspic as garnish."

Yield: Forty or more mussels, depending on size.

CRAB-STUFFED CLAM SHELLS WITH ASPIC

12 or more small or medium clean clam shells, purchased or cleaned at home
½ pound crab meat
½ cup mayonnaise, preferably homemade
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ cup finely chopped heart of celery
1 tablespoon chopped chives
2 teaspoons well-drained capers
Tabasco sauce
Salt and freshly ground pepper
½ to 1 cup aspic made with fresh fish broth, bottled clam broth or chicken broth (see instructions for "To make a clear aspic").

1. If the clam shells are to be cleaned at home, cover with water and bring to the boil. Simmer 10 minutes and drain. When cool, use a knife and scrape them clean. Rinse and dry.

2. Combine the crab meat, mayonnaise, lemon juice, celery, chives, capers, Tabasco sauce to taste and salt and pepper to taste. Blend. Stuff the claim shells with the mixture. Chill.

3. Coat the crab-meat filling with aspic, following the instructions for "To use an aspic as garnish." Chilled leftover aspic may be chopped and added as a further garnish around the stuffed shells.

Yield: Twelve or more crab-stuffed shells.

Nutrition

QUESTION: If a turkey is cooked at 180 degrees F overnight is it considered safe to eat?

ANSWER: Health and Welfare Canada does not recommend this method for cooking turkeys. The internal temperature of the bird must reach 140 degrees F to be considered safe and there is the possibility that with a low oven temperature this would not occur.

QUESTION: Is the dark meat of poultry more nutritious than the light?

ANSWER: Little difference exists between the nutritive values of white and dark meat. White meat is slightly lower in fat, while dark meat contains a little more riboflavin and iron, although less niacin. Indulge your preference!

QUESTION: What is the best method for whipping evaporated milk? Several recipes add an ingredient such as lemon juice or vinegar in the process of whipping. Is there a reason for this, other than the flavor which these ingredients might impart to the product?

ANSWER: Evaporated milk can be whipped into a very nice foam if the correct procedure is followed carefully. Chill the milk in the freezer to approximately 32 degrees F. The milk should be chilled in the bowl in which it is to be whipped. Leave the milk in the freezer until fine ice crystals form in the milk around the edge of the bowl. The beaters to be used for whipping also should be chilled. When the milk is whipped, add two tablespoons of lemon juice or vinegar for each cup of milk. The acid increases the stability of the whipped product.

This Came to Light In Maureen's Yard

Mary Moore

Cecile's son belongs to Maureen's dog obedience class and brought along goodies to a scheduled session in Maureen's yard.

Maureen never misses a good thing when she tastes it so asked Cecile for her recipe for Lemon Squares. She tested them, brought a sample to me and we decided you would enjoy it.

CECILE'S LEMON SQUARES

Base:
2 c. unsifted all-purpose flour
½ c. unsifted icing sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 c. margarine (room temperature)

Filling:
4 large eggs
2 c. granulated sugar
One-third c. lemon juice
¼ c. all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking powder

To make the base, in a bowl stir together flour, icing sugar and salt. Cream in margarine until mixture blends into a pliable dough. (Maureen used her fingers.) Pat evenly into bottom of a buttered 9x13" pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15 minutes. Let stand at room temperature 5 minutes.

Meanwhile prepare filling by beating together all filling ingredients until smooth, scraping fown the sides of bowl once or twice. Pour over slightly cooled base. Return to oven immediately and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 to 25 minutes, until pale gold on top. Remove from oven, sprinkle generously with icing sugar (or desiccated coconut) and let cool completely in pan on cake rack. Cut into squares. Store in tightly covered container.

SUGAR 'N SPICE MUFFINS

1¾ c. unsifted all-purpose flour
1½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. nutmeg
One-third cup oil
¾ c. granulated sugar (first amount)
1 egg
¾ c. milk
½ c. melted butter or margarine
¾ c. sugar (second amount)
1 tsp. cinnamon

In a bowl combine flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg.

In another bowl combine thoroughly the oil, sugar, egg and milk. Add to dry ingredients and stir only to combine.

Fill 12 greased large muffin tins 2-3 full of batter. (Do not use paper cup liners for these.) Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 20 to 25 minutes. As soon as they are done, tip muffin tins over, give a tap and knock muffins out. Melt butter or margarine in small saucepan but do not overheat. While hot, dip each muffin in the melted butter to coat completely and then roll in a mixture of the ¾ cup sugar and cinnamon and place upright on serving plate. At their best served warm of course. NOTE When you taste these muffins you will realize that the dough is similar to cake doughnut dough.

Flower Fashion

NEW YORK (CP) — Paris is having a fling with Fantasy accessories that will influence the way women put together separates. The theme is flowers. Covering the head, circling the neck, wrapped at the waist, worn under hats, over wrapped heads or slung across the torso are leis, garlands of leaves in vermeil, bunches of paper flowers and even plastic flowers.

indoor gardens

By Lynn and Joel Rapp

Dear Lynn and Joel: Three weeks ago my two-year-old bent the stem on one of my Philodendron Rubrums. It was a new leaf and I was sick because it just dropped. My husband suggested that I "splint it," so I took a popsicle stick and some cellophane tape and taped it to the stem. Today I removed the splint and the leaf didn't droop. I was so thrilled I thought I'd let you know. Can plants really heal themselves?—M.C.

Dear M.C.: That's a very esoteric question. Did the plant heal itself? Did you heal it through quick, plant-medical action? Did some outside energy force join with you and help? Probably the best answer can be found by comparing your "treatment" to the process of "grafting" or other forms of propagation where two separate plants are joined together. (This process is often used on cacti. You've all seen those wonderful little grafted cacti — a long, ordinary green stem with either a different, colorful variety grafted on top or other green cacti grafted on to form unusual patterns. Obviously, since the leaf was only bent, not completely broken, your splinting process gave the tissues strength to mend. If, however, it had broken off completely, and unless you were entirely familiar with the highly complicated grafting techniques, All the King's Horses and All the King's Men couldn't have put your philodendron back together again.

HELP FOR YOUR AILING HOUSE

The January issue of Reader's Digest presents a unique two-article feature that shows you how to keep your housing costs to a minimum. The first, "Danger Signals You Should Watch", could help save you thousands of dollars in home repairs. Sometimes it's just a matter of being able to tell the difference between a job that requires major surgery from a job that needs only a little first aid. The second article, "How to Beat Heat Loss", shows you how you can save as much as 50% on your home heating costs. Don't miss HELP FOR YOUR AILING HOUSE — must-reading for every Canadian home owner. And it's just one of more than 34 articles and features in the January issue of Reader's Digest. At your newsstand today!

X-Ray Hazardous In Hair Removal

For years I've been fighting the battle of hair on my upper lip. I've bleached and tweezed and tweezed and bleached. Now I hear that there are special X-ray treatments which can get rid of the problem once and for all. Where can I have this done? — Mrs. T. W., Calif.

Dear Mrs. W.:

Many people, in desperation, often shift from reliable forms of treatment to dangerous ones. The use of X-rays as a depilatory is particularly hazardous.

About 40 years ago, before the real dangers of such X-ray treatments were recognized, it was a common practice for relatively untrained technicians to use X-rays for this purpose. Unfortunately, it took almost 30 years before skin cancers of the face became apparent and were traced to those original X-ray treatments.

I urge you, and even warn you, not to expose yourself to a form of treatment that you may ultimately regret.

Our baby was born with an extra finger on each hand. We're concerned, not only about this, but wonder if other birth defects will crop up at a later date. — Mr. and Mrs. G. B., Fla.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. B.:

Extra fingers, known as "supernumerary digits," are relatively common birth deformities.

Let me immediately assure you that if no other birth defects exist at the present time you need not live in constant fear that they will be present at a later time.

There are now specialists who are particularly interested in the surgery of the hands and feet. Operations are performed safely and successfully. Usually, these operations are done at a very early age. The problem is thoroughly studied before the exact operation is chosen.

If muscles and tendons are involved these, too, respond well to the ingenious surgical techniques that now are available.

Your doctor can refer you to an orthopedic surgeon who has such special interests.

Party Dip

1 cup mayonnaise
½ cup sour cream
1 teaspoon crushed dried mixed basil, oregano and thyme
¼ teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 tablespoon finely grated onion, pulp and juice
½ teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
1 tablespoon drained capers

Stir together all the ingredients; chill for at least 1 hour before serving with such vegetables as carrot, celery, cucumber and zucchini strips and cauliflowerets — all raw. Makes about 1½ cups dip.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Home-Made Formula Economical, Nutritious

Just before the first baby arrives, anxious parents — and grandparents, too — begin to argue about just how to feed the new arrival. Everyone can agree that the infant needs wholesome, highly nutritious food, accompanied by lots of affection. Beyond that, however, opinions often diverge.

Should the baby be breast- or formula-fed? If the choice is bottle feeding, should the formula be ready-to-feed, concentrated or home-prepared? What about costs? And, above all, what is best for the baby?

It can all be very confusing, partly because the facts about infant feeding are often mingled with firmly believed myths.

One favorite myth among young parents is that the most expensive ready-to-feed formula in a throw-away bottle must be the "best." After all, that's what many hospital nurseries use. In point of fact, however, much of the money spent goes to the bottle, not the food. The cost of making a formula at home is about $280 for the first year, and this can be every bit as nutritious as already-packaged formula in throw-away bottles, which cost $520 a year.

Hospital nurseries use ready-to-feed formulas packed in bottles for efficiency (which is why many hospitals discourage breast feeding), to save labor costs and to minimize the risk of contamination of mixed formula, which is always higher whenever babies are kept in the same nursery.

Commercial ready-to-feed formulas, for example, cost more than concentrated formula (to which you have to add water), and both cost more than powedered formula (which you have to mix). All three are equal in nutritional value.

Each of these commercial products is more than twice as expensive as the home-made evaporated-milk corn syrup-water formula with iron drops and vitamin supplements — which many of the new parents, incidentally, successfully grew up on.

In spite of their higher prices, commercial products have not yet been shown to be nutritionally superior to this type of homemade, supplemented formula. If concentrates, powders or evaporated milk formulas are prepared with careful attention to cleanliness and sanitation, they are also just as safe as ready-to-feed products.

Another common myth is that breast feeding is expensive, fattening, and beneath the dignity of a liberated woman. Strangely enough, it is the grandmothers who often believe this most firmly. However, breast feeding can actually be inexpensive if the mother chooses inexpensive sources of the extra nutrients she, herself, must consume: A peanut-butter sandwich and a few glasses of dried skim milk mixed with whole milk don't cost much.

Of course, if you eat T-bone steaks to help furnish some of the extra nutrients needed, the cost of producing breast milk can be as much as, or more than, ready-to-feed formula. Happily, breast milk has the same superior nutritional composition, whether you're eating a costly steak or inexpensive peanut butter.

On the liberated woman issue, it is true that breast feeding is a physiological function unique to women. And the mother is the only person in the family who can feed the baby. But the eager husband can take over some other baby-raising task, like cuddling, changing diapers and doctor visits. So, while commercial or home-made formulas are nutritionally fine for the baby, don't overlook breast feeding.

Breast milk has been developed over many millenia as the ideal food for human infants. It has built-in protective factors against infections that no formula can match, and it is, after all, the baby's favorite convenience food. It is automatically sterile, comes in a "convenient container" at just the right temperature and is immediately available.

Best of all, it has the mother built right in. And for every generation, mothers have been important people to have around when you're an infant and you're eating.

Owner-Chef Makes Foods Taste Like What They Are

By WILLIAM RICE
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Andre Soltner, owner and chef of New York's Lutece restaurant, is considered by his colleagues one of the finest French Cooks in the United States (or in France, for that matter). Like many of the new breed, he has great respect for making foods taste like what they are.

An example of his genius for simplicity was offered at a recent luncheon of wine writers. It was a loaf of three pureed vegetables, layered in a mold and baked very slowly. Cream and eggs were used to give a slight souffle effect. The only seasonings were salt, pepper and nutmeg. Prepared in a home kitchen here in somewhat reduced quantity, the loaf made an attractive presentation and easily served 10.

ANDRE SOLTNER'S VEGETABLE LOAF

2 pounds (3 boxes) frozen spinach, or enough fresh to make 2 cups cooked
1½ pounds celery, leaves and tops trimmed off and cut into chunks
1½ pounds carrots, peeled and cut into chunks
6 ounces whipping cream
5 eggs
4 egg whites
Salt, freshly grated pepper and nutmeg to taste.

Cook spinach by package directions until just barely done. Drain. When cool, squeeze out all possible juice with hands. Cook celery in chicken broth, or steam it, until just tender to a knife point. Cook carrots in chicken broth, or steam them, until just tender. Puree the three vegetables separately through the fine blade of a food mill or in a food processor. Drain surface liquid from celery. (This may be done ahead).

Grease a 6-cup loaf pan with butter. Line the mold with greased parchment or waxed paper, leaving enough to fold over the mixture. Preheat oven to lowest possible setting. Heat water in a tea kettle. Have ready a baking pan large enough to hold the loaf pan.

Into 2 cups of the spinach, mix 2 ounces (¼ cup) dream and 2 eggs. Season well with salt and pepper, plus a modest amount of freshly grated nutmeg. Into 2 cups of the celery, mix ¼ cup cream and 4 egg whites. Season with salt and pepper. Into 2 cups of carrot, mix ¼ cup cream and 3 eggs. Season with salt and pepper. Make an even layer of carrot at the bottom of the mold. Top this with a layer of spinach and finish with the celery. Fold the parchment over the mixture and cover the top securely with aluminum foil.

Place loaf in the baking pan. Set in the middle or lower portion of the oven and pour in boiling water to come half-way up sides of the loaf pan. Bake for at least 2 hours, until loaf has risen slightly and set. Remove from oven, loosen foil and allow to sit in a warm place (or in the turned-off oven) for 10 to 15 minutes before unmolding. Remove parchment and cut through the layers to create as many tri-colored slices as needed.

CABBAGE NO BIT PLAYER

Cabbage can reach greatness on its own. Usually, though, cabbage is a filler, a bit player in meals where other foods receive most of the attention.

SAUTEED CABBAGE
(Serves 4)

½ small green cabbage
1 bay leaf
4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
½ onion, finely sliced
¼ teaspoon celery seed
Pinch thyme
Salt and freshly ground pepper
1½ tablespoons white wine vinegar.

Remove outer leaves if wilted or worn, cut cabbage in half lengthwise and cut out core. Wash and steam, covered, over boiling, salted water with a bay leaf added for 5 to 7 minutes, or until cabbage softens. Remove cabbage and slice across into narrow shreds.

Meanwhile melt 2 tablespoons butter in a frying pan and heat with oil. Saute onion over low heat until golden, about 5 minutes. Add cabbage, celery seed, thyme, salt and pepper. Cover pan and let cabbage cook for 10 minutes, turning occasionally. Add 2 tablespoons butter and cook until butter is absorbed. Taste and re-season as desired. Add vinegar, stir in and cook for a few moments longer. Serve garnished with chopped parsley, if desired.

ROSEMARY TO MISS OPENING

Vancouver-Burrard MLA Rosemary Brown will be in Nigeria during the opening weeks of the B.C. legislative session.

She leaves for Nigeria Jan. 10 as head of a delegation of 48 Canadians attending the Second World Black and African Festival of Arts and Culture.

The legislative session opens Jan. 13.

Leader Course Starts

The Saanich recreation department will hold a 14-week leadership course each Monday from 7 to 10 p.m., beginning Feb. 7.

The course is free and must be taken by anyone hired by the department in its summer programs.

Lectures, workshops, films and other activities will be given on such subjects as leadership skills, special events, problem handling, music and drama, outdoormanship, teen adventure, communications, community involvement, program planning, recreation psychology and philosophy, field trips, first aid, naturecraft, tot lots, playgrounds, day camps, policy and administration, advertising and publicity, team work, crafts, sports, active and quiet games.

Applications will be taken up to and including Monday, Jan. 24.

They can be made at the Cedar Hill Community Centre, 3220 Cedar Hill Road, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. The phone number is 595-7121. They can also be made at the personnel department in the municipal hall, 770 Vernon Avenue, between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

There will be no classes during holidays or exams.

There will also be a special program, Working with Teens, as a preparation for working with Summer Teen Adventures.

There will also be a specfal advanced junior program for leaders who have had one or more years experience as a leader and who have attended a prior Saanich leadership course.

Another Opening At Belfry

First performances of the new year at The Belfry will be given by Vancouver's Tamahnous Theatre.

Tonight and Friday at 8:30, The Final Performance of Vaslac Nijinsky will be presented. Deep Thought, another satirical and irreverent revue concerning life in the global village, will be presented Saturday and Sunday at the same time.

The Nijinsky piece is concerned with the last creative phase of the life of the fabled Russian dancer before he disappeared into a more than 30-year oblivion in asylums and hospitals. The script, made up of fragments of his life revealing major influences on his career as dancer-choreographer, was written by company member Jeremy Long. Tickets for both productions will be available at the door or may be reserved by calling The Belfry, 1291 Gladstone, 385-6815.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

One of the greatest players of all time is Waldemar von Zedtwitz, of New York City. "Waldy," as he is known, is an 81-year-old internationally known linguist who speaks 12 languages fluently. During the past decade his eyesight has been failing. In fact, when he is playing in a tournament, he can no longer see the dummy, and the cards have to be called out to him. Similarly, the cards played to each trick have to been announced as they are played.

For the past dozen years his favorite partner has been Barbara Brier, of Miami. During an event in the 1974 Summer National Championships, I noticed that Mrs. Brier was not paired with von Zedtwitz. I inquired: "How come?"

Her answer was food for thought: "He went to Africa a few weeks ago to see the total eclipse of the sun."

When von Zedtwitz was in his heyday, his "vision" was perfect, as can be evidenced in today's deal. He was sitting South.

After winning the opening lead with the heart ace, West led the eight of clubs. Upon taking dummy's king with his ace, East returned a club to dummy's queen. The king and ace of trumps were cashed next, after which the three of diamonds was led. When West followed with the deuce, dummy's ace was put up. With East dropping the king, von Zedtwitz claimed his contract.

Declarer was extremely lucky in catching East with the singleton king of diamonds. But if there are those who think that perhaps he "peeked" at the East hand and saw therein the diamond king, it was not so. His play was correct.

West's initial response had provided von Zedtwitz with the only clue he needed: West had passed East's opening one-heart bid. Thus West did not have even six points. And West's opening lead had been the heart ace. From declarer's point of view, it was impossible for West to be the possessor of the diamond king. If he had this card, he surely would have responded originally. Thus East had to have the diamond king; and the normal finesse just had to lose.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, January 7

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid extremes — steer clear of speculative schemes. Keep promise to young person. Strive for harmony at home. Wishing makes it so only if you prepare, persevere. Know it and reject sophomoric implications. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio persons could be part of your personal scenario.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message — perfect techniques. See places and people as they exist, not merely as you wish they might be. You get chance to rectify past mistakes. This could be rare opportunity — know it and do something about it. Insist on quality. Build on solid base.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You discover that one who appeared to be a "villain" is actually an ally. Capricorn Cancer could be involved. Unique message from relative in transit aids in resolving a mystery. Be flexible. Humor and versatility are twin allies.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cash flow could be temporarily impeded. Consolidate assets; get rid of wasteful procedures. Streamline techniques. Tie loose ends. Finish task which has been "haunting" you. Aries, Libra figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Break from tradition. Refuse to be painted into corner of conformity. You meet someone who could "change your life." Give full play to creativity. Actions now have long-range effect. Another Leo could be involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may feel as if you are being pulled in two directions. Key is to evaluate, to rise above petty jealousies. Make conciliatory gesture to one confined to home, hospital. Family member does deserve special consideration. Act accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Special activity accelerates. Opportunities abound; key is to be selective. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Older, conservative individual would like you to "stay put." This could be the opposite of what is ultimately "good" for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Check fine points, be aware of details. Accent on direction, goal, career, co-operation from one in position of authority. Element of surprise works in your favor. Aquarian could be very much involved. What had been an emotional roadblock is removed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be analytical — check facts, piece together bits of information. You can come up with complete story. Journey, publication, spiritual insights — these dominate. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Adjustment on domestic front is indicated. Accent on finances, budget, money as it relates to business associate or mate. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio are in picture. You could locate document which opens door to investment opportunity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Perceive true meanings — clear away emotional cobwebs. Means steer course opposite wishful thinking, self-deception. Play waiting game, especially where partnership, legal entanglements enter picture. Older individual will play behind-scenes role.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Steady pace wins. Low key approach catches competition off balance. Unusual communication arrives from a distance. Read between the lines. Capricorn, Gemini and Cancer could be part of your personal scenario.

IF JANUARY 7th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are due for constructive changes, variety, travel. If single, marriage could be in picture. March and December should be very significant months for you in 1977. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. You are studious, introspective and psychic.

New Prison: Carpets, Pastel Walls

"It's fantastic," he said of his new quarters in Canada's newest medium-security prison near this Fraser Valley community 30 miles east of Vancouver.

Walsh, serving four years for armed robbery, and five other prisoners are the first residents of the prison.

He came from William Head prison near Victoria. When he walked in after the processing and issuing of the green uniform, he and the others got lunch — roast beef and the trimmings and chocolate cake.

"The meal was great," Walsh, 21, of Edmonton, said in an interview. "No comparison with William Head."

Not only was the roast beef good, it was eaten at the same table as staff members.

He said he expected the new surroundings will take some time to get used to but much easier to accept will be the privacy behind the solid door of his cell rather than the open, barred doors at William Head.

Doug McBryan, 27, of Kamloops serving 4½ years for trafficking in cocaine, arrived Wednesday from the regional reception centre at the British Columbia Penitentiary at New Westminster.

"It's like a castle compared with the B.C. pen," he said.

He seemed to be more enthusiastic than Walsh, probably because he won't be in his B.C. penitentiary cubicle 22 hours a day.

Prisoners will work in industrial jobs in the prison under the guidance of a staff that is expected to reach 185.

Prison officials expect the population to grow by about 25 prisoners a month until the full complement of 180 is reached.

Convicts will make their own rules for living in the residences. Visitors will be permitted after regular work hours daily and on weekends.

CHAIN CRASH FIRE FATAL

COQUITLAM (CP) — One woman was killed and two persons were in serious condition in hospital after a car burned in a chain-reaction collision Wednesday on the Port Man bridge.

Helen Witenberg, 63, of Vancouver, a passenger in the back seat of the car, died in hospital of burns and head injuries. Her daughter, Anne Dixon, 46, and son-in-law Douglas Dixon, 49, both of nearby Surrey, were listed in critical but stable condition.

RCMP said the incident began when three cars collided in the eastbound lanes on the four-lane bridge over the Fraser River 15 miles east of Vancouver.

As traffic backed up, an empty tanker truck hit the rear of a car, driving the car into the back of a flat-deck truck and pinning the occupants of the car in their vehicle.

Police said a fire then broke out between the car and the cab of the tanker truck, but said they did not know which vehicle was ignited first.

Occupants of the other vehicles were not injured, police said.

RCMP said the bridge was closed for about an hour while debris was cleared but the resultant traffic jam took about another hour to clear.

BCGEU Split: Executive

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Government Employees Union has become weakened and divided by internal bickering, says General Secretary John Fryer.

Writing in the union publication The Provincial, he says a highly vocal minority is directing its rancor at the provincial executive and the dissent is giving heart to employers "to the possible detriment of the livelihood of union members."

He says the provincial government will make a concerted effort at negotiations this year to weaken or eliminate master contract clauses that protect regular employees from layoff after two years' service.

"What makes it much more menacing for the BCGEU this year is that we are not the united, disciplined organization we were a year ago," he says.

In an interview Wednesday, he would not name the individuals he referred to as the vocal minority. He said that the union has steered a middle course and, "as with any middle course there are those who don't agree."

Teamster Executive Sues Foes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Incumbent executive officers of Teamster Local 213, facing a strong challenge in union elections next week, filed a writ in the British Columbia Supreme Court Wednesday seeking an injunction against their opponents.

Local 213 seeks an injunction to force the opposition candidates to return the local's membership list. The current executive wants the challengers prevented from duplicating the list or disposing of it in any way.

Among the seven defendants is Jack Vlahovic, head of an election slate seeking to take over the union leadership.

Also a candidate in the election is incumbent trustee Sen. Ed Lawson, whose post as president of the Teamsters western region is at stake in Monday's election.

The western region includes four large locals representing over 20,000 teamsters in B.C. and the Yukon.

Hearing On MD

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — An inquiry into the mental competency of Dr. Stephen Wigby of Watson Lake to practise medicine in the Yukon opened here Wednesday.

The doctor has spent seven days in jail for refusing to register with the territorial medical plan and has been barred from using the local hospital because he won't file an official application.

The inquiry, called by Yukon Commissioner Art Pearson at the request of the Yukon Medical Association, is being conducted by three doctors chosen by the British Columbia Medical Association.

Nearly 30 witnesses from Watson Lake, a community about 280 miles east of Whitehorse near the B.C. border, have travelled to Whitehorse for the inquiry.

Dr. Wigby refuses to discuss his case other than to say his actions are related to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's attitude to military service during the Second World War.

Spokesmen for the board said they hope to complete the inquiry in three days and file a report with the commissioner. Any recommendations in their report can be appealed within 30 days.

3 Hanged Publicly

Wartime Mystery Sparks New Search

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A new expedition to the wilds of northern Vancouver Island could solve the mysterious disappearance of four young British airmen 32 years ago, says amateur aviation historian Geoff Rowe.

He lists the wartime loss of their B-25 Mitchell bomber and its crew among the puzzles of B.C. flying history, and says his study of the facts has led to an interesting though inconclusive supposition.

Rowe, of 4634 Cordova Bay, is the Vancouver Island spokesman for the Canadian Aviation Historical Society and has for the past year been assembling material for a book on the history of Patricia Bay airport, one of several wartime training bases on the B.C. coast for Canadian and UK airmen.

The four Royal Air Force flyers took off from Boundary Bay, near Tsawwassen, July 14, 1944, and never came back.

Sixteen years later, a prospector found fragments of their plane strewn over three-quarters of a mile in tangled terrain 20 miles from Port Alice.

Air force investigators combed a Brooks Penninsula mountain near Johnson Lagoon in April 1961 and again five months later. They confirmed the identity of the long-lost Mitchell, gathered the wreckage and put together a scanty theory of what might have happened.

But to this day, no trace has been found of the crew. They were:

Pilot FO Lionel Richard Hannah, son of Mrs. L. Hannah, Chatham, Kent; navigator PO John William Christopher Reeve, son of J. W. Reeve, Altrincham, Cheshire; air bomber PO Douglas Johnston, whose mother lived in Aberdeen, Scotland, and wireless air gunner Sgt. Edward George Waters, son of Edward David Waters, Romford, Essex.

If Rowe's reasoning is accepted, previous searchers looked for their bodies in the wrong place.

"An expedition to the area could resolve some of the questions concerning the aircraft and its crew," Rowe said.

The airmen were flying a daylight navigation exercise that should have brought them back home in five hours on a course from Boundary Bay to seaward of Cape Flattery, northwest to a point off Cape Cook, landward to Port Hardy and southeast to their base.

They had flown better than half the distance and were on track when they made what was their last radio contact approaching Port Hardy.

At that point the bomber was 42 degrees off course and Rowe speculates it may have veered to the west after striking trees or a point near the summit of an unnamed 1,800-foot mountain that lay directly on its track.

The weather that July day featured mixed clouds and overcast: Rowe suggests zero visibility where the intended navigation plot crossed the coastline.

For whatever reason, the Mitchell was flying low, and Rowe thinks it glanced off the peak or was severely damaged by trees, causing it to break apart from resulting vibration, and fall within 30 seconds into the valley two miles across Johnson Lagoon.

The main pieces of wreckage—centre fuselage, undercarriage, main wing spar, nose section, tail assembly, an engine mount, plus many small and broken pieces — were located along a fairly straight line in impossible terrain.

The final accident report in 1961 said the search for pieces

ROWE
. . . model Hampden

within a mile of the main wreckage was "exhausting", with investigators climbing over deadfalls, up and down steep contours, and pushing through salal affording average visibility of 15 feet.

Two ground searches were made, the first lasting three days and a more thorough one, including transport department air accident investigators, covering five days. The air ministry and joint chiefs of staff in London were informed:

"The investigations gave no indication of the cause of the crash or any details as to the fate of the crew. Since there is absolutely no trace of human remains or clothing in the area, and since it is unlikely that crew members could survive a crash of this nature, it is considered likely that the crew were thrown from or abandoned the aircraft before the crash."

"In such wild, inaccessible country, it is most unlikely that any trace of the crew will ever be found," the report concluded.

Like the crew, the bomb doors and four parachutes were never located, suggesting the doors were wrenched off before the aircraft broke up. According to Rowe this could be a clue to the initial impact on the mountain and perhaps explain how the crew got out of the plane, because all hatches on the fuselage were found in place. There had been no explosion and the remains were not burned.

Among instruments recovered was the cockpit altimeter, registering 1,350 feet, consistent with the damage from a possible first impact, even though the dial reading could change either way in a crash.

A second altimeter, recovered from the mid-ships section, jammed at 750 feet or about the suggested altitude of the final resting place. Rowe failed to comment on this fact, although it lends weight to his case.

The amateur historian finds it odd more attention was not devoted by investigators to cockpit control settings such as automatic pilot, main switches and propeller pitch.

"Had the pilot attempted to bail out, he would have switched in the main auto pilot while he made his way to a breakout station," Rowe suggests.

There were navigation charts amid the wreckage, as well as a log book and personal notebook in deteriorating condition.

The maps may have shown whether there was a change in course during that leg of the flight, at some point after the last radio transmission. But no effort appears to have been made to check them, Rowe notes.

"One assumes all the relevant data obtained by the RCAF and DOT (department of transport) was included in the report and if this was the case, then there is a lot missing," he said.

A new search should try to "locate clipped trees on the mountain so a track from there to the impact site could be combed for sections," Rowe suggested.

"As it stands I firmly believe that this track could yield such parts as bomb bay doors, ailerons, pitot head, wing fragments, one or both of the engines, but a search would be extremely difficult."

He said plenty of time would be required, noting part of the track crosses Johnson Lagoon, which is fairly deep. There is strong possibility, he said, that aircraft debris and perhaps bodies landed there and sank to the bottom.

"There are probably some people who would be interested in doing it," but he said "it would take a well-organized bunch of people and money."

The Aviation Historial Society is not geared for such undertakings, but to be effective an expedition would have to include people with their appreciation for careful examination of large and small bits of wreckage and their relative location, despite difficult ground conditions.

Even finding such clues in the jungle-like growth would be challenging enough, and as Rowe notes, whatever evidence is still there could have been moved during the previous expeditions.

He also suggests another impediment. Although there is the potential satisfaction of solving an historic air mystery, little else might be achieved but to trouble anew the survivors of four young flyers who have lain, somewhere, undisturbed for three decades.

He was granted access to official documents in Ottawa and is able to explain some of the flying accidents referred to in a recent Times feature on B.C. aviation losses.

That story referred to a Blackburn Shark III torpedo bomber which plunged into Alliford Bay, Queen Charlotte Islands, and according to local air-sea rescue records, was never located.

Not so, said Rowe. The remains on the RCAF plane and bodies of its crew were hauled up the same day; he has spoken to a friend who accompanied the bodies to Vancouver for burial.

A second crash was described as a mystery plane, a Northrop which disappeared March 8, 1941, possibly American, although the U.S. had not yet entered the war.

Rowe has a complete explanation for that incident. The craft was a seaplane that crashed on takeoff from Pat Bay March 18, 1941, while attached for two weeks to the RCAF station there, and was flown by three junior officers of the Royal Norwegian Naval Air Force.

Two RCAF leading aircraftsmen distinguished themselves and won MBEs for rescuing one flyer from the flaming wreckage before it sank, taking the other two down with it. The seaplane was raised the next day.

Rowe has records of several crashes that do not appear at all on search and rescue cards, including the disappearance Jan. 31, 1947, of a Fairey Firefly from HMCS Warrior which was then in refit at Esquimalt.

The fighter went down in a snowstorm as pilot Lieut-Cmdr. O. W. Tattersal, DFC, attempted to fly from Pat Bay to Sea Island to attend a meeting. Tattersal was commanding officer of the carrier's 825 Squadron and had helped form it.

An intensive search was carried out off Portland Island where it was believed the Firefly went into the strait—but nothing of the wreckage, pilot, or observer Lieut. Clifford R. Gavel was found.

George Maude, who still lives at Sidney, was on board the ferry Cy Peck that day and remembers the distinct roar of the Firefly's Rolls Royce Merlin engine through the snowflakes over Fulford Harbor.

The wife of a storekeeper at Beaver Point, Salt Spring, was on the dock and saw the plane go over low, pulling up to avoid trees, and disappear in the direction of Moresby Island, followed by an explosion.

Trafficker Wins Probation Term

A 28-year-old former Victoria man, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for two years in Victoria County Court Wednesday for trafficking in marijuana March 4 in Saanich.

Roger Frank Hunter has been maturing, said Judge Montague Drake, after Hunter's lawyer said he'd built a new life in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Defence counsel Peter Freeman said Hunter had three previous drug convictions but had taken "positive steps" to rehabilitate himself. He said a jail term was not in the public interest and might be destructive of "the positive steps he has taken."

He said Hunter, his wife and their two small children had moved to Sandspit in the Queen Charlottes, where he was a partner in a small saw mill.

Crown counsel Bill Southward said Hunter had shown some possible signs of rehabilitation and he would not object to an intermittent jail sentence to be served on weekends, but Drake said the practical aspects would make this ridiculous because Hunter would have to fly every Friday to Prince Rupert and then back to Sandspit after the weekend.

Southward said two undercover policemen purchased three pounds of marijuana from Hunter at his former home, 5375 Sparton, and said Hunter told them he was dealing 125 pounds a week. Hunter told Drake he was exaggerating then and "I didn't deal very much at all."

Student Housing Supported

The provincial government has recognized the need for more student housing at the University of Victoria and will back the university in getting funds.

UVic president Dr. Howard Petch said this week that Housing Minister Hugh Curtis wrote to the university saying he understands the need is acute and will support requests for loans.

A 1975 university report showed that UVic had housing for 13.1 per cent of its full-time students—23rd among Canada's 30 universities.

LOTO-CANADA SLAMMED

$300M for Olympics Called Pie-in-the-Sky

QUEBEC (CP) — Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau Wednesday described as "pie in the sky" estimates of $300 million to $350 million in revenues from Loto-Canada to help pay off the $1-billion Olympic deficit.

He was commenting on release of revenue figures for the first of the 13 Loto-Canada draws, which could result in revenues of not more than $185 million for the Olympics by the time the lottery ends in 1979.

Lottery officials in Ottawa say it is still possible that an average of 7.5 million $10 tickets will be sold in future draws, and describe the first draw as "a phenomenal success" despite the fact that 1.5 million tickets remained unsold.

Proceeds from the Dec. 5 draw to the Olympic installations board, a Quebec agency, totalled $14.22 million.

Former Quebec finance minister Raymond Garneau announced in his spring budget that he expected revenues of $360 million from the federal lottery — an extension of the successful Olympic lottery.

Jean Chretien, federal treasury board president, said at the time that $300 million was a more realistic figure.

If revenues do not increase in future draws, the total revenue from the 13 draws — to be held four times a year — will total $184.85 million, short of both estimates.

"Now you will understand why we asked for guarantees," Parizeau said.

The Provincial lottery, a joint venture of the Ontario and Western Canada lotteries, is the main competition for Loto-Canada. Like Loto-Canada, it offers $1-million prizes but Provincial tickets sell for $5 each.

The first draw was held Oct. 31 and 90 per cent of the 3.3 million tickets were sold. The second draw, on New Year's Eve was sold out with 4.3 million tickets spoken for.

Garneau said Loto-Canada was begun this fall in a crowded market, but one which has yet to be saturated, especially in English Canada.

Garneau conceded that saes of Loto-Canada tickets have decreased proportionately in Ontario in comparison with sales of the Olympic Lottery.

On the other hand, Quebecers bought 45.75 per cent of Loto-Canada tickets compared with 41.57 of all nine Olympic draws.

REPORTS CENSORED

NICOSIA (AP) — Censorship was imposed as of Wednesday on news dispatches sent out of Lebanon by foreign reporters. Censorship of publications inside Lebanon began Monday.

Outgoing dispatches cleared by the censors Wednesday and today indicated that only reports from the Lebanese Christians and the Syrians would be allowed to be sent abroad. These dispatches contained no information from the Palestinians or the leftist Lebanese Moslems.

Bawlf Says NDP Hurt City

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf agreed Wednesday the city of Victoria has had a rotten deal from the provincial government, but blamed it all on the NDP.

Bawlf, MLA for Victoria, agreed "substantially" with Mayor Mike Young's inaugural address which criticized the provincial government. He didn't agree with the parts of the speech criticizing the Socreds.

"I agree the city suffered a real hardship as a result of the NDP policies," Bawlf said, but the Socreds have not added to the problems, he said.

Young said the NDP had increased the civil service and civil service salaries, making it more expensive for the municipality to keep up. He also said the NDP had built too much office space, leaving private space vacant.

On the other hand, Young said, the Socred hiring freeze was largely responsible for an unemployment rate of 10 per cent and the doubling of ferry fares has crippled the city's tourist industry.

But Bawlf said neither unemployment nor the fading tourist industry could be blamed on the Socreds.

He said the extra people the NDP hired were all out-of-towners, so the hiring freeze couldn't have been responsible for the city's high unemployment rate.

Tourist traffic, Bawlf said, is down all across the country, not just in B.C. or on Vancouver Island.

He said that in the past year the province has doubled its payments of grants in lieu of taxes to the city to about $600,000.

CUBA N-PLANT

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Comecon, the East European trading group, has announced plans to build an atomic-power station in Cuba, Tass news agency said today. It will be the Caribbean island state's first nuclear plant and plans for it were foreshadowed in an agreement signed last April in Moscow.

Saudi Arabia Jumps Crude Oil Price by 5%

WASHINGTON (TNS) — Saudi Arabia Wednesday formally raised the price of its crude oil by five per cent, undercutting the oil prices of most of the other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco), a consortium of American oil companies which produces and sells the Saudi Arabian oil, said Wednesday the price of Arabian light crude is now $12.09 a barrel, up from $11.51.

The price increase will add about a penny a gallon to the price of most oil products such as gasoline and heating oil, although the actual impact depends on how much Saudi oil and how much higher-priced OPEC oil finds its way to American consumers.

Meanwhile, the National Iranian Oil Company, faced by plummeting exports in the early days of 1977, has threatened to blacklist 25 firms seeking cheaper prices unless they honor their agreements.

NIOC said oil exports have fallen almost nine per cent following a Jan. 1 price increase of 10.4 per cent.

Direct sales, which account for about one-fifth of the exports, dropped more than 40 per cent from an anticipated figure of 1.2 million barrels a day to 693,000 barrels, the company said.

90% CHANCE TANKER SANK: COAST GUARD

BOSTON (AP) — There is a 90 per cent probability a missing Panamanian tanker that had 38 crewmen and eight millon gallons of oil aboard has sunk, the U.S. Coast Guard said today.

"The search objective today is based on a 10 per cent probability the vessel is still afloat and 90 per cent probability that any survivors will be on life rafts," Capt. Bernard Hoyland, who is directing the search, said this morning.

The tanker Grand Zenith, loaded with industrial fuel oil, was last heard from Friday when its position was reported as 60 miles south of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

The coast guard said the lengthy search has not turned up any evidence indicating that the vessel is still afloat.

"I was really hoping I'd find a big mess of oil out there with 38 grubby people in it," Hoyland said of Wednesday's search by seven military planes from the United States and Canada and a coast guard cutter.

Firemen to Vote On Pay Tonight

Victoria firemen meet tonight to vote on recommendations from mediator Clark Gilmour for settlement of a dispute with the city over payment of wages.

Union president Ross Cameron said there are three recommendations and all of them have already been rejected by the firefighters at previous stages of the dispute.

Asked what the chances are that the 104 firemen will accept them this time, he said, "I don't think they are too good."

City negotiators met Wednesday with Gilmour and rejected a union interpretation of an amendment to the federal Anit-Inflation Board guidelines.

Cameron said the city also rejected another proposal which he would not disclose because the union members won't know about it until tonight's meeting.

If the firemen reject Gilmour's recommendations, Cameron said the mediator will be asked to withdraw. He will then report to Labor Minister Allan Williams and once this has been done, the firemen will serve 72-hour strike notice.

The dispute centres around the city's refusal to pay the complete amount of an arbitration award on wages because Victoria says it would be contrary to the AIB guidelines.

Hydro Surcharge Added to Bills

The additional increase is a monthly service fee of $3 per two-month billing period. It will be on most consumers' bills in May.

Hydro also announced a whopping 30 per cent hike in rates for manufactured gas for the approximately 5,000 users in Victoria.

The new electricity rates will mean an extra $1.50 to $3.67 per month will be added to the bills of the majority of B.C. Hydro's residential customers.

Fred Oldfield, president of the Victoria branch, Canadian Restaurant Association, said he was unaware of a further rise in gas price, a commodity already considered high by restaurant operators.

Such unavoidable expenses are eroding the anti-inflation guidelines faced by the industry in pricing meals, he noted. In addition, the 30 per cent increase greatly exceeds the federal AIB guidelines, he said.

B.C. Hydro Chairman Robert Bonner, in making the announcement, said the service charge was necessary in order to meet the costs of transmitting energy and billing customers.

He said these costs were a fixed amount regardless of how much electricity a customer used and it was appropriate for the cost to be m by a fixed service charge.

In addition to the $3 per month service charge on the two-monthly bill, customers will pay 4.6 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 550 kwh, unchanged from the present, and 2 cents per kwh for each additional kwh, up from 1.7 cents.

The minimum bill will be $6.14, unchanged from the present, but fewer people will qualify for the minimum charge because of the new $3 levy.

Bonner said the crown corporation faced a deficit on its electricity and natural gas operations unless it made the increases.

Increases in rates for natural gas customers on the lower mainland had been announced earlier.

Bonner said the company had spent a full year trimming costs and holding the line on staff but still discovered increased revenues were required in order to avoid a deficit.

"If inflation continues at present levels, the cost of electrical energy to customers could increase about 60 per cent in the next five years," he said.

Bonner said the company was working on a plan to assist customers to conserve electricity and other forms of energy and would announce details at a later date.

Residential customers who use up to 275 kwh per month can expect to pay $1.50 more (because of the $3 service charge every two months).

Customers using between 267 kwh and 1,000 kwh per month, who make up the majority, will face increases ranging from 11.9 per cent to 14.7 per cent.

Those using more than 1,000 kwh will face increases of about 15 per cent or more.

In Victoria, customers using petroleum air gas will face a service charge of $7.30 every two months. In addition, they will pay 44.5 cents for the first 100 thermal units plus 30.5 cents for extra thermal units. the previous rates were increased in five steps and without a service charge. The increase is about 30 per cent.

Bonner said the service is costing the company $4.7 million per year and air gas customers are paying only $1.7 million, even with the increases.

'LONG' RIDE SHORT-LIVED

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A 185-foot-long Douglas fir, destined to become a flag pole at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in Toronto, has already run into problems in the first hour of its long train journey from the West Coast.

The log, which is laid along three flatcars, was just out of Vancouver when a brace on one of the cars snapped Wednesday.

Al Menard, a CNR spokesman, said it may take up to a week to build a new brace.

B.C. Farmers Seek Tariffs

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

British Columbia farmers will seek tariff protection or subsidies this year in order to overcome the competition of cheap U.S. produce, says B.C. Federation of Agiculture president Ralph Barichello.

He said the federation will work with similar agencies in other provinces to ask Ottawa to lay out a program of tariff protection on food.

The federation will also ask the provincial government to consider setting standards for importing fresh produce into B.C.

He said the province could pass legislation stating that, for example, any potatoes imported into B.C. would be the same size and quality of those locally-grown. This would prevent dumping of surplus small potatoes that do not sell well in the U.S.

The federation also will seek to expand the farm income insurance program.

These three measures would give the B.C. farmer the protection he needs, Barichello said.

"The farm land freeze has been successful," he said.

"But there is no point in saving the farm land and losing the farmer. You must save the farmer, too."

In a year-end statement, in which he predicted B.C. farm cash receipts in 1977 would top $400 million, the same as in 1976, Barichello said British Columbians must realize farming is a vital resource industry like forestry and mining but the family farm is in jeopardy.

The B.C. Federation of Agriculture is working with similar groups in other provinces in hopes that Ottawa will lay out some form of tariff protection—with subsidies being a second choice.

On the provincial front, the federation will ask the government to consider setting standards for importing fresh produce into B.C.

CITY BANK HELD UP

A baby-faced bandit this morning held up the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at 493 Superior and made off with an undisclosed amount of money.

Police said the man entered the bank about 10:45, demanded money and fled in a car. No gun was shown but the robber indicated he had one in his pocket.

Police described the man as six foot two, in his early 20s, with blond hair down to the neck and with a baby face.

No Insider Trading Beefs, City Real Estate Head Says

Victoria Real Estate Board president John Thomson said today he has never heard any complaints over insider speculation in the local real estate market.

He was commenting on a charge Wednesday by Oak Bay Ald. Doug Watts that real estate agents sometimes buy a house listed at a bargain price rather than offer it for sale to the general public.

Watts said agents should be prohibited from buying on speculation because such purchases are a disservice to their clients.

Thomson waid he has asked the board to check the minutes of all meetings of its complaints and ethics committee in 1976 to see of there have been any complaints along these lines from the public.

"We are part way through this search and have not located a single complaint. I don't expect we will find one," Thomson said.

"I served on the committee four years ago and there was no complaint on this topic all year long."

Thomson said licensed real estate personnel occasionally buy properties for themselves but this action is already restricted by law.

Under the Real Estate Act, the agent must state openly that he is a licensed realtor and must outline his purpose in buying the property, whether for his own use or for resale, Thomson said.

"You can't be any more open than that. The vendor (seller) is free to accept or reject the offer by the agent."

If a vendor sells to an agent and later feels he should have received a higher price, the vendor can launch a suit to recover the difference, Thomson said.

He said such suits are rare because most vendors are happy with the price received, but there was a recent case in Ontario where an agent was sued to obtain a higher price.

UBC MAN HAS ERSATZ JAVA

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia professor says he has produced an inexpensive synthetic beverage that looks, tastes and smells like coffee.

However, Dr. Philip Townsley says research on the project has stopped because the federal government tuned down a request for financial support.

(In Victoria, wholesale coffee prices continued to climb, hitting $2.38 to $2.95 a pound this week, and tea prices are expected to jump within a few days in the wake of an increase of 8 to 15 per cent for raw tea. See story on page 15.)

Dr. Townsley, an industrial fermentation specialist in the university's food science department, produced the synthetic coffee four years ago but says about $80,000 is needed to complete and perfect the technique.

Basic production method of his brew, which has both the aroma and bitterness of strong black coffee, is to "put a tissue sample from a coffee tree or bean into a synthetic nutrient medium, allowing it to develov into a mass of cells."

Tough Tiffin, Tea Fans Price of Brew to Climb

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The price of coffee is soaring and there will soon be an increase in tea prices.

David Twentyman, tea-buyer for Nabob Foods in Vancouver, said in an interview Wednesday the price of raw tea has gone up an average of eight to 10 per cent to a high of 15 per cent in some categories.

He said wholesale prices ranging from $1.10 to $2.05 a pound depending on quality will be increased accordingly in the next few days.

Twentyman said the increases result from changes in worldwide supply and demand for the product, particularly in India which is not only the world's major tea producer but also the largest consumer.

He said price increases last year averaged eight to 10 per cent and added they were "miniscule" compared to the spectacular jump in the price of coffee which is now hovering at the $3 a pound mark wholesale.

Twentyman said he regards tea as "still the best bargain hot drink of all" with a cup of tea costing about one cent, five to six times less than a cup of coffee.

"It's been our experience in previous years when there has been an increase in the price of coffee that the demand for tea doesn't increase.

"It appears coffee drinkers just won't make the switch — they'll turn to beer, cocoa, milk, anything but tea."

Meanwhile coffee prices continue to climb. Wholesale prices in Victoria this week have ranged from $2.38 to $2.95 a pound depending on the freshness of the stock. One industry spokesman predicts the price at year end will be around $4 a pound.

Although consumer groups in the United States are attempting to organize coffee boycotts, similar action is not expected in Canada, a spokesman for the Consumers Association of Canada said.

Mrs. Ada Brown, of West Vancouver, told The Times her organization does not favor boycotts "because they are usually not in the best interests of the consumers.

"All they do is disrupt the market place and often the people most harmed are not the ones who have caused the problem in the first place," she said.

Mrs. Brown said she feels prediction of coffee costing $4 or $5 a pound are "rather alarmist."

"All the publicity about the prices going up has attracted more and more speculators into the coffee futures market, driving up the prices even more."

"The fact of the matter is Brazil did have a frost, Angola did have a war and Colombia had floods. It's all reduced coffee production. There are fewer coffee beans around and the price is going up. It's a natural economic reaction."

"If consumers are smart they will switch over to tea or something else."

She warned against hoarding saying this will force coffee prices up even more.

In Victoria coffee sales are reported mixed. Health stores report no noticeable change in business either up or down and a spokesman for Murchie's Tea & Coffee said sales are about the same level as always although Monday was a busier than normal day.

Rescue System Defended

BUCHANAN

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

A spokesman for the Pacific area search and rescue operation has struck back at the system's detractors saying the coverage on the West Coast is equal to that in the east.

Herb Buchanan, regional director, Canadian Coast Guard, said Wednesday in an interview from Vancouver the vessel requirements for both coasts are different.

In the west, most of the marine incidents are in sheltered waters and involve pleasure craft while on the east coast most of the problems occur 200 miles offshore incolving large fish boats, tankers or freighters.

"We have just as good coverage as the East Coast as far as I'm concerned," he said. "We have different types of boats because our requirement sare different."

He was responding to charges that search and rescue funds are being used to build a sauna and gymnasium in Ottawa and that facilities on the west coast are "a first-class mess."

The charges were levelled Wednesday by Dr. Robert Somerville of Campbell River, a coast guard volunteer agent and perennial critic of search and rescue facilities.

He said $1 million of a $30 to $40 million allotment for search and rescue on both coasts was used to put a sauna and gymnasium in a ministry of transport department building in Ottawa.

Buchanan said there was no truth to the allegation as the funds referred to have been tagged for search and rescue purposes and "not even a pencil" could be bought with the money for use elsewhere.

He also corrected Somerville's assertion that one of the three 95-foot cutters on the west coast is ineffective and the other two need to be replaced.

Somerville said two of the Rider's four engines are not operational resulting in a loss of speed and effectiveness.

Buchanan said two of the Rider's engines were taken out because it was shown that with only two engines plus a change in the pitch of the propeller, there was a 40 per cent saving on fuel.

The move only reduced the speed by a knot and a qaurter, he added, and that was only in good weather when the cutter could run at top speed.

He said both the Racer and the Ready have the same number of engines and they will each be losing two as well.

Buchanan said all three cutters are only 12 years old and although they do need some repair occasionally they certainly do not have to be replaced.

However, he added, that about a year ago he asked if the West Coast could have five 65-foot cutters instead of the three 95-foot vessels.

The federal government shot down the play saying it did not want to spend the money to build the extra cutters.

Somerville also said government austerity programs had eliminated a promised 65-foot cutter for Prince Rupert.

However, Buchanan said it was announced in Vancouver last month that the cutter will be provided for Prince Rupert sometime in the next fiscal year which begins April 1.

Buchanan also answered another of Somerville's concerns, that there is a desperate need for more rescue personnel to man the Labrador helicopters at Comox on weekends.

Buchanan said the recent injection of search and rescue funds includes provision for operating the helicopters 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Although admitting he didn't know all the details of the new program he said it also included upgrading the helicopters making them better for night flying.

Buchanan also said there will be another hovercraft for the west coast soon and the one working out of Delta will operate on a 24-hour basis rather than 16 hours as it has in the past.

Somerville has also said the East Coast was being favored in that it was getting two new helicopters immediately while the west wouldn't get one for more than two years.

Buchanan said five former army helicopters are being brought out of mothballs and refitted for resuce work. That process, he said will take about two and a half years.

Civic Staff Asks Binding Arbitration

City Hall inside workers are proposing binding arbitration as a means of resolving any impasse that develops during upcoming negotiations with the city.

The members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 388, agreed on the proposal at a meeting Wednesday.

Rick Doyle, acting president of the local, said today the employees don't believe in strikes and lockouts as a method of settling disputes.

"We feel they are obsolete," he said. "There has to be another way to resolve disputes."

Doyle said the membership hopes the city will accept the binding arbitration concept when negotiations for a new contract begin later this month.

He said it became clear during the strike-lockout two years ago that the inside workers don't have much clout and a strike by the employees is not too effective.

The members also voted to accept the resignation of local president Dennis Burke and to stick with their decision to opt out of the CUPE joint area bargaining concept.

Burke resigned last month in protest over the members' decision to bargain directly with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association.

Doyle said there was a motion for Local 388 to reconsider its decision on joint bargaining but it was defeated after a brief discussion.

He said he thinks negotiations with the BVLRA will begin sometime after Jan. 12, the date set for the start of talks between the municipal employers and seven other locals on the CUPE Joint Negotiating Committee.

Meanwhile, CUPE local 1978 of the Capital Region District, has voted to join the joint negotiating committee.

Local president Daryl Anderson said the members made the decision at a meeting Tuesday night when they also expressed disappointment at Local 388's decision to go it alone.

"It is fairly obvious that they have failed to grasp the issues at hand," Anderson said.

Campbell Re-elected By Region

Jim Campbell of Saturna Island was re-elected by acclamation Wednesday to his fifth consecutive term as chairman of the Capital Region Board.

Campbell thanked the board for "continuing me in this very agreeable and interesting office."

Victoria alderman Murray Glazier was elected without opposition as alternate chairman. He succeeds former Victoria alderman and regional director Alf Hood.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young was re-elected by acclamation chairman of the regional hospital board — a position he has held since 1972.

Directors on the hospital board are the same as those on the regional board. Meetings are held on the same day in the same place.

He was first elected in 1971 and became chairman in 1973, a position he has not since relinquished.

Both Campbell's director term and chairmanship expire at the end of 1977. He said he has not yet decided whether he will seek re-election.

Board Awards $119,500 To Couple

An arbitration board has awarded a View Royal man and his wife $119,500 for their expropriated property at Trans-Canada Highway between Helmcken and Chancellor.

The amount is $24,500 higher than offered for the land by the provincial highways department, which must pay the cost of the arbitration.

Arbitors David Lisson, Eric Charman and Ronald Campion accepted the higher valuation of the property as prepared by Victoria realtor Philip G. Jackson, and based upon the developmental value of the land.

The site is occupied by a pre-mix and pre-cast concrete business, W. and N. Trace Ltd., 108 Helmcken, and the owners were Walter C. and Ada M. Trace at the time of the expropriation by the highways department.

The appraisals of two other professionals, A. T. Ray Jones and David Coell, on behalf of the department was rejected by the board.

But in their decision, after a week's hearing, the arbiters said their award would have been $221,904 if they had not accepted the department's argument regarding illegal use of the property for industrial purposes.

This would have included compensation for setting up a new manufacturing plant at another location and the value of the existing plant.

In choosing the developmental approach, the board said the location of the property and general market activity was considered.

Trace had been 29 years in the location in his 40 years in the construction supply business in Victoria.

The property was eminently suited to his use, Trace argued, both for its layout and its central location in the market area he supplied, enabling him to provide custom batches of pre-mix concrete $8 a yard cheaper than his competitors.

Among his customers was the provincial government.

AirWest Seeks Extra Flights

Victoria's legal committee today recommended qualified city support for an AirWest Airlines Ltd. bid to increase its Victoria-Vancouver service — provided it doesn't apply to harbor-to-harbor operations.

Company spokesmen who attended the meeting said they are prepared to give that assurance.

AirWest president Norman Gold said the firm wants an amendment to its licence to allow it to operate a summer schedule on a year-round basis.

The company is seeking city support for its application to the Air Transport Committee in Ottawa. A similar application from AirWest was turned down a year ago by the ATC.

Because float planes cannot operate in safety after dark, the present winter schedule is curtailed in the late afternoon, he said.

AirWest proposes to extend the schedule by using wheeled Twin Otters on the run from Victoria airport to Vancouver airpirt during darkness hours.

Gold said the "downtown concept" will allow passengers to board a 19 passenger bus for the airport at the downtown Victoria terminal, purchase a ticket and proceed to downtown Vancouver by the same means.

"It would be a complete commuter downtown service 12 hours a day, 52 weeks a year," he said.

Another advantage would be that Victoria travellers bound for destinations in the B.C. interior would be able to depart much earlier than at present, because AirWest would provide a 5:45 or 6 a.m. service.

In such respects, he said, there is a "slight deficiency" in the service offered by Air Canada and Pacific Western Airlines.

Mayor Mike Young said council would have no objection to the company supplementing the service on an airport-to-airport basis, but would oppose any bid to step up harbor flights.

Fer several years the city has voiced concern about the safety of float plane traffic in the busy inner harbor.

Ald. Ron McKenzie, referring to the recent ditching of a Twin Otter near Victoria, asked the AirWest representatives if they are "happy" with the safety situation.

Groth said AirWest had carried 90,000 passengers last year between Victoria and Vancouver harbor and had more than five million passenger miles without a fatality.

SCHIBLI FACES FIGHT

There were five nominations for the post at a meeting Wednesday night, including vice-president Linda Baker, of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

The other nominees are Schibli, of the Carpenters' union, Jim Walker, of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Jack Groves, of the International Woodworkers of America and Larry Tickner, of the carpenters' union.

Schibli was returned last year by acclamation to a second one-year term as president.

Other nominations can be made at the next council meeting, Jan. 19, when elections will be held.

Larry Ryan, a Victoria alderman appointed this week to head the city's labor relations and public works committee, was unopposed as the nominee for secretary-treasurer, a post he has held for nine years.

Two Jailed On Drug Charges

Two Victoria men were sentenced by Judge Montague Drake in county court today to two years less a day in jail on two counts of possession of pethidine for the purpose of trafficking.

William Paul Murray, 29, who spent three months in custody awaiting disposition of this case, will serve his sentence concurrently with another drug sentence of two years less a day which began in January, 1976.

Donald William Thomson, 43, has spent 15 months in custody awaiting disposition of his case.

Jail sentences on both counts were made concurrent by Judge Drake who said he was taking into account time served awaiting this case.

Crown counsel Gordon MacDonald said both men have lengthy criminal records involving theft and drug offences and have been "deeply involved in the use of narcotics and in this case, possession for the purpose of distribution."

New Computer Installed

First tangible sign of B.C. Systems Corp. — a new Crown company formed to handle computer work — appeared just before Christmas at University of Victoria.

Technicians and programmers are spending the mid-session break installing and testing a new IBM 370-158 computer that temporarily replaces the previous university computer and adds capacity that will be used by the provincial government.

The sysrmes corporation, which still awaits enabling legislation at the spring sitting of the legislature, assumes all computer operations of the government previously under the wing of the department of transport and communications.

In an unusual arrangement with the university, the systems corporation will share the larger computer at a ratio of about 60-40, and be responsible for approximately the same proportion of its rental cost. The move fills a void that would otherwise have occurred while the university awaits delivery of a new IBM 370-148.

Dave Stothard, manager of UVic computer services, said the new machine is large enough to do all work associated with university teaching and research, with enough capacity left to do some commercial work and satisfy requirements of government departments.

The arrangement will be reviewed in August.

Stothard said sharing a single computer installation allows the systems corporation to start operation without the need of a new building and facilities until a broader view of requirements is obtained.

The university has had a number of different generations of computer since the early 1960s, the most recent an IBM 145.

Mrs. Ada Brown, of West Vancouver, told The Times her organization does not favor boycotts "because they are usually not in the best interests of the consumers.

"All they do is disrupt the market place and often the people most harmed are not the ones who have caused the problem in the first place," she said.

Mrs. Brown said she feels prediction of coffee costing $4 or $5 a pound are "rather alarmist."

"All the publicity about the prices going up has attracted more and more speculators into the coffee futures market, driving up the prices even more."

She said she is satisifed the problem is simply one of supply.

"The fact of the matter is Brazil did have a frost, Angola did have a war and Colombia had floods. It's all reduced coffee production. There are fewer coffee beans around and the price is going up. It's a natural economic reaction."

"If consumers are smart they will switch over to tea or something else."

She warned against hoarding saying this will force coffee prices up even more.

In Victoria coffee sales are reported mixed. Health stores report no noticeable change in business either up or down and a spokesman for Murchie's Tea & Coffee said sales are about the same level as always although Monday was a busier than normal day.

Rescue System Defended

BUCHANAN

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

A spokesman for the Pacific area search and rescue operation has struck back at the system's detractors saying the coverage on the West Coast is equal to that in the east.

Herb Buchanan, regional director, Canadian Coast Guard, said Wednesday in an interview from Vancouver the vessel requirements for both coasts are different.

In the west, most of the marine incidents are in sheltered waters and involve pleasure craft while on the east coast most of the problems occur 200 miles offshore incolving large fish boats, tankers or freighters.

"We have just as good coverage as the East Coast as far as I'm concerned," he said. "We have different types of boats because our requirements are different."

He was responding to charges that search and rescue funds are being used to build a sauna and gymnasium in Ottawa and that facilities on the west coast are "a first-class mess."

The charges were levelled Wednesday by Dr. Robert Somerville of Campbell River, a coast guard volunteer agent and perennial critic of search and rescue facilities.

He said $1 million of a $30 to $40 million allotment for search and rescue on both coasts was used to put a sauna and gymnasium in a ministry of transport department building in Ottawa.

Buchanan said there was no truth to the allegation as the funds referred to have been tagged for search and rescue purposes and "not even a pencil" could be bought with the money for use elsewhere.

He also corrected Somerville's assertion that one of the three 95-foot cutters on the west coast is ineffective and the other two need to be replaced.

Somerville said two of the Rider's four engines are not operational resulting in a loss of speed and effectiveness.

Buchanan said two of the Rider's engines were taken out because it was shown that with only two engines plus a change in the pitch of the propeller, there was a 40 per cent saving on fuel.

The move only reduced the speed by a knot and a quarter, he added, and that was only in good weather when the cutter could run at top speed.

He said both the Racer and the Ready have the same number of engines and they will each be losing two as well.

Buchanan said all three cutters are only 12 years old and although they do need some repair occasionally they certainly do not have to be replaced.

However, he added, that about a year ago he asked if the West Coast could have five 65-foot cutters instead of the three 95-foot vessels.

The federal government shot down the plan saying it did not want to spend the money to build the extra cutters.

Somerville also said government austerity programs had eliminated a promised 65-foot cutter for Prince Rupert.

However, Buchanan said it was announced in Vancouver last month that the cutter will be provided for Prince Rupert sometime in the next fiscal year which begins April 1.

Buchanan also answered another of Somerville's concerns, that there is a desperate need for more rescue personnel to man the Labrador helicopters at Comox on weekends.

Buchanan said the recent injection of search and rescue funds includes provision for operating the helicopters 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Although admitting he didn't know all the details of the new program he said it also included upgrading the helicopters making them better for night flying.

Buchanan also said there will be another hovercraft for the west coast soon and the one working out of Delta will operate on a 24-hour basis rather than 16 hours as it has in the past.

Somerville has also said the East Coast was being favored in that it was getting two new helicopters immediately while the west wouldn't get one for more than two years.

Buchanan said five former army helicopters are being brought out of mothballs and refitted for resuce work. That process, he said will take about two and a half years.

Civic Staff Asks Binding Arbitration

City Hall inside workers are proposing binding arbitration as a means of resolving any impasse that develops during upcoming negotiations with the city.

The members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 388, agreed on the proposal at a meeting Wednesday.

Rick Doyle, acting president of the local, said today the employees don't believe in strikes and lockouts as a method of settling disputes.

"We feel they are obsolete," he said. "There has to be another way to resolve disputes."

Doyle said the membership hopes the city will accept the binding arbitration concept when negotiations for a new contract begin later this month.

He said it became clear during the strike-lockout two years ago that the inside workers don't have much clout and a strike by the employees is not too effective.

The members also voted to accept the resignation of local president Dennis Burke and to stick with their decision to opt out of the CUPE joint area bargaining concept.

Burke resigned last month in protest over the members' decision to bargain directly with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association.

Doyle said there was a motion for Local 388 to reconsider its decision on joint bargaining but it was defeated after a brief discussion.

He said he thinks negotiations with the GVLRA will begin sometime after Jan. 12, the date set for the start of talks between the municipal employers and seven other locals on the CUPE Joint Negotiating Committee.

Meanwhile, CUPE local 1978 of the Capital Region District, has voted to join the joint negotiating committee.

Local president Daryl Anderson said the members made the decision at a meeting Tuesday night when they also expressed disappointment at Local 388's decision to go it alone.

"It is fairly obvious that they have failed to grasp the issues at hand," Anderson said.

Campbell Re-elected By Region

Jim Campbell of Saturna Island was re-elected by acclamation Wednesday to his fifth consecutive term as chairman of the Capital Region Board.

Campbell thanked the board for "continuing me in this very agreeable and interesting office."

Victoria alderman Murray Glazier was elected without opposition as alternate chairman. He succeeds former Victoria alderman and regional director Alf Hood.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young was re-elected by acclamation chairman of the regional hospital board — a position he has held since 1972.

Directors on the hospital board are the same as those on the regional board. Meetings are held on the same day in the same place.

He was first elected in 1971 and became chairman in 1973, a position he has not since relinquished.

Both Campbell's director term and chairmanship expire at the end of 1977. He said he has not yet decided whether he will seek re-election.

Board Awards $119,500 To Couple

An arbitration board has awarded a View-Royal man and his wife $119,500 for their expropriated property at Trans-Canada Highway between Helmcken and Chancellor.

The amount is $24,500 higher than offered for the land by the provincial highways department, which must pay the cost of the arbitration.

Arbiters David Lisson, Eric Charman and Ronald Campion accepted the higher valuation of the property as prepared by Victoria realtor Philip G. Jackson, and based upon the developmental value of the land.

The site is occupied by a pre-mix and pre-cast concrete business, W. and N. Trace Ltd., 108 Helmcken, and the owners were Walter C. and Ada M. Trace at the time of the expropriation by the highways department.

The appraisals of two other professionals, A. T. Ray Jones and David Coell, on behalf of the department was rejected by the board.

But in their decision, after a week's hearing, the arbiters said their award would have been $221,904 if they had not accepted the department's argument regarding illegal use of the property for industrial purposes.

This would have included compensation for setting up a new manufacturing plant at another location and the value of the existing plant.

In choosing the developmental approach, the board said the location of the property and general market activity was considered.

Trace had been 29 years in the location in his 40 years in the construction supply business in Victoria.

The property was eminently suited to his use, Trace argued, both for its layout and its central location in the market area he supplied, enabling him to provide custom batches of pre-mix concrete $8 a yard cheaper than his competitors.

Among his customers was the provincial government.

AirWest Seeks Extra Flights

Victoria's legal committee today recommended qualified city support for an AirWest Airlines Ltd. bid to increase its Victoria-Vancouver service — provided it doesn't apply to harbor-to-harbor operations.

Company spokesmen who attended the meeting said they are prepared to give that assurance.

The company is seeking city support for its application to the Air Transport Committee in Ottawa. A similar application from AirWest was turned down a year ago by the ATC.

AirWest president Norman Gold said the firm wants an amendment to its licence to allow it to operate a summer schedule on a year-round basis.

Because float planes cannot operate in safety after dark, the present winter schedule is curtailed in the late afternoon, he said.

AirWest proposes to extend the schedule by using wheeled Twin Otters on the run from Victoria airport to Vancouver airpirt during darkness hours.

Gold said the "downtown concept" will allow passengers to board a 19 passenger bus for the airport at the downtown Victoria terminal, purchase a ticket and proceed to downtown Vancouver by the same means.

"It would be a complete commuter downtown service 12 hours a day, 52 weeks a year," he said.

Another advantage would be that Victoria travellers bound for destinations in the B.C. interior would be able to depart much earlier than at present, because AirWest would provide a 5:45 or 6 a.m. service.

In such respects, he said, there is a "slight deficiency" in the service offered by Air Canada and Pacific Western Airlines.

Mayor Mike Young said council would have no objection to the company supplementing the service on an airport-to-airport basis, but would oppose any bid to step up harbor flights.

For several years the city has voiced concern about the safety of float plane traffic in the busy inner harbor.

Ald. Ron McKenzie, referring to the recent ditching of a Twin Otter near Victoria, asked the AirWest representatives if they are "happy" with the safety situation.

Groth said AirWest had carried 90,000 passengers last year between Victoria and Vancouver harbor and had more than five million passenger miles without a fatality.

SCHIBLI FACES FIGHT

There were five nominations for the post at a meeting Wednesday night, including vice-president Linda Baker, of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

The other nominees are Schibli, of the Carpenters' union, Jim Walker, of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Jack Groves, of the International Woodworkers of America and Larry Tickner, of the carpenters' union.

Other nominations can be made at the next council meeting, Jan. 19, when elections will be held.

Larry Ryan, a Victoria alderman appointed this week to head the city's labor relations and public works committee, was unopposed as the nominee for secretary-treasurer, a post he has held for nine years.

Two Jailed On Drug Charges

Two Victoria men were sentenced by Judge Montague Drake in county court today to two years less a day in jail on two counts of possession of pethidine for the purpose of trafficking.

William Paul Murray, 29, who spent three months in custody awaiting disposition of this case, will serve his sentence concurrently with another drug sentence of two years less a day which began in January, 1976.

Donald William Thomson, 43, has spent 15 months in custody awaiting disposition of his case.

Jail sentences on both counts were made concurrent by Judge Drake who said he was taking into account time served awaiting this case.

Crown counsel Gordon MacDonald said both men have lengthy criminal records involving theft and drug offences and have been "deeply involved in the use of narcotics and in this case, possession for the purpose of distribution."

New Computer Installed

First tangible sign of B.C. Systems Corp. — a new Crown company formed to handle computer work — appeared just before Christmas at University of Victoria.

Technicians and programmers are spending the mid-session break installing and testing a new IBM 370-158 computer that temporarily replaces the previous university computer and adds capacity that will be used by the provincial government.

The systems corporation, which still awaits enabling legislation at the spring sitting of the legislature, assumes all computer operations of the government previously under the wing of the department of transport and communications.

In an unusual arrangement with the university, the systems corporation will share the larger computer at a ratio of about 60-40, and be responsible for approximately the same proportion of its rental cost. The move fills a void that would otherwise have occurred while the university awaits delivery of a new IBM 370-148.

Dave Stothard, manager of UVic computer services, said the new machine is large enough to do all work associated with university teaching and research, with enough capacity left to do some commercial work and satisfy requirements of government departments.

The arrangement will be reviewed in August.

Stothard said sharing a single computer installation allows the systems corporation to start operation without the need of a new building and facilities until a broader view of requirements is obtained.

The university has had a number of different generations of computer since the early 1960s, the most recent an IBM 145.
